ASKS CONGRESS COMMITTEES ON JOB YEAR ROUND

Roosevelt Presents New Plan.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—On the threshold of a new session of congress, with much talk of senatorial investigations and fresh scandals in the air, President Roosevelt has formulated a plan which he hopes will forestall such uneasy times in the future.

The plan is to have both houses of congress form permanent and continuing committees of their members with the duty of maintaining close touch with the executive branch of the government at all times.

The view of the President, it was learned, is that if there are scandals in the administration of the government, or if things are going awry and contrary to the wishes of congress or the people, the time to find that out is at the time of occurrence, not months or years afterwards.

For Continuous Session.

So he would have a committee of both houses sit in Washington constantly, receiving complaints, listening to rumors, demanding information of department heads, watching every move of the administrative program.

Then, if things go wrong, according to the President's philosophy, the blame will rest on the congressional committee at least to the same degree as upon the administration. At any rate, it is considered a shrewd guess that if the President is able to say, upon a scandal developing somewhere in the government, that the congressional committee had full authority to find out about it and stop it, he will go far toward easing himself of responsibility.

Since no one could ever doubt the personal integrity of the President, the only blame that could accrue to him would be for acts of his subordinates and it is known that the President welcomes any information which enables him either to detect and punish or to prevent any misconduct or corruption in his government.

Opposed to Dictation.

How much authority the President would delegate to this congressional committee, however, is in doubt. It was learned authoritatively that he does not intend to permit the committee in any way to interfere with the independence of or to dictate the executive functions of the government.

Informed persons credit the germination of the idea to the brain of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson. In his administration of the NRA the general has had a happy faculty of ridding himself of many violent critics by inviting them to join the administration in an "advisory" or "observatory" capacity. Once in the vast mill of the NRA bureau the critics are smothered into silence.

Thus the President may expect the proposed continuing committee of congress to sit in the impotency of observers or advisers, and at the same time find for himself surcease from senatorial and house committee investigations.

Reaction on Capitol Hill.

But the reaction on Capitol hill was that if such a committee is formed and is not composed entirely of administration "yes men" the tendency of the committee might be to plague the administrative heads year in and out with demands for proof against charges of misconduct. It was pointed out that often in the interim between congressional sessions scandals crop up and flare momentarily, but are then lost in the time elapsing before an independent official inquiry can be launched.

Newspaper men have often found members of congress willing to cooperate in investigating charges of corruption and wrongdoing in executive branches, and there is no doubt the news correspondents would welcome having always at hand an impartial official agency willing to and authorized to investigate.

In addition to the President's purpose of having the committee discover errors before they go too far, he is known to feel that congress should be in closer touch with the development of its legislative acts. He believes the functioning of an active committee would make for frankness and harmony between the branches of government. They would watch the expenditure of appropriations, although having no right to interfere with them except as they might bring

NRA BARS HIGH FEES BY BANKS TO DEPOSITORS

Johnson Halts Plan, Dismisses Deputy.

NRA Faces Court Test

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA adminstrator; George W. Alger, director of the Coat and Suit Authority, and other NRA officials in Washington and Connecticut were ordered today to appear in federal court here Jan. 15 to show cause why an injunction should not be granted restraining enforcement of the coat and suit code in this state. Suit was filed on behalf of five manufacturers.

The action charged that the coat and suit code was unconstitutional, arbitrary, and constitutes a confiscation of property without due process of law.

It further charges that two plaintiffs have been forced out of business.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—(AP)—All bankers' schedules of new high charges to depositors, announced to go into effect with the first of the year under NRA's code, were canceled tonight by Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, in an order which revealed an extraordinary "misunderstanding."

Just how the "misunderstanding" to which officials ascribed the incident had come about no one would explain tonight, but it was the word officially used to describe the fact that the bankers' code authority had circulated confidentially among the clearing house associations all over the country a suggested schedule of customer charges, with the declaration that Johnson had approved it, while the administrator now says he had not even seen it.

The charges covered almost every service that a bank could extend to a customer and would have far exceeded the federal two cent check tax.

Johnson Dismisses Deputy.

Simultaneously with the order stopping all schedules Johnson summarily dismissed Cary N. Weisiger Jr., the deputy administrator in charge of the banking code, who had been instrumental yesterday in having the press division of NRA announce that Johnson had approved the plans of the code authority.

Weisiger, formerly with Goldman Sachs, New York and Chicago investment house, was informed of his dismissal as soon as Johnson realized what had occurred and had dispatched telegrams to the secretary of the code authority and to Ronald Ransom of Atlanta, president of the American Bankers' association, ordering that every one who had received the standard rules be immediately requested to prevent their going into effect and stating:

"These [the rules] will be suspended indefinitely and immediately until specifically approved by myself in person."

In a separate public statement Johnson pledged "careful scrutiny in the public interest" for every schedule of charges submitted by a local or regional clearing house association. They will have until Feb. 1 to submit these, and meantime the public will not have to pay any higher service charges than are now in force.

Code Provides for Charges.

The code, as approved Oct. 3, provided that local clearing house associations should establish uniform rules of fair practice for their territory, these to include adequate charges to prevent small acounts being carried at a loss. The rules were to be reported within 30 days and could not go into effect without Johnson's approval.

The time for submitting the schedules was extended to Jan. 1 and apparently because of inconsistencies or delays among the various associations the code authority compiled a standard set of charges. They were not given to the press, but distributed, under a caption stating administration approval of them, to the clearing house units, approximately 750 of them. The text of the so-called "standard rules" has not been made public, but roughly it corresponds to the high charges announced yesterday by New York banks.

Provisions in the circular purported to make the standard rules effective the first of the year unless other schedules had been approved in the meantime and little leeway was allowed in fixing these. Most of the schedules

GREEK MINISTER CALLS INSULL'S APPEAL FUTILE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 29.—Samuel Insull, fugitive Chicago utilities man, might as well spare himself the trouble of contesting through the Greek council of state the Greek minister of interior's decision to expel him on Jan. 31, Demetrios Maximos, Greek foreign minister, who is now in Paris on a political mission, said today.

"We have given Insull hospitality for more than a year," Maximos said. "We do not want him any more. Whatever is the decision of the council of state on Jan. 19, when it examines the deportation order, Insull is going to go and that's sure."

The Greek minister indicated that the state council was not competent in the case and that the crafty fugitive had this time been deluded by his own Greek lawyers into futilely contesting the government's order. Maximos said Insull had the popular reputation in Greece for having brought much money into the country.

"My government may possibly offend popular sympathies," he said, "but out Insull goes, nevertheless."

SO MR. LEUDEKE PUTS IN A PLUG FOR HIS FREEDOM

Joseph Clark, 4618 North Racine avenue, was acquitted yesterday on a charge of intoxication by Municipal Judge Frank M. Padden. Before he walked away from the bench he laid a cigar down, saying, "Happy New Year, Judge."

Louis Leudeke, 3342 North Seeley avenue, was the next defendant called, on the same charge. A disturbed look faded from his face when he located something after fumbling in his pockets.

"Here, Judge, this is the best I can do, but Happy New Year, anyway," said Luedeke.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A state of siege was declared for an indefinite period tonight by the Argentine government as the result of a revolutionary plot leading to violent disorders in four provinces. The action, which is similar to a state of war, followed upon a cabinet meeting, at which it was decided that the disorders must be curbed at any cost.

Earlier the government had announced that the plot, launched concertedly before dawn by extremist elements among the nation's 1,000,000 Radical voters disfranchised since a 1930 rebellion, had been suppressed.

Private reports from Rosario, in Santa Fé province, said firing was renewed during the morning between rebels and loyal forces at Rosario, where 20 persons were slain last night. About 100 persons, including many soldiers, were hurt, and 500 were arrested.

Troops Held in Readiness.

Rebels claimed they controlled most of the police stations in Santa Fé, but police reinforcements and two infantry regiments were held in readiness.

Today's disturbances coincided with a decision of the national convention of the Radical party in Santa Fé to refrain from participating in March parliamentary elections.

The party contended that the voting will be "manipulated" and that Radical candidates would be defeated, although President Justo promised fair elections, and observers believed the Radicals might be able to elect 25 deputies.

Leaders Are Cleared.

In such an event, it was said, the gradual rehabilitation of the party, which has virtually been barred from elections for three years, would begin.

The leading Radical chieftains were not accused of complicity in the plot. The party claims the membership of 70 per cent of Argentine voters and contains an extremist element that demands the restoration of the party by violence.

Disturbances in Rosario, Santa Fé, Carcarana, San Jeronimo, Cañada de Gomez, Sant. Anna, Paso Libres, San Luis, La Plata, Avellanada, and Buenos Aires, affecting the provinces of Santa Fé, San Luis, Corrientes, and Buenos Aires, broke out at 3 a. m.

Attack Police Station.

Armed groups attacked post officials, police stations, arsenals, coast-guard stations, and fire houses in some cities, particularly Rosario, but in Buenos Aires and elsewhere police frustrated the insurgents' efforts by making arrests before the outbreaks.

At Santa Fé police fired into crowds milling about the police headquarters. In Buenos Aires fifty persons, armed and wearing red and white armbands, were arrested.

Among those wounded at Rosario, during heavy firing of rebels and police, was the chief of the mounted forces. The fighting was quelled only after a bloody encounter and after machine guns were placed throughout the city.

Buenos Aires police said the insurgents here were to have worn little white hats.

The entire Buenos Aires police force and two infantry regiments were held in readiness to forestall trouble.

2D WHITE HOUSE DOG BANISHED FOR BAD CAPITAL MANNERS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt has sent away from the White House the second dog to be banished for bad conduct.

Meggie, her pet Scotch terrier, it was learned today, has been given to friends for safekeeping as the result of Meggie's action on Wednesday in biting Miss Bess Furman, a newspaper correspondent, on the face while the latter was talking to Mrs. Roosevelt.

Major, a German shepherd dog, recently was sent to the Roosevelt estate at Hyde Park for showing a similar bad temper, notably in attacking Senator Caraway.

FLAMES SWEEP HOTEL IN ELGIN; ROUT 50 GUESTS

Fire late last night swept the old Town Block hotel building at 911 South Grove avenue in the heart of the business district of Elgin. Fifty men living in the hotel section on the third floor were driven to the street and one, Paul Wing, was carried down ladders by firemen. No estimate of damage was made.

Mayor Myron M. Lehman personally assisted firemen in handling hose lines. At 2 o'clock this morning the flames were under control. The fire started in the basement under a Wylie Hat store, spread rapidly through the first floor, then to the second, housing beauty parlors, and finally to the third, where the hotel is situated. For a while the blaze threatened the Union National bank building nearby.

NRA Boosts Cost; Want U. S. to Buy Clay Plant

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—(AP)—If the government wants to buy a clay products plant it can have the Hickory Clay Products company of Mineral Springs, O. The company said it felt the government ought to purchase it because freight rates are too high and the NRA code for the industry has increased its costs too much.

Keep Women Out of Bars, Mayor Urges

Mayor Kelly came out yesterday as an opponent of women drinking at bars, announcing that he will ask the city council to amend the liquor license ordinance to prohibit the practice.

The mayor's statement on the subject was released at his office after he had left for a few days' vacation at an unannounced place, and he could not be reached for an explanation of it. One section of the statement implied that he would ask that women be prohibited from entering taverns or any other places selling liquor, except restaurants and cafés which had been in operation for some period before repeal. Another section, however, indicated that his wish was merely to have women drinkers barred from counters or bars where drinks are sold.

Believes People Oppose Practice.

"After a few weeks of noting the general effect of women drinking at counters," said the mayor, "I am convinced that people generally regard it as an obnoxious practice.

"It is an accepted custom for men to drink at counters, but womanhood should be held on a higher plane. Women and counters just don't seem to mix, and a wrong impression is created when they are combined. This is not true of restaurants and cafés which have actually been established as such for a long time, but not as taverns since repeal, later being turned into food dispensing places.

"I believe that womanhood should be held up to an ideal and not be allowed to fall into common acts entirely outside woman's normal sphere.

Would Exclude Women.

"I am, therefore, going to recommend to the license committee of the city council that the liquor ordinance be amended to prohibit women from drinking at counters in taverns or any places other than regularly established restaurants where, for years past, a woman sitting at a counter has been an ordinary sight which created no stigma or bad impression of womanhood in general.

"If women want to drink they can do it just as well and with as much pleasure or satisfaction sitting down at a table as standing up or sitting on a high chair at a counter, the latter seeming to promote less feminine reserve and more roughness and loose talk—to the disgrace of women in general.

"I don't know of anything that will stir up public opinion against personal liberty as far as liquor is concerned more than the regular sight of women drinking and carousing at tavern counters, if we permit it to go on. I shall, therefore, exert every effort to stop this unwelcome practice."

Governor Ignores Questions.

With increasing signs of displeasure over the daily bombardment of questions to which he has been subjected, Gov. Horner, at Springfield, declined yesterday to discuss the differences of opinion between him and Mayor Kelly on the liquor question. The governor holds that, lacking state laws, cities have no right to license liquor sale.

"The purpose of nine-tenths of the questions," he said, "is merely to cause trouble. I shall pay no further attention to them."

But in the same interview the governor said that he had not changed his attitude in reference to the pending legislation and that he did not expect to change it. He said also that he does not intend to talk to assemblymen concerning the administration bill until they return to the capital next Wednesday for the resumption of the special session.

NAZI ASSASSIN SEIZED; SAVED FROM LYNCHING

SINAIA, Rumania, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Premier Ion G. Duca, head of Rumania's new national liberal government, was assassinated here tonight by a member of the Anti-Jewish Iron Guard, which he outlawed a few weeks ago.

The assassin, a student, waylaid Duca at a railway station as he was about to board a train for Bucharest after a conference with King Carol.

Taking no chances of failure, the assassin fired four shots from a revolver into the premier's head, and then hurled a hand grenade, which wounded Duca's companion, Dr. M. Costinescu, a deputy.

Two Accomplices Seized.

Police arrested the assassin, who said he was Nicholas Constantinescu. Two alleged accomplices also were arrested.

Duca, 55, lately had been an outstanding figure in an international fight to suppress a rising wave of anti-Semitism in Europe. Authorities said both the student and the men arrested with him were members of the anti-Jewish and Fascist Iron Guard, a Nazi organization which was outlawed by government decree on Dec. 10.

By midnight word from Bucharest said 1,300 had been jailed in that city alone.

Rides in King's Car.

Duca, prime minister only since Nov. 12, arrived in Sinaia this afternoon and was welcomed by Finance Minister Bratianu and political friends.

King Carol's automobile was waiting for him and he was conveyed to the castle, where he was closeted for two hours with the monarch. Afterwards he and Bratianu dined with a former mayor of Bucharest in the latter's Sinaia villa.

The train for Bucharest was scheduled to depart at 9:45 p. m., but Duca was notified there would be a delay and did not arrive at the station until 10 o'clock. By this time a large crowd had gathered to cheer his arrival.

Crowd Thrown Into Panic.

He was walking across the platform toward a salon coach when the shots were fired.

The crowd at the station immediately was thrown into panic and did not know what had happened until they saw Duca lying on the ground.

The assassin, attempting to escape in the confusion, wounded the Sinaia chief of police, who chased and captured him despite a bullet wound in his hand.

When the crowd realized what had happened only intervention of the police and soldiers prevented a lynching.

In political circles the opinion was freely expressed that the killing would have far-reaching consequences.

King Carol, informed of the assassination, immediately ordered Duca's body brought to the royal castle in Sinaia. The king summoned Minister of Education Constantine Angelescu to Sinaia. He was slated for the premiership temporarily until the election of a new leader of the National Liberal party.

Foreign Chief Summoned.

Angelescu is the senior member of the cabinet and a professor of surgery in the University of Bucharest. He is 64 years old.

Foreign Minister Titulescu, at present in St. Moritz, Switzerland, was immediately summoned to return to Bucharest.

The premier's body will lie in state in the Athenæum, which will be open to the public until the state funeral on Sunday afternoon.

It was learned that barring unforeseen developments the government does not intend to proclaim martial law.

The assassination came as a climax to a long series of disorders characteristic of the new wave of anti-Semitic radicalism which has swept Rumania since the victory of Chancellor Hitler's anti-Jewish campaign in Germany.

Stirred by Hitler's Victory.

Anti-Jewish agitation in Rumania, particularly the movement led by Prof. Alec Cuza of the outlawed National Christian party, dates back into the 19th century, and the Iron Guard leader, Corneliu Z. Codreanu, himself killed a police prefect of Jassy in 1924 for his rough treatment of student rioters.

Hitler's victory in Germany this year stirred both groups to renewed activity.

During the recent parliamentary campaign riots developed in various parts of Rumania and the Duca government thereupon outlawed the Iron Guard and launched a vigorous campaign of suppression. They raided Iron Guard headquarters all over the country and jailed all Iron Guard candidates for office. They failed, however, to capture Codreanu.

Judge and a Banker.

The assassinated premier was born Dec. 20, 1879, in Bucharest, the son of a director of the Rumanian State railways. He studied in Bucharest and Paris and took a degree of doctor of laws. He became a judge and later a banker.

Elected to parliament in 1907, he was made one of the prominent leaders of the Liberal party under the Bratianu brothers and a minister of education in the cabinet of Lionel Bratianu in 1914. Later, in 1918, he was minister of agriculture and then foreign minister, which portfolio he held for four years, frequently representing his country at Geneva and taking an active part in the formation of the little entente.

After that he became minister of the interior, which post he resigned in 1928.

Takes Over Leadership.

After the death of Vintila Bratianu in 1932 Duca took over the leadership of the Liberal party and formed the present government Nov. 14, this year. Shortly after this he announced a vigorous campaign against the radical anti-Jewish parties.

Duca's career was marked by stormy passages, including a challenge in July, 1931, to fight a duel with George Bratianu, dissident Liberal leader. He refused the challenge, however. Duca informed Bratianu's seconds, who called on him, that he admitted having called Bratianu "unreliable," but that he meant unreliable only in a political sense. The seconds replied that they took note of his explanation, which concerned the cause for the challenge.

For a few years past the relations between King Carol and Duca were not of the best. The coolness between Duca and the king was due to the fact that Duca had been accused of being instrumental in depriving Carol of his rights to the throne at one time. He was also one of those opposed to the return of Carol from Paris in 1930.

The Nazi elements in Rumania for some time past have sought to separate the foreign policies of Rumania and France, Rumania being a member of the little entente, which is allied with France. Duca opposed separation.

ASSASSIN'S OWN STORY

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

SINAIA, Dec. 29.—Shortly after the assassination of Premier Duca of Rumania an exclusive interview was obtained from the assassin. His correct name is Radu (not Nicholas) Constantinescu, he said. He gave the latter name to the police. He revealed himself frankly as a devotee of the doctrines of Hitlerism, spoke with complete calmness and satisfaction at the assassination of the premier, and said he had no regret for having destroyed a "friend of the Jews."

Constantinescu was found seated on a pile of baggage in the waiting room of the Sinaia station. He was in irons, guarded by a dozen gendarmes. He said he had headed the list of Iron Guard candidates [before that organization was dissolved] in the electrical district of Fagaras in Transylvania.

Hurled Smoke Bomb.

"Yes, I killed Duca, and it was I who threw the smoke bomb in the hope of escaping arrest," he said. "It must have been a bullet, not a bomb fragment, which wounded the former mayor of Bucharest."

[An Associated Press dispatch said Dr. M. Costinescu, Premier Duca's companion, was wounded by a hand grenade hurled by the assassin and that the Sinaia chief of police was wounded by a bullet.]

"Why did you murder the premier?" the assassin was asked.

"It was not Duca, the premier, or Duca, the leader of the Liberals, but Duca, a friend of the Jews, whom I was determined to destroy," answered the self-confessed murderer. "I wanted to kill him in order to avenge the death of my comrades in the Iron Guard who were killed in conflict with the gendarmery during the recent anti-Semitic riots at Constantza.

Decide Duca Must Die.

"A week ago I and my two colleagues, who have also been arrested, discussed this matter at Bucharest and decided Duca must be killed. Outside of ourselves no one knew of the plans. At the time we agreed that if one of us should be arrested the other two should surrender to the police."

"Where did you get the necessary funds for carrying out this plot which must have involved a great deal of expense?" he was asked.

"I had about $40 left from the local electoral funds of the Iron Guard," he replied. "This money was supplied by the Iron Guard newspaper, Calendarul, which collected it."

This newspaper has long been believed subsidized by the Nazis in Germany.

"Do you regret your deed?"

Has No Regrets.

"Certainly not. I don't regret killing Duca, but I regret the fate of Rumania in which the Duca system had intended to settle 150,000 refugee Jewish families."

"If you had the chance, would you repeat such a terrible action?"

"Certainly. I would destroy all traitors to the Rumanian people and all those who would sell their interests for Jewish gold."

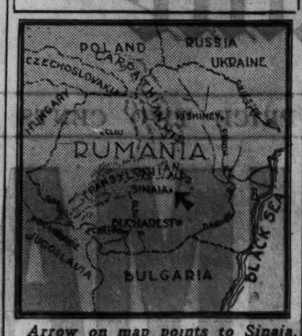
The assassin is a typical victim of Nazi propaganda, of very limited but keen intelligence, captivated by a few slogans which seem to promise a new heaven on earth if only the "arch enemies of mankind, the Jews, can be destroyed." He repeated in the manner of a well drilled soldier phrases which had for him clearly only mechanical significance.

City Presents Strange Aspect.

Sinaia, high in the Alps deeply buried in snow, presents a strange aspect tonight. Across the snow the lights of the royal castle, where the premier lies in state, blaze while King Carol is engaged in conferences with Constanine Angelescu, who is slated for the premiership. At the gates and on the turrets of the castle stand smoking censers for the murdered premier.

Among the population there is general fear that this is the beginning of a terroristic campaign on regular Nazi lines by the Iron Guard. German news agencies are already sending out reports palliating the assassination and glorifying the activities of the Iron Guard.

Nazi Kills Premier



Arrow on map points to Sinaia, the seat of Rumania's royal palace, where Premier Duca was assassinated yesterday by a student. Police said the captured assassin was a member of the outlawed Fascist Iron Guard, a Nazi organization. The shooting occurred after the premier had left King Carol's palace following a conference.

IRISH BLUE SHIRT CHIEF ACQUITTED IN SEDITION TRIAL

Convicted of Belonging to Illegal Body.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Commandant E. J. Cronin, one of the leaders of the government opposition, announced tonight he would not give a peace bond to escape three months imprisonment for membership in an unlawful association.

Earlier today Cronin was acquitted by a military tribunal of a charge of sedition, but was convicted of being a member of the Young Ireland association and the National Guard, or Army Comrades association, which the court held were "analogous."

The court stipulated a sentence of three months' in prison would not be enforced if the associate of the Blue Shirt chieftain, Gen. Owen O'Duffy, would supply bail of 50 pounds [about $255] to keep the peace for two years.

Newspaper Man Sentenced.

Joseph Dennigan, well-known Irish newspaperman and correspondent for the Canadian Press, was sentenced at the same hearing to a month's imprisonment for contempt of court because he refused to divulge the source of information used as evidence in Cronin's trial.

Dennigan testified he had written a paragraph in the Irish Press, organ of President Eamon De Valera, which suggested that members of associations declared unlawful should be allowed a short time to resign from them.

He told the tribunal this was confirmed from "an official source" but refused to name it.

"I intend to keep the peace," Cronin said in revealing he would not supply bond. "For the last 18 months I have given all of my time and energy to the task of securing for the Irish people peaceful enjoyment of their constitutional rights. But I have no intention whatever of going before a judge and giving recognizance."

Charges He Was Framed.

Cronin was arrested last month when police raided his headquarters and said they found arms and seditious material there. He insisted the matter had been "planted."

He testified the blue shirt he was wearing—emblematic of membership in the Young Ireland association, a junior branch of the United Ireland party—was torn from his back. He denied the Blue Shirts were a military organization.

Gen. O'Duffy, leader of the United Ireland party, from which the banned Young Ireland party grew, was released last week after four days' imprisonment. He was arrested wearing a blue shirt at a political gathering. A court ruled his detention was illegal.

CATHOLICS WIN NAZI CURB ON LAW ON STERILIZATION

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Dec. 29.—As a result of a protest by the Catholic church, the Hitler government today consented to modify the law under which some 400,000 German men and women were to be sterilized after it became effective Jan. 1. This important concession to the one power that the Nazis have thus far failed to "coördinate" was revealed in a passing notice buried in a long editorial in Germania, the chief Catholic newspaper of Germany and the personal organ of Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen.

"The sterilization law is not a principle but a legal measure, the tendency of which is approved by Catholic theologians as well, but which on one point has caused representations to be made to the Reich government by the church authorities," Germania said. "Thereupon certain modifications have been conceded in the methods of procedure. Both the state and the church have a sincere wish to come to a peaceful understanding on this and other differences."

What the point was against which the protest was raised and on which the concession was made has not been officially revealed. It was believed, however, that it dealt with the provisions of the law under which nearly 200,000 persons were to be sterilized on the ground of congenital idiocy because they might not have been able to answer a questionnaire that in some particulars might stump even brilliant minds.

FIRST NEW YEAR'S EVE OF REPEAL TO BE GAY AND WET

Record Crowds Indicated in Table Reservations.

Chicago's celebration of the first repeal New Year's eve promises to be gay and wet. At no time during prohibition was there a dearth of hip liquor to usher out expiring years, but the new liberality is likely to bring record crowds to hotels, clubs, and cabarets this year, according to yesterday's reservation lists.

Hotel wine cellars and liquor vaults locked since the blight descended more than thirteen years ago have been reopened to yield their fragrance for the nation's annual tippling spree. And to replenish this diminishing stream comes an ocean of blended and imported beverages.

Reservation Lists Grow.

The holiday spirit pervaded hotel and club managers and maitres d'hôtel yesterday as they constantly added to their reservation lists. Not for years had they seen such business, they said, and, conversely, not for years have they had so much to offer.

They also estimated that the liquor bill for the celebration would run into the millions. Some hotels are including a cocktail, a bottle of wine—or even both—in the price of their New Year's supper. Champagne, it was predicted, will be the most popular drink, with other charged wines running a close second. Dawn breakfasts are featured at some establishments and included in the table d'hote prices.

Some comfort for the carrier of hip liquor was given last night by officials of leading hotels. It was indicated that there would be few efforts to ban the guests who bring hip liquor in preference to the gay spot's own goods, but many will have a corkage charge and a setup charge.

Officials of the Palmer house believed that they would dispense $25,000 worth of liquor in their ballrooms and bars. Reservations for the public parties in the Empire room and the grand ballroom totaled 1,250 last night, with more expected today and tomorrow.

Special Show Arranged.

At the Morrison hotel 1,000 reservations had been made for the Terrace Gardens, the center of the hotel's celebration. A special floor show has been arranged, and favors will be distributed. The Congress hotel will have parties in the Joseph Urban, the Gold, and the Pompeian rooms, for which 1,500 reservations have been made.

At Hotel Sherman the revelry will center in three rooms, the Bal Tabarin, College Inn, and Grand ballroom and more than 3,000 reservations have been made. Special floor shows will be staged and four bars will be in operation. A block west, at the Bismarck hotel, more than 800 reservations have been made for the Walnut room and the Bier stube.

The Stevens hotel reported 2,000 reservations and predicted a sell-out in its three rooms—the Colchester, Grand ball, and Boulevard rooms. A fourth, the Oak room, will also be utilized if the expected 3,500 reservations are made. At Hotel La Salle the Blue Fountain room's 1,200 reservations had been sold out and few tables were available in the hangar on the 19th floor.

The Edgewater Beach hotel already has more than 2,000 reservations for its parties in the Marine dining room and the ballrooms on the lobby floor. Celebration at the Drake will center in the Gold Coast room, where 800 are expected.

Most clubs are having membership parties. The Tavern club has a $5,000 liquor stock on hand and expects at least 200 persons. It will feature a dinner with a selection of fine wines. The Chicago Athletic association expects 1,500 and the Illinois Athletic club 1,000. The Medinah Michigan club will hold two parties and expects 5,000 persons.

Open House at Club.

The Union League club will not have a party tomorrow night, but will hold its customary open house New Year's day, beginning at 2 p. m. More than 3,000 persons are expected. The Lake Shore club Sunday evening, but accommodations for 600 guests. The Army and Navy club will join the Lake Shore club Sunday evening but will hold its official reception the next afternoon. At the Hamilton club more than 1,000 reservations have been made.

The night clubs and cabarets reported large reservations.

SEES JANUARY'S RELIEF COST 27% UNDER NOVEMBER

Wilfred S. Reynolds, director of relief for the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, announced yesterday that estimates prepared for next month show that January relief expenditures in Cook county will be about 27 per cent less than the amount spent for relief in the county during November. This reduction is due to the transfer of about 50,000 heads of families from the relief rolls to jobs on CWA projects.

"In November about $4,530,759 was spent on relief in Cook county," Mr. Reynolds said. "We estimate that only $3,295,145 will be spent on relief in the county during January."

NRA BARS HIGH FEES BY BANKS TO DEPOSITORS

Johnson Halts Plan, Dismisses Deputy.

announced in various cities and states corresponded closely to the master set.

Though the code had provided for service charges, the general expectation was that there would be uniform adoption of levies like the 50 cent to $1.50 service charges on small checking accounts now in force. Instead came a "metered" system by which the customer would pay so much per check above a certain limit, would be charged with each deposit slip and each item on the slip, etc. Also proposed was a minimum charge of ten cents for cashing any check presented by a nondepositor.

When questioned on the New York announcement this morning, Johnson said:

"I am not going to attempt to tell the banks what they should do. Of course, if the banks want to commit suicide, I don't know who will worry about stopping them. My interest would be the public interest."

He did not realize at the time that NRA was on record as having approved the basic scales. Soon after this remark, Eugene R. Black, governor of the federal reserve board, issued a statement commending the charges as "necessary for the success of the banks and the successful operation of the code."

PLAN 'METERED' SERVICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 29.—Banking service in Greater New York was to be put on a "metered service plan" involving fixed charges for every banking function, under a schedule of rules and regulations drawn up at a meeting of representatives of more than one hundred banks and submitted for approval to the banking code committee of the NRA and the American Bankers' association. The regulations were to go into effect on Jan. 1.

So complete is the "metering" of service costs under the regulations that small depositors would be charged a fee on the amount of their balances, and, if their accounts are at all active, would have to pay additional charges on every check drawn and on every deposit made, plus a fee for the deposit slip on which their deposits are entered. Larger accounts in all banks would be subjected to periodic analysis and service charges would be levied in accordance with these analyses.

Charges Based on Balances.

Of greatest interest to the general depositor are the schedules of service charges for handling domestic checking accounts. In the case of banks in New York these provide that for all accounts having an average collected monthly balance of $500 a base charge of $2 a month shall be made, less an allowance equal to 5 cents for each $25 of balance.

A depositor with a balance of $500, for example, would pay $2 less $1 allowance, while a depositor with only $100 balance would pay $2, less 20 cents, or $1.80 net. On top of this base charge, however, there may be imposed an additional charge of 2½ cents for each check or deposit item handled by the bank over a certain minimum quota based on the depositor's balance.

A depositor would be allowed to put two items through the bank for each $25 of balance kept. A depositor with $100 balance could put through eight items; one with $500, forty items.

CONTINUE SAME CHARGES HERE.

Chicago depositors will not be subjected to higher banking charges, similar to those proposed by New York banks, it was said last night. While banking officials here withheld comment on provisions of the Chicago code, which was submitted to the recovery administration earlier in the week, it was learned no change, except in isolated instances, is contemplated in charges and requirements now placed on balances.

ORDERS STATES TO PICK BETTER CWA PROJECTS

Unnecessary Works to Be Dropped.

Frank D. Chase, state director for the civil works administration, announced yesterday the receipt of a letter from Harry L. Hopkins, federal civil works administrator, requesting that better projects be evolved for the employment of CWA workers. The same letter was sent to all state CWA directors, Mr. Hopkins explained, in an effort to improve the quality of CWA projects now that most of the men to be put to work are actually working.

There has been criticism of CWA projects on two grounds: first, that some of the projects are of low social utility, and second, that on some projects so many men are working that they get in each other's way. Hopkins asked that engineers drafting additional CWA projects give closer attention to planning, supervision and inspection of all CWA work.

To Drop Needless Projects.

All needless CWA projects are to be dropped as soon as better projects can be developed, Mr. Hopkins said. In order to accomplish this, new projects are to be accepted and men to perform this work are to be taken from overcrowded projects. In some cases 50 per cent of the men on a project can be removed and the work completed in the scheduled time, Mr. Hopkins wrote.

In accordance with Mr. Hopkins' request, Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the Illinois civil works administration, announced yesterday that applications for new projects would still be considered. He urged that all county civil works committees continue to send in applications. If projects now under way end sooner than anticipated, or workers need to be transferred to other work because of inclement weather, the change can be made with a minimum of delay, he said.

Edward F. McGinnis, county commander of the American Legion, announced yesterday that his organization planned to bring pressure to bear on employes of political subdivisions in the county who are in charge of preparing pay rolls on CWA projects, in order to get the pay rolls completed more promptly.

To Improve West Parks.

Harry Joseph, president of the west park board, said final approval has been granted by the federal CWA for the improvement and rehabilitation of the entire west parks system at a cost of $1,524,041. This work will give jobs to 4,099 men and women. Of the total cost, $348,222 will be spent for materials and tools and $1,176,979 for labor.

The work includes all needed repairs to buildings, bridges, fences, walls, and other structures as well as rehabilitation of walks, drives, lawns, and plantation areas in the parks and on the boulevards. Some of the buildings involved have not been repaired for 12 years.

Register Next Week.

The Adult Education Council of Chicago yesterday announced the beginning of registration for junior college courses to be given to the unemployed free of charge under the civil works education service. Registrations will take place next Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday in the following branches of the Chicago Public library: Hild, 4536 Lincoln avenue; Legler, Crawford avenue and Monroe street; Kelly, 62d street and Normal boulevard; Woodlawn, 6247 Kimbark avenue; Pullman, 110th street and Indiana avenue, and Hall, 48th street and Michigan avenue.

The only requirements for admission to the classes will be high school education and residence in Chicago. Classes will be started in quarters on the eighth floor at 18 South Michigan avenue on Jan. 8.

Today will be the first pay day for artists employed on civil works projects. Checks totaling $10,000 will be given to 175 artists at the art commission offices, 135 South La Salle street.

MINE OWNERS SUMMONED TO LABOR PARLEY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Carrying out the terms laid down by President Roosevelt for a labor agreement at steel company coal mines, the national labor board today summoned a dozen Pennsylvania coal companies to a hearing on Jan. 4 at which the board will "determine the matters in controversy."

The companies in question, all controlled by steel companies, were reported by Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers, to have failed to reach an agreement with the representatives of the workers chosen at recent elections held under the national labor board.

Simultaneously with this summons the board settled a tie vote at the Edenborn mine of the H. C. Frick Coke company by declaring elected two representatives of the United Mine Workers and three spokesmen for the independent brotherhood.

SURVEY REVEALS WOMEN'S VIEWS ABOUT NEW DEAL

Department Store Asks the Questions.

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Of the women in the United States 75 per cent believe we are on our way out of the depression toward unprecedented prosperity.

Eighty per cent believe implicitly in the NRA and are convinced it is not contrary to our form of government.

Ninety-two per cent believe that either every one has benefited by the NRA or at least one group has been helped.

Eighty per cent are confident that the dollar is in good hands and have no fear of a "baloney" dollar.

These are the results of a survey conducted for Gimbel Brothers, Inc., as revealed by Bernard F. Gimbel, its president, at a luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria today.

Conducted in Four Cities.

The survey, Mr. Gimbel said, was conducted in New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Milwaukee and the surrounding trading areas. Forty thousand women were interviewed.

"There have been carping critics of the NRA who felt that in its pressure to force a more equitable distribution of wealth it was contrary to some of the underlying tenets of our form of government," Mr. Gimbel said.

"But these critics do not speak for American women.

"We asked specifically: 'Is the NRA contrary to our form of government?' and we found that four-fifths of the women questioned answered, 'No'."

Attitude Generally Unselfish.

Mr. Gimbel said they had expected to find the women more selfish.

"One might have expected that the majority would be looking for jobs specifically for themselves and for members of their families. Those things no doubt they wish, but they are concerned with the greatest good for the greatest number.

"On the average, 92 per cent of the women in these four cities believe either that every one has benefited by the NRA or that at least some one group in our society has been measurably helped.

"Most thought the worker had received the greatest benefit, though large numbers thought the manufacturer, the retailer, the farmer, and the consumer have been similarly favored."

The survey asked what women were doing with the leisure time created under the NRA.

"We found in New York City," Mr Gimbel said, "25 per cent of those who now have more leisure time spend it loafing around the house. Only 12 per cent spend this extra time in more housework."

SENTENCE BADGER GRADUATE.

Laporte, Ind., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Russell M. Lincoln, 38, Los Angeles, was today sentenced to three months on the state penal farm by City Judge William Bliss for issuing fraudulent checks. Lincoln is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and holds a doctor of philosophy degree. He pleaded guilty.

Commissar Litvinov Predicts 'Deepening' of U. S. Relations

MOSCOW, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A "further deepening" of relations between the United States and soviet Russia in the cause of peace was predicted today by Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov.

Before the congress of the all-union central executive committee, Litvinov reported on his recent talks with President Roosevelt that led to recognition of the soviet government by the United States, which he described as the surrender of the last fortress on the capitalistic anti-soviet front.

"Having entered into contact with us," the commissar told his 400 listeners, "America immediately found differences on a national or state scale between herself and us to be non-existent and that debatable questions were easy to settle.

"No Sacrifice by Either Side."

"More than that, being herself interested in the maintenance of peace, America saw in a contact with our union a powerful factor for the maintenance of that peace, and correspondingly valued coöperation with us in that direction.

"We on our side also value the establishment of relations with America because of the importance of that event in the cause of peace.

"We can also note that we succeeded in the present case to maintain completely unviolated the basic principles which we have consistently carried out in renewing relations with capitalist countries.

"The absence of any sacrifices on both sides is to no small extent a guarantee of further deepening relations.

"The frank exchange of opinions of Mr. Roosevelt and myself convinced us both of the absolute possibility of closest relations between our countries.

Pays Tribute to Roosevelt.

"I must give due praise to the clear-sightedness of President Roosevelt in that soon after coming to power, and perhaps even before that, he became convinced of the uselessness of a further struggle against us on behalf of capitalists and of the benefit of free relations with us on behalf of American interests and in the interest of international peace."

Litvinov was clothed in a black Russian blouse buttoned up around his neck and gave the appearance of a clergyman in his pulpit.

Upon his entrance into the parliamentary hall of the Kremlin Employés' club, the members were galvanized to active interest and those of the central executive committee—the soviet parliament—who were outside quickly returned to hear the commissar's report.

Litvinov maintained that there are no obstacles toward the resumption of friendly relations between Russia and Germany and Japan, provided they abandoned what he called hostile designs on the soviet union.

Litvinov said a genuine sentiment in favor of peace now prevails within the league of nations.

wrongful expenditures to the attention of the President and the public.

NRA Changes Planned.

The President revealed at today's conference with newspaper men that he was considering means of remedying two defects in the administration of the NRA. One was to afford protection to small business men, who are in danger of being snuffed out by the operation of codes drawn and administered chiefly by the so-called "big business" men.

The other defect pointed out by the President was that an idea has gone over the land that the rigors of the Sherman anti-trust act have been relaxed or suspended.

Senator Robert E. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] today changed his original plan to resign from the chairmanship of the national labor board at the opening of congress next Wednesday, and will serve indefinitely in that post. The announcement on behalf of Senator Wagner came soon after Marvin H. McIntyre, assistant secretary to the President, had stated that the senator had notified the President he would not drop his labor mediation work until a suitable successor could be found.

The NRA problems mentioned by the President were discussed at a conference he held this afternoon with Senators William E. Borah [Rad., Idaho] and Gerald P. Nye [Rad., N. D.].

TERRY DRUGGAN SUED FOR $600,000 TAXES BY U. S.

Terry Druggan, who is serving a sentence of two and one-half years in Atlanta penitentiary on a charge of income tax fraud, was named defendant yesterday in the praecipe of a suit for $600,000. The suit was filed by the United States attorney in the District court.

Assistant United States Attorney William J. Duiker, who is in charge, said that Druggan owes the government $267,702.54 in taxes for 1922, 1923, and 1924 to which interest and penalties are to be added. While the praecipe listed the debt as $600,000, the prosecutor said that the declaration would fix the sum at about $400,000.

Notice of the suit was served on Druggan at the prison. His prison term is to expire next spring.

17 TNT CHIEFS ARE INDICTED ON RACKET CHARGES

35 Others Are Named as Co-conspirators.

Investigation of the affairs of the Trucking and Transportation exchange, racketeer organization which exacted $500,000 yearly in tribute from Chicago business men, terminated yesterday with the return of indictments charging seventeen defendants with conspiracy to boycott coal dealers, excavators, and contractors by extortion, strikes and intimidation. The exchange is known in business and labor circles as T-N-T.

Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan, before whom the indictments were returned, set bond of $10,000 for each of the defendants and fixed Jan. 3 as the date for their arraignment. Eleven of the defendants have already been arrested. Police were ordered to search for the other six.

The defendants include William [Three Fingered Jack] White and Marcus [Studdy] Looney, long identified with labor rackets; John Bransfield, head of the contracting firm bearing his name, and leaders in the racket ridden teamsters' unions and affiliated trade associations.

35 Co-Conspirators Named.

Also named in the indictment were 35 "co-conspirators" against whom no punishable crime was charged. Attachés of the state's attorney's office refused to comment on the reason for the inclusion of these names, but it was said that the co-conspirators represented "hair-line" cases which would be difficult to prosecute. It was also said that 35 additional defendants might prevent a speedy trial.

The indictment culminated months of secret investigation of the activities of the officers of the Trucking and Transportation exchange among its victims by police, federal officials, and the state's attorney's men.

Break Power of T-N-T.

Officials expressed the belief that the power of the organization was broken last May when 108 of the 200 coal yards of the city were closed by a strike of coal hikers. It was charged that T-N-T, then headed by Murray Humphries, fugitive public enemy, inspired the strike to force the Chicago Coal Merchants' association to join the T-N-T. Energetic action by Mayor Kelly broke the strike within a few days.

For weeks after that police kept members and officials of T-N-T on the run, arresting them, raiding their offices, and breaking up their meetings. The investigation leading to the present indictments was started when it was reported that the organization was regaining some of its lost power.

List of Those Indicted.

Those named in the indictments:

CHARLES J. WILSON, secretary and treasurer of T-N-T and former president of the Chicago Truck Owners' association, its predecessor.

WILLIAM [THREE FINGERED JACK] WHITE, successor to the late George [Red] Barker in controlling T-N-T.

THOMAS C. SULLIVAN, brother-in-law of Barker, connected with local 731 of Excavating and Shovel Teamsters' union, and also with the Chicago Truck Owners' association as well as lessee of offices of so-called Crime Inc., at 1 North La Salle street, which was raided by police on Nov. 1, 1932.

SAM ALEX, business agent and muscle man for local 731 of the Excavators' and Asphalt Teamsters' union.

JOHN STEFFEN, former president of Associated Contractors, Inc., and former secretary of the Engineering Service corporation.

JOHN BAGGOT, secretary treasurer and business agent of local 782, General Teamsters' union of Maywood.

The indictment, which contained 15 general counts of conspiracy, names more co-conspirators than it does defendants. The indictment lists 35 co-conspirators, among them contractors, coal dealers, union officials, and union workmen. Although they are charged with being in a conspiracy with the defendants they are not charged under the law with any crime. Among those named are:

The eleven defendants who have been arrested have been released on bond. The six sought by police are Alex, Maloney, Steffen, Palumbo, Sullivan, and White.

The indictments showed that the grand jury heard 342 witnesses, a majority of whom were contractors and coal dealers. Among them were W. J. Newman, John Griffith, Joseph Best, Andrew Metzger, Oliver M. Holliday, Michael Ready, J. Russell Clark, and Alex J. Zruecker.

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt headed the list of city officials who testified. Others were George Donoghue, superintendent of the south parks, and James J. Butler, commissioner of streets.

Charge Boycott Plot.

The indictments contain general counts of conspiracy to boycott coal dealers, excavators, dealers in coal, black dirt, and building materials by calling strikes of the workmen. Some of the counts also charge that the defendants obtained large sums of money from the various contractors by forcing them to join T-N-T, the Associated Contractors, Inc., and the Engineering Service corporation.

One count of the indictment charges that there was a conspiracy in the excavating business to force the work of municipal bodies—cities and parks—into the hands of favored contractors who were members of the T. N. T. Another count charges conspiracy to do an illegal act by calling a strike on the city of Chicago and halting the removal of garbage and rubbish.

The last count charges a conspiracy to prevent excavators and pavers from employing chauffeurs, teamsters, engineers, and cement finishers unless engineers were hired from Local 150.

This count of the indictment names as victims of the conspiracy the Standard Paving company, James A. Aackley company, Milburn Brothers, Inc., and the Central Paving company.

Lily Pons and Husband Divorced

Decree in Paris

PARIS, Dec. 29.—Lily Pons, the Metropolitan opera's French star, was divorced from her husband, August Mesritz, by a decree of the Fourth chamber of the Seine tribunal, it was revealed today.

Paris had been hearing rumors of a rift between the singer and her Dutch husband, but, since Miss Pons kept insisting their separation was friendly, the divorce came as a surprise. The couple had been married seven years.

ASKS AMENDMENT FOR 19 MILLION RANDOLPH DEPOT

Amendment of the 1919 Illinois Central lake front ordinance by the city council to expedite the proposed construction of a $19,000,000 railway terminal at Randolph street and Michigan avenue was advocated yesterday by James Simpson, chairman of the Chicago Plan commission.

Mr. Simpson said the Illinois Central railway already was under contract with the city to build a new terminal large enough to house all railroads not using the North Western and Union stations, and his suggestion was that the council amend the ordinance by substituting Randolph street for Roosevelt road.

The $19,000,000 terminal was recommended in a report of the council committee on railway terminals two weeks ago.

Mr. Simpson, as head of the plan commission, recalled that two years ago he pointed out the striking advantages of the Grant park site from the standpoint of accessibility, efficiency, and economy. He also observed that the southern portion of the crowded loop district could expand after the existing "railroad terminal blight" had been removed from that area.

LOVING CONVICT WALKS OFF WHEN ROMANCE COOLS

A lovesick convict, serving a life term for murder, walked off the honor farm at the Joliet prison last night, presumably to find out why his sweetheart has stopped her visits to see him.

He is Joseph Jablonski, 31 years old. He has been in prison twelve years. He was sentenced on Nov. 4, 1921, for fatally shooting Albert Lawrence during a robbery in the latter's drug store at 1259 West 79th street.

Ever since his incarceration Jablonski has been visited periodically by his sweetheart, whose name is being shielded. These visits, it is said, were the most regular events in his life. Then suddenly, a few days before Thanksgiving, the visits ceased. Since then Jablonski has been brooding. At 8:30 last night he disappeared. Prison officials think it is a case of love sickness.

SUBZERO WAVE BREAKS 14 YEAR MARK IN GOTHAM

Record Cold in Other U.S. Cities.

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Crackling cold vaporized the breath of New Yorkers awakening today to the coldest day the city has had in fourteen years.

The coldest day on record here was 6 below zero in December, 1917. Today was the coldest since Feb. 1, 1920, when the low was 3 below zero. It was the first time in five years that the city has had sub zero weather. Normal for the day is 32 degrees.

Three deaths directly attributable to the cold were listed by the police.

But New York was comparatively fortunate. Temperatures elsewhere in the state, all over New England, and all over eastern Canada were considerably lower. In many cities records that had stood for sixty years and more fell with the mercury.

64 Below in Ontario.

Boston, 17 degrees below zero, the coldest in the city's 63 years of recorded weather history; three deaths. Quebec, in Canada, 42 degrees below zero, coldest in sixty years. Owl's Head, the "ice box of the Adirondacks," 47 degrees below zero. Mount Washington, N. H., 46 degrees below zero and the wind at the peak blowing from 95 to 115 miles an hour. Malone, N. Y., 24 degrees below zero.

15 Dead in Canada.

Canada reported fifteen deaths due to the cold.

A thermometer on the observation balcony of the Empire State building, eighty-six floors above 5th avenue, showed 3 degrees below zero at 8 a. m. When the attendant went out at 9 o'clock for another reading, the thermometer burst.

Here in the city the ferries kept operating, for the lower bay was free of ice, but the White Star liner Georgia, with 150 passengers bound for England and Ireland, and the Red Star liner Pennland, bound for Antwerp and channel ports, were delayed more than an hour by the intense cold and by floating river ice.

TAX RECEIVER IS SOUGHT FOR 20 PROPERTIES

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $295,911, making a total of $98,264,648 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28. The days' collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the last four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
Dec. 29	$ 11,781	$ 31,269
Uncollected	15,814,558	42,210,176
	1930.	1931.
Dec. 29	$ 98,022	$ 154,839

The day's collections of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $11,866.

County Treasurer McDonough filed tax receivership petitions against 20 properties in the County court yesterday. The petitions, filed under the Kerner-Skarda act, seek to collect taxes totaling $52,487 for the years 1928, 1929, and 1930. Among the properties named is a building at 2401-09 West 63d street, which belongs to the estate of John Bain, former head of a chain of banks, who has been convicted on charges of conspiracy growing out of the collapse of the banks. The building, which formerly housed one of the banks, owes $10,889 in back taxes.

29 FLEE FROM ALABAMA PRISON; KILL 1, WOUND 3

Atmore, Ala., Dec. 29.—(AP)—A desperate band of Negro convicts, part of twenty-nine who escaped from the state prison farm near here early today, moved north tonight heavily armed after killing one man and wounding three others in their drive to freedom.

Seven Negro convicts, within half a mile of the scene of the break, killed Grover Kirby, a farmer, who, with another farmer named Parker, sought to check their flight. Parker is wounded.

Seizing shotguns and ammunition Kirby and Parker had obtained to halt the break, the convicts continued northward and three miles farther wounded Leon Fulmer and his 16 year old son.

Sheriff's deputies moved down from Monroeville to head them off and another posse moved behind them.

THIS DESCRIBES DESPERADOES OF DILLINGER GANG

If You See Any of These Men Call Police.

A man hunt, pressed by the federal government and the police of three states, is concentrated upon the capture—dead or alive—of an active, chestnut haired man of 31 years, who has a dimple in his chin, bushy chestnut eyebrows, a mustache, and hides his yellowish eyes beneath heavy brows.

This man is John Dillinger, killer, bank robber, and head of the gang of fugitive convict desperadoes who escaped from the Michigan City [Ind.] prison last Sept. 26. Since then the gangsters have run wild, killing policemen and robbing more than a dozen banks in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Indiana. Recently the police learned that all seven of the members of the band have sworn to die in battle rather than be captured alive.

Convicted of Store Robbery.

Dillinger is said to be a native of Grovetown, in Marshall county, Ind. In his youth he learned the trade of a machinist. In 1924 he was arrested and convicted of robbing a grocery in Grovetown and was sentenced to six to ten years in the penitentiary. While serving this sentence he met the other members of his present gang, and eventually, after his release early in 1932, he managed to smuggle into prison the Luger automatic pistols used by 10 of his former cellmates when they escaped.

As a result of the gang's recent bank robberies, Dillinger has amassed between $25,000 and $30,000 as his share of the loot. All of this, police say, he carries on his person in $1,000 bills. It is his aim, police were told by Edward Shouse, a former member of the gang, who was captured recently in Paris, Ill., to accumulate $100,000 and flee to South America.

Description of Desperado.

Dillinger is five feet seven inches tall and weighs about 153 pounds. His eyes, a tawny oat color, are his most unusual feature. Recently he has been wearing heavy spectacles. He has a half inch scar on the back of his left hand, a small scar on his upper lip, and a brown mole between his eyebrows.

Citizens who see this man should notify the nearest police station. Bulletins containing Dillinger's photographs and his Bertillion fingerprint classifications have been supplied to the police throughout the middle west.

Below are brief descriptions of other members of the Dillinger gang. These men are "kill crazy" as Shouse, the former band member, phrased it. They are cool and ruthless, according to police, and if they are recognized the police should be summoned immediately.

Known as Brains of Gang.

Harry Pierpont, 40 years old, a college graduate and engineer, is said to be the first lieutenant under Dillinger. He, too, is a native of a small village in central Indiana. Pierpont is regarded by police as the "brains" of the gang, and they point out that he is the one who is entrusted with negotiations for disposing of a quantity of stolen bonds in their possession. Pierpont is six feet one inch tall, weighs about 162 pounds and has light chestnut hair, and gray-blue eyes. He is handsome and said to be a dapper dresser. He has a one inch scar on the back of his head.

Dillinger's second in command is John Hamilton, 41 years old, is a frowning, chunky man with gray eyes, and dark hair. He is known as a "smooth" talker. The police say that when he shot and killed Sergt. Williams T. Shanley in a north side garage recently, Hamilton first convinced Shanley that he was an honest citizen. Hamilton drew his own gun after the policeman's suspicions had been lulled and his gun put away.

Hamilton, according to police, was born on an Indiana farm. He is five feet eight inches tall and weighs 160 pounds. At one time he was a carpenter, and it was to this occupation that he returned when he was sent to the Michigan City penitentiary for robbery. His index and middle fingers on his right hand have been amputated. On his left forearm is tattooed a heart with the initial "JH" within the outline.

Acquainted in Trial in 1932.

Best known to Chicago police of all the Dillinger gang members is Charley Makley, 50 years old, who has an alias, Charles McGray, on the books at the bureau of identification here. These books show that Makley was born in Ohio, and was a switchman employed in a railroad yard before he was arrested in 1922 on a charge of receiving stolen property. Although a quantity of women's dresses and scarfs which had been taken in a series of burglaries were found in his room he was found not guilty when tried.

However, in 1926, he was identified as one of a gang which robbed a bank at Testus, Mo., and later that same year he was captured and sentenced to 10 to 20 years in the Michigan City prison for robbery in Adams county, Indiana.

Chicago police still lack complete information concerning Russell Clark, Walter Detrick, and Joseph Fox, the other members of Dillinger's gang.

3 CHICAGOANS DIE AS CCC TRUCK GOES INTO DITCH

Harrisburg, Ill., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Three Chicagoans, members of the citizens' conservation corps, were killed this afternoon when a truck in which they were riding into Harrisburg from the camp at Hicks overturned in a ditch on route 34.

They were William J. O'Connor, 6347 South Seeley avenue; Jack Smith, and Anthony Sedro.

On the truck were thirteen other members of the corps, several of whom were hurt. The condition of one of them, Tony Russo, was said to be critical. All of the men on the truck arrived in the last few days from Fort Sheridan.

Conservation camp records at Fort Sheridan list a William J. O'Connor of 6347 South Seeley avenue; a John [Jack] Smith of 1463 Sherwood terrace, and an Anthony C. Fedro. Of 30,000 men who have passed through the camp, the home addresses of only twenty are not known.

U. S. TO OFFER NO LENIENCY TO MOE ROSENBERG

Go Ahead with Plans for Tax Trial.

Moe Rosenberg, former convict and west side political leader, will gain no recommendation from the federal prosecutor for leniency if he pleads guilty to the charge of defrauding the government of $65,000 in income tax payments. This was announced yesterday by members of the staff of United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green. Rosenberg, whose trial is scheduled for Tuesday in the court of Judge James H. Wilkerson, is said to be planning to admit his guilt.

There are four counts in the indictment covering income taxes for the years 1929 and 1930. Rosenberg may receive a maximum punishment of five years in the penitentiary and a fine of $10,000 on each count.

Report Rosenberg in New York.

Neither Rosenberg nor Prosecutor Green was in Chicago yesterday. Rosenberg was reported to be in New York, while the prosecutor remained in Washington to get the record of proceedings in the Rosenberg case there.

The government rejected an offer made by Rosenberg to settle the income tax case with a cash payment in Washington last Wednesday.

Meanwhile preparations for the trial went forward in Chicago despite persistent rumors that the defendant would plead guilty.

Witnesses for Government.

Among the government witnesses are bank clerks, bookkeepers, and government investigators who worked on the case. It was pointed out that if any of the expected spectacular disclosures as to Chicago political methods are forthcoming they will have to be introduced by Rosenberg.

The government is not interested in where Rosenberg's money came from, officials said, nor where it was spent. It was regarded as unlikely that Rosenberg would disclose the source of the $190,709 listed in the indictment as "income from other sources."

1,200 Civil Service Workers Riot in Paris; 200 Seized

PARIS, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Police tonight arrested 200 employes of gas and electric services who protested against civil service pay cuts recently voted by the chamber of deputies. Twelve hundred manifestants clashed with police in front of the historic city hall.

SERGEANT LANG WINS NEW TRIAL IN NITTI SHOOTING

State to Prosecute Him on Perjury Charge.

Harry Lang, former police sergeant, who was convicted by a jury of assault with a deadly weapon on Frank Nitti, gangster and public enemy, was granted a new trial yesterday by Judge Thomas J. Lynch of the Criminal court. The charge grew out of a police raid, led by Lang, on the loop headquarters of the gangster in December, 1932.

"From the evidence it would appear that all those in the office suite with two exceptions, were gangsters and gunmen, therefore dangerous," Judge Lynch said. "The policemen showed good judgment in having their guns drawn to protect themselves, notwithstanding the fact they had no warrants. Too many of our policemen have been killed by such dangerous persons.

Doubts Wilfull Assault.

"If police officers assigned to the detective bureau do not know ex-convicts, gangsters and hoodlums, who would know them? As the defendant was a police officer of the city of Chicago . . . I do not believe that the evidence in this case showed beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant did wilfully and maliciously make an assault on the person of Nitti."

Lang, on hearing the verdict, stepped forward to thank the judge.

"Don't thank me," Judge Lynch told him, "thank your good police record."

Representatives of the state announced that Lang would not be retried on the assault charge, but would be brought to trial on a charge of perjury growing out of testimony before the grand jury, which he later admitted to be false.

The perjury case was assigned immediately to Judge Harry B. Miller and a hearing set for Jan. 2, when preliminary motions will be argued.

Shoots Without Warning.

Lang told the grand jury that he shot in self-defense after the gangster had wounded him in the arm. Testimony at the trial showed that the detective shot the hoodlum without warning and then shot himself in the arm to make it appear that there had been a gun battle.

At a preliminary court appearance before his trial Lang was credited with saying that "if he was pushed too hard he would talk and wreck the Democratic party."

Rumor that Lang had been promised $15,000 by Ted Newberry, since slain, if he killed Nitti was heard by the grand jury that returned the assault and perjury indictments. Newberry, a north side gang leader, was found shot to death near Gary, Ind., three weeks after the Nitti shooting.

Gun Sentence Reversed.

The Appellate court yesterday granted a new trial to Charles Fischetti, former member of the Capone gang, who was sentenced to one year in the Bridewell and fined $200 for carrying concealed weapons. Fischetti was found guilty by a jury and sentenced by Municipal Judge Harold P. O'Connell.

At the trial of the case the defense attorney made a motion to suppress the evidence because Fischetti had been illegally searched. The judge denied the motion on the ground that the hoodlum had been seized on a vagrancy warrant issued by Judge John H. Lyle.

"From the plain letter of the statute and the decisions of the Supreme court, it is clear that in order to justify the arrest of Fischetti and the search and seizure, it was necessary for the prosecution to prove that vagrancy had, in fact, been committed, and this they failed to do," the Appellate court opinion held.

MANY TO SHARE IN BENEFITS OF HIGHER SILVER

Mining Company Stocks Are Widely Held.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Of all the benefits being ladled out by the federal government just now in the name of business recovery, an inquiry develops, none is going to be more widely shared than that going to the country's silver mining companies in the form of an extra price on silver bought for the government. The beneficiaries of the distribution are going to be numbered literally by the hundreds of thousands.

There are no American "silver kings" any more. The John W. Mackays, the Tabors, the James C. Floods, the James G. Fairs belong to a past generation and their "bonanza" mines to a bygone era. The big silver veins of the old time west have long since run dry and their "kingly" proprietors been succeeded by big smelting and refining corporations, owned by vast and constantly changing armies of shareholders.

No Vast Mine Exists.

Mining men lament that in all this vast and rich ore producing land no really big silver mine exists today. The 25,000,000 to 60,000,000 fine ounces of the white metal dug out of American soil annually comes in the form of mixed ore, generally with lead, copper, or zinc as its fellow ingredients.

The silver producing companies which succeeded the silver kings have thus become largely smelting and refining corporations in which any one with the market price of a common share may become a part owner. Thus the American Smelting and Refining company, which now heads the list of American producers with an output which this year will run around 15,000,000 fine ounces, is owned by some 20,000 shareholders—besides the Guggenheims—Simon and Murray, whose family name is most prominently associated with the company.

Ownership of the great Anaconda Copper company, probably second in point of domestic production is almost as large, while that of the Sunshine Mining company, operator of the largest exclusively silver producing properties left in the country, is generally believed in the absence of definite statistics to be even more widely held than either of them. This Idaho company has some 1,500,000 common shares of stock outstanding and the price of them varies from $1 to $1.50 a share, thus enabling most anybody to be a "silver king" of a sort in his own right

Guggenheim Interests Heavy.

Since owners of corporation shares are required to register their holdings with nobody except the company itself the major interest of the different concerns has long been the matter of no little speculation. It is generally known, of course, that the Guggenheims are heavily interested in American Smelting, that the estate of the late Thomas F. Ryan has rich holdings in Anaconda and that the stock of the United Verde company, one of the dozen biggest silver producing companies of the country, is held entirely by the family of the late United States Senator William A. Clarke of Montana.

Outside of a few names such as these, however, attempts to guess the personnel of the country's largest silver mine owners and thereby determine who is going to profit most substantially from the President's order authorizing the national treasury to pay 64½ cents an ounce for silver bought for the government, instead of the 45 cents or so that private buyers get it for, are open to wide speculation. For one thing not all of the shares owned by a wealthy individual or a corporation are registered as a rule in his or its name. The share ownership of the larger corporations is constantly shifting—changing hands from day to day on the stock exchange.

Ryan Estate Big Holder.

Of the 8,672,670 shares representing the ownership of the Anaconda company, opinion in Wall street inclines to the belief that the largest single block is still held in all probability by the Ryan estate.

Percy Rockefeller, C. F. Kelly, president of the corporation, and the National City bank are rated as being among the other topnotch shareholders of this corporation, which normally turns out from 8,000,000 to 9,000,000 fine ounces of silver. Charles E. Mitchell, former president of the National City bank, was long rated as a "big shot" in the affairs of the mining company, but in view of his income tax troubles with the government during the last year, the "street" does not pretend to guess how much of his holdings he still retains.

All of the Rockefellers are reported to be heavily interested in mines contributing to the country's silver output total, but just what companies enjoy their major investments along this line are matters of considerable guesswork. Gossip agrees that the names of the oil king, his son or Percy Rockefeller, to say nothing of the younger members of the family, may be found on the shareholder lists of almost any big mining company of the land.

Wall Street Names Numerous.

Big Wall street names are numerous among the shareholders of the Kennecott Copper company, another big silver producer. Charles Hayden, head of the big investment banking firm of Hayden, Stone & Co., is generally credited with heavy holdings in this company. George Whitney and Thomas Cochran, partners of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., are members of the Kennecott board of directors and are said to be large investors in the stock.

Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, widow of the late United States senator, who was a one time partner of Morgan & Co., is credited in the financial district with having a considerable part of the fortune left to her invested in this company.

Two Utah men, David Keith and T. F. Kearns, are the principal owners of the Silver King Coalition Mining properties, which grade among the first half dozen silver producing mines of the country. Mr. Keith is president of the company. Other "big silver" men of this group include M. J. Dailey and E. J. Kearns. The company's silver output is around 2,000,000 ounces a year.

Another Utah man who would rate at least as a baron in the silver industry is George Lambourne, chief owner and official head of the Park Utah company. This corporation back around 1926 was turning out 5,000,000 ounces or more a year of the white metal, but its production in later years has declined to around 2,000,000—due in a measure it is believed to the price of the metal, which averaged only 28 cents an ounce last year and part of this.

Several well known estates in addition to the Ryan and Clark properties are in a way for substantial enhancement from the administration's silver buying program. One of them is that of the late William Boyce Thompson, New York financier and philanthropist. Maj. Thompson left heavy holdings in the Newmont Mining company which has rich investments in the securities of silver producing companies not only of this country but abroad.

Lamont Large Shareholder.

Heirs of the late Walter Fitch—mainly members of his family—are the main owners of the Chief Consolidated Mining company properties, with an output ranging from 89,932 fine ounces last year to 4,025,792 in 1923. Other silver mine heirs of first importance include relatives of F. W. Bradley, California mining man, and E. J. Raddatz, who figured conspicuously as one of the silver experts consulted by President Hoover when the silver problem, so called, obtruded itself so prominently in government troubles in the early days of the depression. The Raddatz holdings are in the Tinctic Standard Mining company, which has been turning out from two million to five million ounces annually right through the big slump.

Arthur Curtiss James, the railroad man, and Thomas Lamont, Morgan partner, have an important part in the affairs of the Phelps-Dodge corporation by virtue of their large shareholdings. The biggest single block of stock of this concern, however, is believed to be that of Murray H. Dodge, one of the founders of the company. The Lewis S. Cates family are also heavily interested in these properties. There are 5,342,922 common shares of this corporation's corporate stock, however, and it is believed the smaller owners run high into the thousands.

Report Hearst Big Holder.

Robert Stanley, one of the big shots of International Nickel, is reputed to have an important voice in the management of various American silver producing companies, due to his large and varied shareholdings.

The big gold mine men of the country are, of course, much less numerous for the reason mainly that the gold mines are vastly fewer in number. The only really big domestic yellow metal mines, in fact, are those of the Homestake Mining company in the Black hills of South Dakota and those of the Alaska Juneau corporation in Alaska.

Wall street gossip credits William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, as one of the leading shareholders of this corporation. His father, the late George Hearst, had a large share of his fortune in the properties in the later years of his life.

Another large stockholder is Edward H. Clark, president of the company. Mr. Clark is also understood to have a fortune invested in the Cerro de Pasco company, the largest silver producing company of South America. Homestake shares have advanced in the last few months from $135 a share to $315.

Bernard Smith, noted Wall street speculator, has been largely interested in both gold and silver mining affairs for years and is credited with large holdings in various corporations in both fields. Alaska Juneau is said to be one of his special pets.

27 SENATORS OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR FREE COINAGE OF SILVER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—(AP)—An intensive campaign for remonetization of silver was assured today when 27 senators went on record for free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver.

Eighteen senators—14 Democrats, 3 Republicans, and 1 Farmer-Labor—attended a conference called by Senator Wheeler [Dem., Mont.], a 16 to 1 bimetallism advocate, and unanimously adopted the following resolution:

"We favor bi-metallism—the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver at a ratio to be established by law."

Nine other senators, eight Democrats and one Republican, sent word to the meeting they were for the proposition. Wheeler said he would introduce his bill for remonetization of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 with gold on the opening day of congress. He predicted the senate would approve the proposal and the house would follow suit if a vote could be obtained in that body.

AMERICAN ENVOY WORKS OUT PEACE PLAN FOR CUBA

Early Settlement Is Forecast.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Dec. 29.—Havana was confident today that a plan to settle Cuba's political strife had been reached as a result of conferences between Jefferson Caffery, President Roosevelt's personal representative, and government and opposition leaders.

For three nights a series of mysterious early morning parleys have been held aboard the American battleship Wyoming, anchored in Havana harbor, and yesterday Havana's foreign diplomatic corps attended a luncheon aboard ship which was officially designated as a "Christmas party."

Caffery Is Confident.

"Just what the solution will be I cannot say, but I feel sure it will be an accomplished fact," Caffery said today.

The solution, it is expected, will enable Cubans to adjust their political disputes and organize a representative government meriting United States' recognition.

"Mr. Caffery will solve the Cuban problem. In fact, government and opposition leaders have already accepted his plan in principle," declared Enrique Fernandez Medina, Uruguayan minister. "Mr. Caffery's thorough understanding of Latin American peculiarities, racial temperament, and conditions assures his success beforehand."

It is reliably learned that the Caffery plan provides for the lifting of martial law on Jan. 1 and restoration of civil authority on Jan. 3. All political prisoners, who now number more than 5,000, will be released the first week of January. The 450 army officers taken in the National hotel battle on Oct. 2 will be released progressively, the last by Feb. 1.

Plan New Constitution.

Reorganization of the government is scheduled to begin with the convocation of a constitutional assembly on April 1 to draft a new constitution and new electoral laws and order a census taken. On May 20, delegates representing all parties will choose another provisional president and President Ramon Grau Martin's régime will end, under the Caffery plan. National provincial and municipal elections are to be held Nov. 1, and the successful candidates will be installed May 20, 1935.

Whether the United States, in event Caffery's plan is accepted, will recognize the Grau régime pending a final settlement is the subject of great speculation. Most observers believe it will.

Six persons were critically injured and considerable property damage was done by five bombs which exploded in Havana since last midnight.

MME. TETRAZZINI WINS POINT IN BATTLE TO CONTROL HER FORTUNE

ROME, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Luisa Tetrazzini, one of Italy's greatest divas, may retain control of her fortune, estimated at $5,000,000, even though her young husband seeks to prevent her from managing her business affairs on the grounds that she dissipated large sums.

The tribunal of Rome today rejected a plea put forward by the husband, Pietro Vernati, who said the singer is mentally incapacitated to handle her fortune, and decided to hear her testimony within thirty days.

The court acted in a mood of sympathy for the diva, of whom Premier Mussolini once said, "She makes us believe in paradise." The tribunal, however, decided that the final sentence in the case must await "a direct and circumspect observation of Mme. Tetrazzini's personality."

Vernati filed suit last June seeking to prevent the singer from taking charge of her business affairs. In turn she charged Vernati with extortion in connection with his suit. Her counter-charge is now being examined by the penal court.

C. H. WEBER SUES TO STOP SALE OF STREETS OF PARIS

County Commissioner Charles H. Weber, who held the beer concession last summer in the Streets of Paris at the World's Fair, filed a bill for injunction yesterday in the Superior court to restrain Paris, Inc., from selling the concession.

It has been reported that a syndicate headed by State Senator Arthur Huebsch of Brookfield, was to buy the concession and that they would operate it themselves, granting no subconcessions as the present owners did last summer. Commissioner Weber charges that his contract for space in the Streets of Paris is worded to run "until November, 1933 or for the duration of the Fair." He charges that he spent $15,000 in fitting out his concession, and paid $90,000 in rent, and that his property rights would be invaded by the sale.

The bill was presented to Judge William J. Lindsay. He continued the matter to Jan. 10.

Girl, 9, Shoots Herself When Playing with Pistol

Isabelle Clements, 9 years old, was shot in the left cheek last night when she accidentally discharged a revolver belonging to her father, John Clements, a former railroad policeman, in their home at 6351 South Morgan street. The girl was playing with the weapon at the time. The bullet passed through the cheek and emerged from the right side of her neck. She was taken to the Englewood hospital.

West Lane of La Salle St. Bridge Closed for Month

The west lane of the La Salle street bridge was closed yesterday and will remain closed for a month while city workmen replace the west half of the wooden viaduct which forms the north approach of the bridge, extending from Kinzie street to the river. Both north and south traffic will be routed over the east lane of the bridge until the construction is finished.

WINDOW BANDITS STEAL 4 COATS.

Burglars early yesterday hurled an iron bar through a window of the Morris Sachs Clothing company store at 6638 South Halsted street and fled with four fur coats, valued at $800, which were on display.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Dec. 29.—French unemployment figures have shown a rapid increase in recent weeks. The number of persons listed on the official relief role, which was 227,000 at the end of September, reached 303,515 this week. This is 18,000 higher than last week. Last year at this time the total was 271,000. It is generally conceded that the number receiving unemployment aid falls far short of the number actually unemployed, which some experts estimate at five times greater.

MARINES FORM LANDING PARTY 'FLYING WEDGE'

Doesn't Square with "No Intervention."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Although President Roosevelt yesterday ruled out further armed interventions by the United States alone, a new "flying wedge" of marines has been created for the expressed purpose of improving the speed and mobility abroad of Uncle Sam's trouble shooters, it was learned today.

Temporary headquarters of the new fast combat force is at Quantico, Va., marine base closest to strife ridden Cuba, where the United States still has a specific obligation to intervene under the Platt amendment.

But at a minute's notice the headquarters may be transferred half way around the world to Honolulu, to New York, to any danger spot on the globe or be loaded aboard the flagship of either the Atlantic or Pacific fleet, the navy department explained today.

Matter of Concern.

Strengthening that arm of the military establishment which usually is used for interventions abroad just at a time when the President is proclaiming a new policy of nonintervention is regarded with particular interest here.

The continued obligation of the United States to intervene in Cuba under the Platt amendment is considered one reason for the new flying force. Moreover, under the policy enunciated by the President last night the United States will still be willing to intervene in conjunction with other American nations.

As many as 4,500 men, almost a third of the present marine corps strength of 15,000, may be mobilized into the new force if the need arises, the navy department explained. In no event will the force consist of fewer than 1,500 men. Its official name will be the "fleet marine force."

Cuts Red Tape.

It is now under the direct command of Brig. Gen. Charles H. Lyman of the marine corps. But the novel mobility of the new force arises from the fact that Gen. Lyman no longer gets his orders from the commandant of marines, Maj. Gen. Benjamin H. Fuller, but from the admiral of the fleet, who may send Gen. Lyman and his force any place at any time and call for the full 4,500 men if he wants to.

Previously the fleet had to request marines from the commandant of the corps when devil dogs were needed to settle some foreign squabble. Marine officials admitted that the new arrangement will cut red tape and set up a fast hitting, mobile force.

Creation of the flying wedge follows closely a request from the marine corps that its strength be increased by 2,000 men, bringing it up to 17,000. Both the moves tend to enhance the importance of the corps, although it might be expected to wane under a policy of nonintervention.

Latin Americans Cheer U. S. Policy of Non-Intervention

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The declaration of President Roosevelt that the United States is opposed to armed intervention was welcomed in Latin America today as confirmation of a promise by Secretary of State Cordell Hull that American nations need not fear United States interference during the present administration.

The most interested nations, however—notably Cuba, Haiti and Nicaragua—although they left the Pan-American conference at Montevideo convinced of President Roosevelt's good intentions, want the non-intervention principle codified into international law.

Thus, they believe, the United States would be deterred from reverting to a former policy with a change in administration. Experts at the Montevideo parley, at which Mr. Hull made the promise, admitted that such codification may take years.

U. S. Makes Reservations.

The United States itself, in signing a nonintervention resolution at the Pan-American gathering, made a reservation in its terms and required many definitions before it could be put down definitely on paper.

Carlos Cuadro Pazos, Nicaragua's delegate at Montevideo, spoke the Central American mind there when he expressed the most complete faith in President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull, but added that "they may pass tomorrow, whereupon nothing concrete would remain."

A dozen delegations cried, "Well said!"

Latin America regards Mr. Roosevelt in a more favorable light than any president in modern times, but awaits further evidence that his pronouncements indicate a fundamental change in the United States outlook toward it.

France Is Pleased.

PARIS, Dec. 29.—(AP)—France felt today that the United States is at its side in the Franco-German deadlock over arms.

Premier Camille Chautemps himself was so pleased with the speech last night of President Roosevelt regarding international coöperation and peace that he had Francois Detessan, under-secretary of foreign affairs, comment on it—an unusual procedure.

Newspapers generally took the same view, except the Nationalist organs, which defended the post-war treaty of Versailles and declared that America wants peace but is unwilling to take the responsibilities.

"His speech confirms and aids us in the position we have taken not to concede German rearmament," Detessan said.

"President Roosevelt says: 'You are right and, if I myself am not in the league, I believe in your principles and adopt them for myself.'

"I cannot imagine more encouraging words. It was a great satisfaction to hear him renew the declaration he made to former Premier Herriot regarding arms supervision."

Germany Welcomes Statement.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 29.—President Roosevelt's speech last night finds the most cordial reception in German official circles and the press, which claim its broad lines coincide with the views of the German government, expressed in the simple word "equality."

A foreign office spokesman said "Mr. Roosevelt's thoughts about security and disarmament show present day America is far off from the ill famed Geneva spirit."

The Tageblatt said: "It is interesting that President Roosevelt recognized the right of each nation to guard its frontiers by fortresses—Germany's frontiers are bare."

Britain Is Cheered by Speech.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 29. — President Roosevelt's speech last night was welcomed today by the British foreign office as entirely in line with British policy enunciated at Geneva and elsewhere.

Especially welcomed is his assurance of the United States' coöperation with the league of nations, although continuing outside the league.

The Roosevelt proposals received a varied but generally favorable reaction in the press.

The News-Chronicle and Daily Herald, liberal labor organs, enthusiastically applauded the address as providing a ray of hope for future disarmament.

"Not the least remarkable fact of Mr. Roosevelt's declaration is that it seems to have pleased both Germany and France," the News-Chronicle says, expressing the hope that "it may be the bridge to a real agreement."

Sees Way Out of Deadlock.

This sentiment was echoed by the Herald, which said "there is a possibility that the Roosevelt points can provide the way out of the present deadlock; that they can afford the basis for a new beginning of the disarmament conference."

The conservative Daily Telegraph is frankly skeptical, declaring the proposals make no greater impression now than when first put forward last May.

"The better part of the President's suggestions are based on the British draft convention and have already been adopted in principle by the conference," it said.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express is characteristically critical.

"Mr. Roosevelt, a vigorous and resolute national leader, does not amount to so much as an international leader," the Express asserts.

Studio Co-Workers Offer Blood for Sutherland

U. S. STATIONS DESTROYER OFF CHINA WAR ZONE

Ready to Protect Yankee Lives and Property.

FOOCHOW, China, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The United States destroyer Fulton anchored off Foochow today, ready to protect American lives and property.

The precaution was taken in event the National (Nanking) government's operations against the local rebel government assume proportions which might endanger the Americans here.

The majority of the 144 Americans living in Foochow and vicinity are safely domiciled on Nantai island in the south Min river. Thus far Nantai island has been free from attack by the Nanking bombing planes which have damaged Foochow.

Majority Are Missionaries.

The majority of the 67 Americans and 60 Filipinos in the Amoy district are quartered on Kulangsu island, which thus far also has been immune from bombing.

The majority of these Americans are missionaries identified with the American mission board—workers of the Seventh Day Adventists, Methodist Episcopal church, the Women's Foreign Missionary society, the American Reformed church and the Dutch Reformed church.

There also are a number of Catholic priests. The rest of the Americans are commercial representatives.

Scattered in various places in Fukien province, in which Foochow and Amoy are situated, are an additional 105 Americans, mostly missionaries, some of whom have come to port cities to avoid possible dangers in the interior, principally from Red depredations.

U. S. Consul Warns Government.

Americans here say they believed the Nanking government should have no difficulty in safeguarding Americans from the aerial bombing because most of them have taken refuge in the foreign quarter here and in Amoy. The foreign consulates, banks, and missions also are located in these quarters.

It was expected that the national government will heed the warnings conveyed to it by Consul General Willis Peck at Nanking respecting the security of United States citizens in the rebel area. All American consuls on the war affected areas have standing instructions to evacuate the Americans whenever the Chinese government shall give an advance notice of a bombing.

Beyond the safety of the lives of its nationals, the United States has no large interests in Fukien, which is an unfertile and poor province devoid of any special economic or commercial importance. The Chinese naval blockade of the province will not affect Americans, particularly because the United States has no shipping interests here.

FIND CONSUMERS CONSIDER 10C A FAIR MILK PRICE

De Paul "U" Survey Reveals Facts About Cost.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The majority of Chicago consumers consider ten cents a quart a fair price for milk, according to the results of a survey of 1,116 typical families this week by the junior and senior students in marketing classes of De Paul university college of commerce. The survey results were announced yesterday by L. M. McDermott, professor of marketing.

The present prevailing price, fixed by the government's milk code for this area, is 11 cents a quart, although some concerns are selling for 8 and 9 cents.

There were 448 families in the survey that believed 10 cents a quart is a fair price, 246 families voted for 9 cents, and 298 families 8 cents. Only 86 families favored 11 cents.

Price Important Factor.

The price was found by the survey to be the most important factor in stimulating milk consumption. There were 496 families who said a lower price would influence them most to increase their milk purchases. Improved quality was given as the main factor by 120 families, while 172 replied that company or new babies in the household would cause more milk to be purchased. Only 44 said baking or cooking would cause more buying and 50 said health was the prime motive.

When consumers were asked if the increase in fresh milk prices from 10 to 11 cents a quart on Nov. 1 had caused them to buy more canned milk, 601 families answered "no" and 288 families answered "yes." The survey showed that 348 families used some canned milks and 768 used none at all.

The average weekly purchase of fresh milk by the 186 families with 3 persons eating at home was found to be 7.56 quarts. The average family of five persons, of which there were 238, bought 13.85 quarts a week. Families with eight members bought 18 quarts. Several households, either boarding houses or where more than one family lived at the same address, bought from 24 to 68 quarts a week. One family of nine was found buying only a quart of fresh milk a week.

On the question of cutrate dairies, 330 families said they would not buy at the stores for lower prices, while 698 families would buy at 8 cents a quart.

Debate Price Cut.

Chicago milk distributors held meetings yesterday to determine the advisability of a general price cut early in January. The federal code has been abrogated by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace effective Sunday night.

Leaders in the organized milk industry were apprehensive yesterday over an impending "milk price war" next month because of the steady decrease in sales at 11 cents a quart. Officials of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union were standing pat on the vote of its members Tuesday night when they refused to accept a wage cut of $10 a quart asked by the milk companies.

The distributors complying with the price schedules in the government milk code were understood to be considering the advantages of cutting the retail price. Some of the smaller dairies were reported planning to cut retail prices next week and wage scales and prices to farmers as well. The milk companies also are reported to have discussed the possibility of selling bottled milk to chain stores at a price to permit them to sell 1 cent a quart under the delivered price, as a weapon of competition against the cut rate dairies.

'AAA MAY OFFER NEW DAIRY CODE TO DEALERS HERE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The farm adjustment administration, it was indicated today, may propose a new milk marketing agreement for Chicago to replace the one which becomes inoperative by order of Secretary Wallace on Monday.

Don Geyer, secretary of the Pure Milk association, conferred with officials of the AAA dairy section today, but denied that a new agreement had been suggested for the Chicago area. The conference, which was attended by nearly a dozen dairy leaders, was understood to have been called for the purpose of discussing the proposed national production control program for milk.

Geyer stated, however, that the Pure Milk association, Chicago producers' organization, has an open mind regarding milk marketing agreements, despite its demand that the one already in effect in Chicago be canceled. He declared he favors federal regulation of local milk markets, and said the Pure Milk association will "listen" to any proposal the AAA makes regarding a new pact for Chicago.

PORTO RICO MAY CALL TROOPS IN GASOLINE STRIKE

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Officials considered the advisability of calling out the National Guard to insure order as a strike and boycott for lower gasoline prices held the island in a firm grip today. Motor traffic in San Juan was virtually suspended as striking chauffeurs and consumers picketed streets. Efforts for a truce through a temporary reduction in the price of gasoline from 25 to 20 cents a gallon were rejected by the strikers.

Mrs. Henry W. Dooley, commissioner of immigration, who was injured when a rock was hurled into an automobile after she had passed a picket line yesterday, was said today to be recovering from shock.

Antiquated bull carts appeared in the streets of the capital today as stores sought to deliver orders. Many filling stations were boarded up as a precaution against possible attacks.

The boycott and strike followed charges that four big oil companies had reached an agreement to sell at a uniform retail price.

NEW MUNICIPAL COURT LAYOUT ROILS GUTKNECHT

Graber Is Assigned to Auto Theft Cases.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Stolen, 23; recovered, 53; stripped, 8 [from police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Thursday].

Municipal Judge Joseph A. Graber yesterday was assigned to sit in the newly created court which will deal solely with automobile theft cases. His assignment was announced by Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby, who also announced that he had reassigned Judge John Gutknecht to the Boys' court for another month.

As soon as the announcements were made Judge Gutknecht issued a statement charging that the Boys' court had been "emasculated" by the organization of the new court. He added that he would immediately demand that Judge Sonsteby transfer him from the Boys' court to a court where civil claims are heard. Judge Sonsteby was informed of Judge Gutknecht's statements later in the afternoon.

Willing to Transfer Gutknecht.

"If Judge Gutknecht really wants to leave the Boys' court I'll be glad to put him somewhere else," said Judge Sonsteby. "If a judge really dislikes any assignment he has we usually try to give him some other. However, Judge Gutknecht has not informed me that he wants to leave the Boys' court and so I reassigned him there for another month. I know no reason why he should not be there, but he can get away if he insists."

The new assignment of judges goes into effect next Tuesday. The new court, which will deal only with those persons charged with stealing or receiving stolen automobiles or stolen auto accessories, will be opened in the Criminal courts building at 26th street and California avenue. It will be a companion to the Municipal Felony court which also is being operated in the Criminal courts building.

Two Prosecutors Assigned.

The new court will have the cooperation of the state's attorney's office, two prosecutors having been assigned to represent the state. Criminal court judges also have promised their aid, and the prosecutors in the Criminal courts have been instructed to seek the punishment of offenders with sentences of one to twenty years, which is the statutory maximum.

In his statements yesterday Judge Gutknecht said that he had been "double crossed," "abused," and "pushed around." He asserted that severe punishment of youths convicted of stealing automobiles was not the proper method of halting thefts, and he asserted that the recent reports of the Chicago Crime commission which criticized his changing of charges and his leniency upon offenders, was "insincere."

Says Real Court is Needed.

"This town needs a real boys' court," said Judge Gutknecht. "I will not preside over any emasculated court. I am not going to stand by and see these boys railroaded to the penitentiary. I will go back to the civil courts with a certain amount of personal relief, and I never will return to the boys' court that is an emasculated one and a hollow mockery."

The new assignment of judges as announced by Judge Sonsteby will place Judge Harold T. O'Connell in the felony court, and Judge Jay A. Schiller, who has been sitting there, in a civil branch court. The new assignments also provide three municipal court judges to hear personal property tax suits which now are being filed in these courts by the state's attorney's staff. Judges Joseph H. McGarry, Eugene Holland, and Cecil Smith will sit in these courts. Judge McGarry will hear his cases in the city council chambers after Jan. 15.

Alleged Fences to Face Trial.

One of the first trials of alleged "fences" in the Criminal courts will be that of Abe and Isadore Poncher. The state charged that a stolen automobile which had been stripped was found in their possession. Both were indicted for receiving stolen property. Their trial is set for Jan. 17 before Judge Francis Allegretti.

Jury Exonerates Son Who Killed His Father

Frank Fron, 12 years old, of Hinsdale, who shot and killed his father, Ignatz, on Christmas morning to protect his mother, was exonerated yesterday by a coroner's jury. Testimony showed that Fron, a CWA worker, got a pay check for $15 on Christmas eve. He went to a tavern and returned home intoxicated. Early Christmas morning he quarreled with his wife and started to beat her. Frank then seized a .22 caliber rifle and shot him. The jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

BABY GIRL DOING WELL AFTER UNDERGOING AN OPERATION ON BRAIN

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 29.—(AP)—"The baby is doing very nicely. She should be ready to go home in two or three weeks."

Thus Dr. Walter E. Dandy, noted surgeon, tonight reported the probable success of the delicate brain operation he performed this morning on five months old Sue Trammell, flown 1,400 miles from Houston, Tex., to Baltimore, in what her parents believed to be a race with death.

"She came out of the ether all right and is taking her feeding nicely," the slow speaking surgeon, who has been frankly annoyed at the attention the case attracted, concluded.

This morning, when Sue went into the operating room, hospital attachés said that the baby's life depended upon the outcome. The "very dangerous" operation might kill her, they said but without it she certainly would die.

Two hours later attendants wheeled the baby back to her room. Dr. Dandy and his assistant, Dr. Paul A. Kunkel, issued the following statement:

"The operation may be termed successful. The obstruction which caused the hydrocephalous condition has been removed. The ultimate outcome of the operation, cannot, of course, be determined at this time."

2 ALLEGED AUTO THIEVES HELD TO GRAND JURY

Two men seized in connection with automobile thievery were held to the grand jury yesterday in bonds of $10,000 each by Magistrate Henry J. Sandusky in Cicero. Their alleged "fence" won a continuance to Jan. 8.

William Paris, 30 years old, 2750 South 58th court, Cicero, and William Boxdefer, 22, 1010 South Gunderson avenue, Oak Park, were those bound to the grand jury. Police said Paris was released from the prison at Stillwater, Minn., a year ago after serving five years for robbery. Police said both confessed auto thefts.

The alleged "fence" is Emil Vondra, owner of a wrecking yard in Maywood. He is charged with receiving stolen property. His bonds were fixed at $5,000.

LEARN WHAT HAPPENS TO BOYS OF REFORMATORY

Prosecutors Told of New Crime Control Plans.

New methods of dealing with the criminal occupied the attention of the state's attorneys of Illinois at their convention in the Palmer house yesterday.

A leading educator pleaded with the prosecutors to assist in modernizing the criminal code. Two judges outlined the new Illinois code, which will be presented at the next regular session of the legislature. A noted lawyer pleaded the case of the prisoner before the bar.

But a more startling message than that conveyed by any speaker was impressed upon the minds of the state's attorneys in the form of a large chart in the meeting room which revealed what happens to boys after they have served in an Illinois reform school. Upon the chart was a survey of the histories of 600 boys who had served terms at the St. Charles School for Boys. This survey furnished an indication of the gravity of the problem which confronts enforcers of the law in their dealings with criminals, and hinted also at the manner in which criminals are made.

Even veteran prosecutors who have aided in the imprisonment of thousands of criminals in the course of long careers confessed themselves stirred by the figures which revealed what happened to this small army of boys.

Boys' Histories Revealed.

Three hundred of the boys studied were from Cook county. They were in the school in the period between 1925 and 1930. Here is where the 300 are today:

One hundred and eighty-seven are in prisons or reformatories.

Eight have been shot and killed.

Two were electrocuted for murder.

Eighteen are on probation for various crimes.

One died with a criminal record.

Of the remainder, four are serving in the United States army; twelve are in hospitals for the mentally defective, and the whereabouts of 47 are unknown.

Creation of Institute Urged.

With this record in mind, the prosecutors listened first to Albert J. Harno, dean of the University of Illinois college of law, plead that the law avail itself to a greater degree of the discoveries of modern science.

He advocated the creation of a state medico-legal institute to aid police and county law enforcement officers in matters where science should be called in to aid the law. New methods of determining the sanity of persons who commit crimes, which take into account more than merely the ability to determine right from wrong, were also urged by Dean Harno.

Then Circuit Judge Harry Fisher spoke at length upon the proposed new criminal code for Illinois.

"The object of punishment will no longer be revenge," he declared. "The chief object will be to protect society. While we still tend to make the punishment fit the crime, this should no longer be our criminal philosophy. Our punishments should be based on the character of the individual and should be a treatment to fit him for a life in society."

Code to Classify Crimes.

An attempt is being made in the new criminal code, Judge Fisher said, to abolish the present distinction between felonies and misdemeanors. The new code will classify crimes according to their seriousness in five grades. Probation may be granted for all except the first grade, and there will be parole for all grades.

The classes of offenses, under the new code, will be:

1. Treason, murder, manslaughter, mayhem, rape, arson, use of explosives, attempted murder, robbery, and poisoning. Punishment for these offenses, except those punishable by death, is to be imprisonment for one year to life.

2. All other felonies and some misdemeanors when committed for the first time. Punishment is to be confinement in the county jail for a period not to exceed three years. These crimes would be transferred to the first grade upon the second offense.

3. Lesser misdemeanors such that punishment should be limited to one year. Raised to second grade when repeated and punishable by three years' imprisonment.

4. Offenses where punishment would be limited to six months' imprisonment.

5. Petty offenses, punishment to be limited to thirty days' incarceration.

Floyd E. Thompson, president of the Illinois State Bar association and former chief justice of the Illinois Supreme court, also discussed the proposed code and indicated that the state bar association would assist in securing its enactment into law.

GRANTED DIVORCE

MRS. IRENE PETERS.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

The story of a home broken up by bridge playing was related yesterday by Mrs. Irene S. Peters, 6956 Lowe avenue, to Judge Joseph Sabath in the Superior court, who granted her an uncontested divorce from Edward Peters on grounds of cruelty. On several occasions, Mrs. Peters related, she overbid her hand while playing with her husband as her partner, whereupon, she charged, he became enraged and threw his cards in her face. Her attorney, Norman Becker, told Judge Sabath that she did not wish alimony, but asked the custody of Edward Jr., 5 years old, which was granted her.

LAW TEACHERS DEBATE VALIDITY OF RECOVERY ACT

Hold It Constitutional as Emergency Measure.

Belief in the constitutionality of the National Recovery Act and the Agricultural Adjustment Act as temporary emergency legislation was expressed yesterday by leaders of the Association of American Law Schools at the thirty-first annual meeting at the Stevens hotel. As the basis of a permanent new economic system, however, possibilities of Supreme court approval were thought to be exceedingly slim unless the high court redefines the fundamental concepts of law developed by its past decisions.

Prof. Ray A. Brown of the University of Wisconsin cited wartime decisions of the Supreme court as precedents justifying the NRA as emergency legislation. He pointed out, however, that it is up to the court to determine what is an emergency, adding that "it seems that the people back of the New Deal are really trying out a new economic system, judging from statements of President Roosevelt."

Price Fixing Powers.

In doubting the constitutionality of the emergency measures as permanent measures Prof. Brown cited cases showing that price and wage fixing are not included in police powers of the federal government, according to Supreme court decisions.

Prof. Andrew Bruce of Northwestern university, who previously had expressed the opinion that the legislation would be declared unconstitutional, said he had his doubts that it would be brought to a test. "I suppose we will muddle through to the end, anyhow," he added.

The long time legality of the act was questioned by Prof. John A. Maguire of Harvard law school on the ground that processing taxes are to help a special class. He also concurred in the doubt expressed by several that the court would accept jurisdiction.

"It would be like the old time whirligig at an amusement park," Prof. Maguire said. "One individual might stay on with the help of sandpaper on his pants, but the majority would slide right out of court."

Praises Framers of Act.

Tribute was paid to the framers of the legislation by several law teachers. Prof. Maurice H. Merrill of the University of Nebraska said the point of judicial review was "beautifully taken care of" in making some administrative body, not subject to the courts, the court of first appeal. He said that the acts overstep in not providing judicial review of "administrative determinations of fact and of law."

Prof. Douglas Maggs of Duke university defended the legislation as a permanent measure. He called it "clearly constitutional" and declared it is well known that past decisions represent "preferences" of individual judges, and added that doctrine as well as decisions must be considered. Price fixing, he asserted, would be upheld on the doctrine of "public use."

Urges Fight on Crime.

Earle W. Evans of Wichita, Kas., president of the American Bar association, called upon law school faculties to assist the bar in its fight to overcome crime. He spoke at the evening meeting.

"We are making a belated effort to enlist all respectable lawyers in the campaign," said President Evans. "We have, in general, sat 110 per cent smug in our own goodness. Meanwhile the public has come to hold us responsible; we are charged in the newspaper with being the brains of crime. It may be unjust to lay this at our door, but it's there, and can you blame the public for its attitude when we know that we could have helped prevent present conditions. Any man who can help, and doesn't, is responsible.

Advises Public Utilities.

Utility management has the power to overcome public distrust of private operation and thus ward off the trend toward public operation by restoring confidence in state regulation. This view was set forth at a round table conference of public utilities and transportation in a joint paper by Irvin Rooks and Harry R. Booth, attorneys for the Illinois Commerce commission.

They urged consent to all reasonable public demands for lower rates, elimination of all non-essential holding companies and affiliates, general demonstration of primary interest in serving the public rather than in personal profit, and improvement of state regulation systems.

GERMANY SENDS HEADS OF RUINED TEXTILE COMPANY TO PRISON

BREMEN, Germany, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Gustav Karl and Heinz Lahusen, brothers, held responsible for the collapse of the giant Nordwolle textile firm of which they were the principal owners, were fined and sentenced to prison by a court here today.

Karl was given five years in prison and fined 50,000 marks [approximately $18,500]. Heinz was sentenced to 33 months' imprisonment and fined 20,000 marks [approximately $7,400].

The prosecutor had asked eight years in prison for Karl and five for Heinz. He also called for stiff fines and loss of civic rights for each. The brothers were charged with improper bookkeeping, breach of trust and fraud in connection with the collapse of the concern—a downfall which contributed to the bank crisis of 1931.

LA GUARDIA ASKS WIDE POWERS TO SLASH EXPENSES

Seeks Authority Similar to Roosevelt's.

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Mayor-Elect Fiorello H. La Guardia and his advisers have drawn up a fairly complete program for cutting city expenses, in connection with the reopening of the city budget, and the proposed enactment by the state legislature of an economy act giving the mayor powers similar to those given President Roosevelt by congress last spring.

While the text of the proposed economy act still is unavailable, the purposes of the act were outlined by persons close to the new administration.

Give Mayor Authority.

Reorganization of the pension funds.

Cutting down of useless police details.

Retirement of employés over 70 years old.

Reduction of all extravagant salaries.

Abolition of the municipal broadcasting station, WNYC.

Complete power to merge city departments, and abolish useless jobs.

In connection with the abolition of useless jobs, it was stated that preliminary surveys have indicated that 10,000 jobs can be cut out of the budget without any real impairment of city services.

The method to be followed will be for the power to be vested in the mayor, who would work through the director of the budget. The board of estimate would pass on the final economy program in the same manner that President Roosevelt's reorganization orders were submitted to congress for approval or rejection.

It was not ascertained whether the economy bill carried in it a time limit setting the length of the emergency period which it declares to be in existence. However, it was said that the administration hopes to be able to make some of the economies, such as the suspension of mandatory pay increases, for as short duration as possible.

City Employés Not "Goats."

It was pointed out that the new administration does not intend to make the same mistake that was made by Tammany, namely, imposition of new taxes before an economy program is put into effect.

The implication from this plainly was that if transit unification is effected, with the city subways on a self-supporting basis, that the city's civil service employés will not be continued as the "goats" in the situation.

In connection with the economy program outlined above, it was admitted that power to effect a good number of the reforms rests at the present time, in a general sense, with the board of estimate. However, numerous obstacles, technical in nature, mostly in the form of safeguards for civil employés, are in the way of those reforms, it was said, and for that reason the broad terms of the economy act are deemed necessary to rescue the city from impending financial disaster.

The bill, as a home rule measure, will resume a two-thirds vote in both houses of the legislature, but persons close to the La Guardia administration feel confident the legislature will grant the mayor the powers sought.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE HISTORY AND ECONOMICS OF A CHRISTMAS PRESENT.

Last summer THE TRIBUNE conducted an exhibition of its wares, past and present, for the visitors to the World's Fair. Among the former were photostats of famous TRIBUNE front pages.

First Keith Capron conceived the idea of collecting these into a section to present to the visitors. Next John McCutcheon was so impressed with this section that he said it should be furnished to all the readers of THE TRIBUNE. Then Edward Beck thought it would make a suitable Christmas present for them. When the section reached the circulation department, Saul Herschenhorn called it a great circulation feature, and Quin Ryan ballyhooed it over the air.

The consequence was that over 900,000 TRIBUNES were sold on Christmas day, more than 100,000 above any previous Christmas.

To print the supplement required sixteen page size engravings, thirty-two mats, and three hundred and eighty-four stereotypes.

This employed forty-seven men. Two additional presses were put to work running double for two shifts each, employing thirty-six men.

Because of the increased circulation nine more stereotypers and pressmen were employed to get out the regular edition.

Fifty-eight drivers, helpers, and mailing room employés were put to work to distribute the paper. The extra paper and other materials employed cost $8,509.68, most of which reached pay rolls. The newsdealers earned $1,000 or more that day.

Each advertiser received a hundred thousand more readers than he expected that day.

The total cost to THE TRIBUNE of this Christmas present was $9,912.29. This total does not include overhead and other cost factors which greatly increase the total.

These figures come from the auditing department, which wants to know how to charge them. THE TRIBUNE auditor, Mr. Deininger, is herewith instructed to charge them to Santa Claus.

A CHALLENGE FROM 100% NICHOLS.

President Nichols of the First National Bank of Englewood says he will not take the initiative toward joining the federal government's deposit guaranty plan. The money of his depositors, he says, is already as safe as it can be. Ninety-four cents of every dollar on deposit is backed by cash or government bonds and the other 6 cents are amply secured. He therefore has no use for the guaranty. If the government wants him to sign up, it will have to step out and get him.

Friends of sound banking in this country will hope that Mr. Nichols' challenge will be accepted and that the government will institute some kind of suit to force his bank into the guaranty system. That would give the courts an opportunity to view the guaranty act in proper perspective. No one questions the right of congress to regulate national banks, but this case would raise the question whether congress, in the course of its regulation, can penalize depositors in a good bank for the sake of less canny depositors in bad banks and at the same time penalize stockholders who had provided their bank with sound management for the benefit of stockholders in wildcat institutions. Of course, any suit testing the act might be expected to raise these issues, but a contest involving Mr. Nichols' institution would bring them out with extraordinary vividness.

BREAKS IN THE NET.

Twice in recent months THE TRIBUNE has been able to let some needed light into the administration of federal prisons. In August the pleasant conditions which were ameliorating the life of Terry Druggan at Leavenworth were exposed by THE TRIBUNE. Mr. Druggan, one of the most popular of our bootleggers, had been consigned to that place of durance in punishment for failing to share the profits of his enterprise with the federal treasury. But it was discovered and revealed that justice, in the guise of the prison administration, was tempering its stern decree. Mr. Druggan had taken a dwelling in the neighborhood of his prison where a lady friend was lodged and where he was able daily to enjoy her society by grace of prison authority. It was a notable verification of the adage, "Stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage."

Another beneficiary of our sometimes peculiar administration of justice is William Donovan, known as a confirmed and dangerous criminal. Although a perjury indictment against Donovan is now pending, he was paroled Nov. 21, on the ground that he had a good record in prison. Why a good record in prison weighs so heavily in the judgment of parole boards against very bad records out of prison we have understood but the public at large has not.

It is the alliance between crime and politics. This alliance is easily exposed in state politics but in the field of national politics is concealed by the full power of the federal government. The occasional disclosure is a true sample of an organized procedure.

TWO VIEWS OF FREEDOM OF THE PRESS.

At the instance of a high authority in Washington THE TRIBUNE prints on this page an editorial from the New York Evening Post on the freedom of the press and this is as good an occasion as any other to say something which has been needing statement. The large city newspapers have been blamed for opposition to the code. It has been denied, as it is in the Post editorial, that they are sincere in their defense of the freedom of opinion and expression. It is said that their real purpose is to escape regulations compelling fair treatment of labor.

The truth is that conditions of employment on metropolitan newspapers are and have been superior to anything contemplated by any code or any requirement of the planned society. This has been true for years, of both mechanical and editorial departments, true as to wages, hours, and security of tenure. The employés of metropolitan newspapers have suffered less from the hard times than the employés of any other large producing enterprise. The benefits which have accrued for years to employés of THE TRIBUNE have exceeded anything the planned society has taken into account. These are not only benefits of wages, hours, and permanence, but of insurance, sick relief with full pay, protection for health, profit sharing, and pensions on retirement.

To seek to create the impression that a metropolitan newspaper such as THE TRIBUNE operates a sweated industry is to seek to spread a falsehood. No code the planners could devise would be a half way satisfactory substitute for the provisions in effect here years before the planners marched on Washington. Many newspapers in smaller cities and towns may find the requirements of the code difficult. Some of them may be hard pushed to comply. Others may find it as easy as the metropolitan newspapers do.

In some industries the big fellow might not be displeased by government regulations which killed his smaller competitors. There is something of that note in the new deal already, but in the newspaper case the big fellows defending a constitutional right which is not a newspaper right, although so erroneously conceived, but a right of the people, are put out on the firing line and damned by the imputation of motives which do not animate them.

The people are asked to believe that the defense of an essential people's right is merely a defense of rotten labor conditions. Such an attack may be shrewd and, worse still, it may be effective. It might turn the people against themselves. The thing has happened before when liberties were in danger.

The assumption that no one has manipulation of opinion in mind when regulation of production is proposed is one THE TRIBUNE does not care to share. By and large, time in and time out, THE TRIBUNE prefers to rely on laws rather than on men. A wisely guided people will have the same preference.

The Other Side

"FREEDOM OF THE PRESS."

[New York Evening Post.]

Editorial comment on the newspaper code represents an unpleasant duty.

The Evening Post realizes that a generally high public regard for the newspaper business is to its own interest.

It would like to be proud of the profession.

The facts, however, cannot be ignored.

The newspaper industry is—

One of the few major businesses not yet under an NRA code.

The one which has made the most noise in asking others to "cooperate with the President," while doing as little as possible itself.

A group of pullback publishers have been haggling and quibbling over a code since last June. The finished product, finally patched together, ranks among the worst codes submitted under the National Industrial Recovery Act.

It contains no fixed minimum wages or maximum hours for newsmen. Minimums in other departments are as low as possible. Loopholes and exceptions are plentiful enough to make a farce even of the pitifully meager labor protection provided.

All this chiseling has been effected under the thin guise of "protecting the freedom of the press."

Newspapers that had, in the past, hesitated to take a stand on anything closer home than child marriage in Cuba or immorality in Timbuctoo suddenly began to worry about freedom of the press last summer.

This unexpected solicitude for a seldom exercised right coincided with the belief that, under NRA, newspapers were headed for a $15 minimum wage and a forty hour week.

Under the National Industrial Recovery Act violations of minimum wages and maximum hours can be punished with heavy fines.

Violation also can lead—theoretically—to imposition of presidential licenses whereby chiselers could be put out of business.

Actually the licensing power is given the President for one year only, while the act itself is for two years, and it is hardly likely to be used in the few months still left for exercise of that power.

Nervous Nellies seized on the licensing provision and set up a loud baying sound about freedom of the press.

A newspaper code, of course, would have nothing to do with the editorial or news aspects of the business, but only with the wages paid and the hours worked.

In the Post's opinion regulations as to wages and hours have no more to do with freedom of the press than regulations as to fire protection, elevator inspection or sanitation.

The fact that a newspaper could be put out of business if it insisted upon violating fire, elevator, health or existing special labor laws has nothing whatsoever to do with its freedom of expression.

Courts are available to see that these powers are not abused, and the National Industrial Recovery Act does not abolish the courts.

A clergyman can be arrested for passing a red light, or parking beside a fireplug, but this is hardly a menace to religious liberty.

Nor would a publisher's liability to pay certain minimum wages and observe certain maximum hours constitute a menace to freedom of the press.

Were these Nervous Nellies sincere, they would have drawn up a real code in return for the administration's expressed readiness to accept a reservation as to freedom of the press.

"Assured that our freedom of expression would never be endangered," these publishers would have told the public, "we are now ready to do our part for national recovery by paying decent wages and working our employés shorter hours."

"Freedom of the press" turns out to be another Tory red herring.

So that its own position cannot be misunderstood, the Post disavows any connection with the formulation of this hypocritical and evasive code.

And expresses regret that a glorious phrase, "freedom of the press," has been obscured by a large, dark dollar sign.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. W. J. C.

THOSE REDS over in Russia do some things very well, indeed. Moscow has ordered hit-and-run drivers to be stood up in front of a stone wall and shot by a firing squad. What we need in this country is a lot of good stone walls and a large number of firing squads. And no waiting for sunrise.

AND SO MANY of our very best hostesses are in great dread these days that they haven't got just exactly the proper glass for cocktails, this or that kind of wine, brandy, or whisky. Fear not, hostesses; we've had to drink bootleg hooch so long that we don't care now if you happen to serve the Burgundy in a Rhine wine glass or the brandy in a champagne glass. In fact, a good many of your guests would be very pleased if you threw the glasses into the alley and passed the drinks around in tin dippers or good old fashioned gourds. And what a hit the old oaken bucket would be for cocktails!

Men and music, noise and night,
Laughter, smoke and lapis light,
Frail girls dancing, smart new tunes,
Food and perfumes mingled fumes,
Popping corks and repartee,

Streaked with weary memory
Of the mob's persistency.

Men with clawing, clammy hands,
Cymbals, drums, in blasting bands,
Hard faced waiters, worldly wise,
Night Club tan, and bloodshot eyes;
Big parade of discontent,
Big parade of life, misspent;
Big parade that would forget

POOR SLEEPING CYCLIC PERSONALITY.

J. C. writes a letter about himself, of which the gist is as follows: For years he has been subject to fits of depression, during some of which he becomes an insomniac. He awakens profoundly depressed, becomes so upset over his inability to sleep that he cannot remain in bed. On occasions he gets up and walks for hours and then returns to bed to try to sleep.

Some attacks of depression come on gradually. Some start with a very unhappy dream from which he awakens and finds himself in the depths. He dreads losing his friends, money, and security and facing a hard and lonely future.

One is tempted to consider J. C. an insomniac who becomes so wrought up over his wakefulness that he is obsessed to walk. There are insomniacs who work themselves into a frenzy of restlessness because of inability to sleep, and a few of them cannot resist the obsession to get up and walk.

The treatment for that is training in calm, control, equanimity, and poise. It is a comparatively simple disorder and is overcome with comparative ease by those who have a moderate amount of intelligence and stability on which to build.

However, J. C. appears to have no trouble in sleeping except when he is in the depths. It seems likely that his trouble is more complicated and more difficult of control. Probably he has a cyclic personality and the sleep difficulty is a complication of one part of his cycle.

Persons with cyclic personalities go through periods of ups and downs. When they are in the up part of the cycle they feel very well and act accordingly. Their outlook on life is good. Some of them are pathologically optimistic, but that is quite unusual. When they leave the up period and start down they pass through a period in which they are about normal.

In their mental processes optimism and pessimism are just about properly balanced. Then down into the valley they go. Our dream thinking is of about the same pattern as our day thinking and when a man is pessimistic when awake his dreams are apt to reflect the same emotional state. Some of them are so like indigo that they kick the performer out of his sleep—and not infrequently out of bed as well.

Manic-depressive insanity is an end product of the cyclic personality. The very important thing to know is that this type of personality, left untrained, or subjected to great strain, is liable to develop into this type of insanity. The cyclic personality is a fairly definite emotional disorder, calls for a certain kind of mental and social training, and when this is properly carried out leads to no serious mental state. In fact, it is often possible to escape the torment of pessimism, pessimistic dreams, and the misery of melancholy.

A BAD HABIT.

Mrs. M. L. B. writes: I am a person of average intelligence, married, and 25 years old. I have had an abnormal craving for the last four years for starch and dirt. I do not like to swallow either of them, but I like to chew the starch, spit it out, chew hard pieces of dirt, and spit them out. I despise this habit that I have and want to rid myself of it. I have tried hard to do without these things, but it seems I can't live without chewing starch or dirt. I know that it is unhealthy and foolish for me to do this, but I can't seem to get away from it. I am normal and healthy otherwise. I am neat and clean with myself otherwise. I have just this one unusual craving. Please tell me what is wrong with me and what I can do to really break myself of this ugly habit. I have tried will power and determination, but it won't work.

REPLY.

Get your husband to whip you when you show inability to control yourself, so far as concerns this and other foolish things. If he will not, perhaps your father or mother will be willing to make up for some of their shortcomings when they were training you.

OIL OF WINTERGREEN.

G. E. R. writes:

1. Would it be of any benefit to take three drops of oil of wintergreen occasionally for almost any pain or ailment?
2. Would it be injurious to the system to take it?

REPLY.

1. I doubt it. If you want to take a salicylate preparation there are many on the market. Taking oil of wintergreen at best is a gamble.
2. Probably not if it was not overdone.

NONQUOTA VISA.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—[Friend of the People.]—My nephew in Germany, student of medicine, finished his first government examination in Germany. Can he come here as a student, or can he only come under the quota of immigrants? Can he take a position here later when he comes as a student? Can he be deported when he takes a position? How much money must he have before he comes? What other formalities have to be followed?

N. W.

The inquirer's nephew may make application to an American consul in Germany for a nonquota visa as a student. The consul will inform the nephew as to the showing of student status which it will be necessary to make, and the nephew should be guided thereby. Admission of aliens as nonquota students does not carry with it the right to remain in the United States beyond the period of their study here, but it is an entirely temporary admission limited to the duration of the studies.

The present regulations with respect to the taking of employment by nonquota students are that a student whose parents or relatives are financially able to support him, or who otherwise has sufficient income to cover expenses, will not be permitted to work here for wages or for board or lodging. An abandonment of student status carries with it the possibility of deportation from the United States.

There are no specific regulations requiring the possession of a given amount of money by applicants for admission as nonquota students, but a showing in that relation will undoubtedly be required by the American consulate to whom an application for visa is made.

CONTRACTS.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I signed an assignment of wages in 1929 with a furniture house. I am behind on payments, and wondered if the assignment was still good. 1. How long is an assignment good for? 2. Does it automatically renew itself each time a payment is made? 3. If not, does the furniture house have to get a judgment to enforce collection? 4. Would they be able to collect if the account was turned over to a collection company?

M. M. T.

1. The limitation period on written contracts is ten years, but the assignment of wages is not binding against wages earned in a new employment.
2. Yes.
3. In general a judgment is necessary in order to force anything through court proceedings.
4. It is a common practice to foreclose chattel mortgages without court proceedings.

NO LIABILITY HERE.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. May an employé of a chain store refuse a $20 bill in payment of a 75 cent purchase? 2. Is he liable in a civil suit? 3. Is the chain store corporation liable? A rule of the company will not allow him to keep over $20 available at any time for change.

J. K.

1. Yes.
2. No.
3. No. We do not understand how you could even ask the question whether the creditor would be liable to the debtor. At most, the tender may have some effect in giving the debtor a defense as to interest.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY NORMAN INGREY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile.—A twenty year experiment in state monopoly will be abandoned by the republic of Bolivia next month, according to an announcement by President Daniel Salamanca.

Salamanca said the tobacco monopoly, which was established just before the great war, had been the ruination of the industry and that its continuation would not be tolerated.

When instituted the state expected a yearly profit of about $5,000,000 from the monopoly. The president admitted, however, that in no single year had the monopoly produced more than $100,000 profit. Apart from that, domestic production had been stifled.

A new law introduced by the government will restore freedom of importation and competition in the industry. The state will derive its revenue from a stamp duty, which is promised to be moderate in order to give the tobacco industry a good start under better conditions.

The national tax collecting company's concession also runs out about the same time, but the government, although anxious not to renew it, is placed in a quandary by the fact that it recently accepted a loan of $500,000 from the company.

President Salamanca at the same time announced a new policy regarding tariffs. He said import duties had not worked out at all satisfactorily for the inland republic, its foreign trade having been gravely prejudiced.

"The government," he said, "is seriously considering the abolition of the import tariff. It has not given good results. In its place it proposes to seek an alliance with the principal domestic manufacturing industries granting them free imports in return for a share in their extra profits."

President Salamanca said he was confident that a profit sharing association with national industry would be much more remunerative for the state and predicted early legislation on these lines.

The president also made an indirect reference to the influence of the depreciated dollar on national political economy, suggesting that it was an easy matter to counterbalance the American move by allowing the Bolivian peso to drop still further.

On the other hand, the newspaper El Mercurio of Santiago is counseling the Chilean government to increase tariffs to save national industry from the new dollar "peril" rather than sacrifice the interests of the wage earning classes by depreciating domestic currency.

SILVER.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—Your editorial this morning on "Silver" was a needed and effective appraisal of President Roosevelt's recent order and clearly shows many of the claims now made in the extreme silver camp to be absurd. One statement only I find incredible—that when Shanghai silver coins are worth 64 cents an ounce in the United States the Chinese people can include Santa Claus among their gods because they "can then obtain half as much again in American goods as they now do in exchange for their present exports."

In this statement you have swallowed whole the most absurd argument of the silver senators. As you surely know the Chinese do not buy American goods with silver any more than the French or the Belgians buy our goods with gold, but with their own products—silk, tea, opium, etc. Since China actually imports silver every year on balance, it is obvious that an increase in the price of silver relative to other commodities would not facilitate Chinese purchase of American products but greatly hinder.

SECOND CALL.

Montello, Wis., Dec. 22.—In Webster's dictionary we find the following definition of socialism: "A political and economical theory of social reorganization, the essential feature of which is governmental control of economic activity to the end that competition shall give way to cooperation." If this theory does not coincide exactly with that of the present administration, then my powers of understanding are indeed limited.

The writer recently sent to your editorial rooms an article under the caption, "Wake Up, America! Wake Up!" The purpose in mind was to bring to the American people a realization of the operation they are now undergoing. The article has been ignored for more worthy subjects, such as "Filling In a Hole," etc.

As one of your most ardent readers and strongest admirers, the writer sincerely trusts that you have not already been put under censorship.

SALOONS AND SCHOOLS.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—To pay our patient, valuable public school teachers with alcohol license fees would be an insult. We are told that we must now educate the youth to drink alcoholic beverages with moderation. Yet if the teachers' salaries depend upon "tavern" license fees, any moderation taught by them might lessen the demand for such liquor and lessen the number of "taverns" and fees.

Better use these fees for support of the insane asylums, the new inebriate sanitariums, and the jails, or even to pay aldermen. Don't give our long suffering teachers any of this tainted money.

HOW THE RIOT STARTED.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—The writer who signs himself An American in yesterday's edition of the paper is under an erroneous impression when he refers to the west side riot of Dec. 17 as a Russian-Ukrainian battle. To be precisely correct it was a Ukrainian-communist conflict.

Impelled by their fanaticism, these communists, consisting of a variety of races, including native born Americans, attacked the marchers with no consideration for the women and children in the parade or the bystanders. Such animosity is possible only in an organization which pledges itself to the violent overthrow of all nations and creeds that are not in alliance with their ideas.

HISTORIC FRONT PAGES.

Oak Park, Ill., Dec. 27.—We are pleased to compliment THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on its "Sixteen Historic Pages." HEADLINES.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—I was very much impressed with the conservative headlines used in the historical souvenirs. On April 10, 1865, the surrender of Lee heading was confined to one column. On April 15, 1865, the terrible news of the President's assassination occupied only one column for its heading. The heading on Oct. 11, 1871, covering the destruction of Chicago by fire, was confined to one column. On April 16, 1898, the story of the blowing up of the Maine carried a two column heading.

Every morning when I refer to my paper there is a blatant heading screeching all the way across the front page in big black letters. The simplest little local matter is thus announced. This attempt to overwork adjectives and to make the trivial appear important day after day has its own reaction, and the gentlemen who were responsible for the one column headings of long ago are to be congratulated. Those today responsible for the reverse are certainly working overtime. For what? Cheap sensationalism!

I should certainly like to see THE TRIBUNE reform in this respect, as a real headline loses importance through your paper's daily repetition of prominent headlines over frequently unimportant news.

FROM W. A. DYCHE.

Evanston, Ill., Dec. 25.—Those reproduced issues of THE TRIBUNE were really great. From 1864 till the big fire, as a little tot I was around the northeast corner of Randolph and Dearborn streets much of the time, and much of my life after the big fire till 1900 was spent in this block. I can recall several of the business men and their stores which were advertised in the 1865 issue.

You did a great service from a historical viewpoint in republishing those editions.

INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE.

Wauwatosa, Wis., Dec. 26.—The historical supplement of your Christmas edition is not only interesting but instructive. In the field of social science these sixteen pages can be used in a variety of ways in the classroom. They serve as a wonderful résumé of the study of such great social phenomena as prohibition and of such great events as the civil and the world wars. In short, they give life and meaning to so many things which students of high school age regard as being of little or no use for study.

FRANCE STRIKES A NEW BLOW AT AMERICAN TRADE

Tightens Old Quotas and Sets Up New Ones.

PARIS, Dec. 29.—(AP)—France began heightening its trade wall today with new import quotas and taxes hitting at American apples, pears, and lard.

The United States, however, was understood to be exempt from a provision that three-fourths of the import allotments are reserved for countries favoring French exports.

This action was aimed principally at Germany and commercial quarters freely predicted a trade war between the two nations.

Americans, nevertheless, anxiously awaited announcement of new industrial contingents which were expected to affect a wide range on manufactured products including, possibly, automobiles.

Tighten Farm Quotas.

Agricultural quotas for the first three months of 1934 showed a tightening of restrictions on goods allowed to come into France, an extension of the quota system, and the taxation of import licenses.

When the share of each country is allotted the effect may involve concessions by utilizing three-fourths of the quotas for tariff bargaining and the limiting of new products permitted to be imported into France.

A new tax of 3½ cents a pound on apples and 5 cents a pound on pears threaten to make the cost of those products prohibitive. American interests said it would nullify a new wine agreement with Washington providing for mutual concessions on fruit and wines.

Lard, of which most comes from the United States, was subjected to a quota and taxed 2 1-3 cents a pound.

Quotas are Listed.

The apple and pear quota was fixed at 24,200 tons for the first quarter of 1934—an increase of 11,060 tons over the last quarter and 6,177 tons over the first quarter of 1933.

Lard, 1,826; suet, 253; margarines, 2,871; other animal fats, 885; vegetable oils, 6,545; vegetable fats, 280.

The oil cake quota was set at 35,000 tons.

The global quotas for meats, eggs, milk, and other products is generally higher than for the last quarter, but lower than for the first quarter of 1933.

Frozen Beef Quota Tripled.

The frozen beef quota was tripled to 1,650 tons, mainly for the army and navy; frozen mutton was raised to 1,650 tons from 1,210.

Other quotas are:

Mutton, 660 tons, compared to 495.

Condensed milk, 825 tons, compared to 261.

Oats, rye, and buckwheat are missing from the quotas, but corn is slightly increased to 33,000 tons and barley to 180,000 tons.

The government decided tonight to abolish the exchange surtax on imports from countries whose currencies have shown practical stability for at least a year. The surtax removal followed upon similar action on products from Great Britain two days ago.

Britain Pushes Pacts.

[Copyright: 1933: By the Associated Press.]

LONDON, Dec. 29.—Great Britain, seeking a stimulus to the lifeblood of her commerce—overseas trade—conducted commercial negotiations today with the United States, soviet Russia, and France.

Only liquor and agricultural products figure in the Anglo-American negotiations. These boil down roughly to a trading deal in which British liquor, American bacon and similar meat products form the chief stocks in trade.

Concurrent with official notification that France is dropping its 15 per cent surtax on British imports, the British board of trade announced that negotiations were beginning with that nation seeking a revamping of trade relations. These, it was said, were based on the treaty of 1882—a pact the British government now feels has outgrown its usefulness.

French conversations are expected to be started in London in February or March, with the visitors interested most in wines, silks and woolens, and the British most concerned in coal cotton fabrics, lace, and a variety of raw products.

Good progress has been made in negotiations for a temporary Anglo-soviet trade agreement, and these discussions have been transferred, at least for the time being, to Moscow.

Jap Trade Up 33%.

TOKIO, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A gain of 33 per cent over 1932 was shown in Japan's foreign trade in returns for 1933 published today as the government closed the year's trade ledgers for the new year holidays.

Japan, therefore, claimed to be leading the principal commercial nations by a wide margin along the highway of international trade recovery, her gains measuring the success of an intensive world-wide trade offensive in 1933 in which depreciated currency and low wage scales backed the enterprise of her manufacturers and merchants.

The 1933 figures show a total foreign trade of 3,677,000,000 yen, the largest since the last boom year, 1929. [The present value of the yen is about 30 cents.] Imports gained 33.7 per cent and exports 32.4 per cent.

Imports from America were worth 552,000,000 yen, including raw cotton valued at 334,000,000 yen. Exports to the United States aggregated 462,000,000 yen, including raw silk worth 328,000,000 yen.

ORDERS COUNTY EMPLOYES PAID FOR VACATION

Lists Possible Foreign Projects.

As a specific example of the opportunities for American manufacturers abroad under the program of THE TRIBUNE to take the lead in building up export trade, a letter addressed to this newspaper called attention yesterday to a single possible deal involving $400,000.

The communication was from A. J Alsdorf, who had written a previous letter praising the proposal for a concerted drive to bring foreign trade to the United States.

The matter of which he wrote on this second occasion was a proposal for the construction of a powerful broadcasting station for the Bulgarian government. The appropriation for the station is approximately 40 million Bulgarian levas. There are approximately 100 levas to the American dollar at the current rate of exchange.

Send Request for Bidders.

The request for the names of possible bidders came to the Chicago concern, the A. J. Alsdorf corporation, from the Societe General de Transactions Internationals, Sofia, Bulgaria.

"This concern [the Societe General de Transactions Internationals] is one of the largest suppliers to the Bulgarian government," wrote Mr. Alsdorf. "It recently closed contracts with that government for large quantities of copper and nickel for coin making purposes to the extent of 250,000,000 levas. This business was placed in Germany. The same concern also recently placed orders with an English company in London for 1,350,000,000 levas' worth of timber, enough for the government's needs for several years."

The writer said that his concern also was informed recently by a Swedish connection that the Swedish navy is now testing an American product "for the reconditioning of their entire navy."

Want Offers from America.

"Another associate of ours in Bombay," he continued, "has advised us that the railways of British India are anxious to receive offers from American concerns for the prevention of rust and the preservation of their railway tracks and equipment in that country.

"The ravages of saltpeter and the humidity in India present a serious problem for the proper maintenance of their rights of way."

Mr. Alsdorf said these were just samples of the inquiries now being received in Chicago from abroad.

WILMETTE FIRE CAPTAIN FOUND; BARES KIDNAPING

Capt. George Mailfald of the Wilmette fire department turned up last night at the home of a relative in Wauconda after comrades and deputy sheriffs had searched miles of Lake county highways in the belief that he had been frozen to death. The captain told a story of being kidnaped.

Capt. Mailfald, who is 42 years old and lives at 121 16th street, Wilmette, was last seen in his car near Half Day at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning, when it was about 16 degrees below zero. He had left the home of his brother-in-law, Arthur Krell, in Wauconda some hours before. He had been drinking, it was said. Wednesday afternoon his abandoned car was found. It was believed he had strayed away and become frozen. Thus a search was organized with dozens of men under Sheriff Lester Tiffany of Lake county participating.

Seen later in his home, Capt. Mailfald said that two men, one of them armed, kidnaped him after his car had become stalled. They forced him, he said, to drink whisky which evidently contained sleeping drugs. He remembered nothing until yesterday noon, according to his story, when he found himself wandering on the south side of Chicago. Capt. Mailfald said he had been robbed of $40, but with 10 cents left in his pockets he rode on the street cars until he reached the end of Milwaukee avenue. From there he hitch-hiked to Wauconda.

EARLE WYNEKOOP PAYS $75; AUTO CHARGE DROPPED

Earle Wynekoop won a dismissal from a charge of reckless driving before Judge Nuncio Bonelli in Traffic court yesterday when he agreed to pay $75 toward the doctor's bill of Frank McGovern, 9 years old, whom he was accused of running down.

That the Wynekoop family has not yet collected any of the $12,000 insurance Earle's mother carried on his slain wife, Rheta, seemed indicated when Earle's attorney, Frank J. Tyrrell, pleaded his client's inability to produce the $100 settlement the McGovern family demanded.

YOUTH GIVEN YEAR.

MINNESOTA HOUSE PASSES RUM CONTROL BILL; LOCAL OPTION

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The Minnesota house today passed a liquor control bill providing for a system of sales safeguarded by local option. The vote was 78 to 43.

Reversing itself after bitter debate, the house made provision for restaurants in first, second, and third class cities to sell liquor by the drink. It also allows package sales in general food stores in first class cities.

Liquor by the drink could be sold in villages, boroughs, or fourth class cities only in municipal saloons or hotels and clubs. Hotels and clubs also may sell liquor by the drink in all cities of other classifications.

DISBURSEMENTS OF PWA MONEY PROVE DRIBBLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Actual cash disbursements under the public works easy money fund continue to be a comparative driblet, treasury department accounts revealed today, although Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes announced yesterday that all of the 3 billion 300 millions had been doled out in allotments.

At the same time Secretary Ickes today revealed that only between 750,000 and a million men had been reemployed on strictly public works projects, while the recently launched civil works program has returned four million to pay rolls.

Cash payments under public works allotments aggregate less than 285 million dollars, less than a tenth of the money allotted thus far, the treasury department's books show.

Of this amount 72 millions has gone for civil works, leaving a little more than 213 millions for strictly public works expenditures. Of this PWA total 166 million dollars has been spent by the federal government itself and the rest by states and cities to which the public works has given easy money.

Very few nonfederal borrowers began drawing down any of their easy money allotments until this month, the treasury's books show. Secretary Ickes recently censured local authorities for not getting work under way more rapidly and threatened to rescind the allotments unless reemployment was speeded.

YOUTH IS FOUND MYSTERIOUSLY INJURED IN CLUB

Abraham Epstein, 19 years old, who gave as one of his addresses the home of former Municipal Judge Joseph W. Schulman, 1244 Independence boulevard, was found unconscious from a head injury in the Wampus Athletic club rooms at 2328 West 18th street last night. Police made the discovery after receiving a report of a commotion in the place.

A revolver containing one discharged cartridge was found beside him. Epstein was taken to the county hospital. After a while he regained consciousness long enough to say he hurt his head when he fell against a stove in the clubrooms. He said he knew nothing about the revolver.

Police said the head wound was not made by a bullet. They said that Epstein's real address is 1114 South Keeler avenue, but that he has stayed considerably at the former judge's home because he is a schoolmate of the latter's son, Norman, in the John Marshall High school.

Save Lives by Jumping When Roadhouse Burns

The Antler inn, a roadhouse on the Barrington highway, one mile east of Dundee, was burned to the ground by fire of undetermined origin last night. Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hormann, owners of the place, were forced to leap from the second floor when they were trapped by flames. They jumped into a bank of snow, which broke their fall. Mrs. Hormann was injured, however. The loss is estimated at more than $10,000.

WOMEN FLYERS MAY STAY ALOFT ANOTHER DAY

Pilots in Good Spirits as Hours Roll By.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Through thunder, fog, and brilliant sunshine Frances Marsalis and Helen Richey continued to fly today to build a new refueling endurance record for women.

They were in their tenth day aloft as they completed their last refueling contact of the day and received sufficient fuel to take them well into tomorrow.

"We could land tomorrow or Sunday," Mrs. Marsalis said in a note dropped to the ground shortly before they entered the tenth day at 1:03 p. m. and nineteen hours after they had broken the previous record of eight days four hours and five minutes.

"Helen and I both feel swell today," she continued.

She attributed their recovery from the weariness and exhaustion that at times before the record was broken threatened the success of the flight "perhaps to the excitement of breaking the record and banging up a new one."

In Gay Spirits, They Say.

"We are in gay spirits—perhaps this is due to the Florida climate. Anyway, we don't seem like two people who have just spent the busy and fatiguing nine days that we have."

They rejoiced at the record breaking in a moonlight that bathed their plane in silver until nearly four this morning, when it descended—Mrs. Marsalis characterized the moon as "the third member of the crew"—and a dense ground fog rolled in.

The airport was blotted from view, but the tips of the tallest buildings of the downtown section remained in sight of the flyers. Then thunderheads began to burst around them and seemed to be hemming them in.

Dodge Thunderheads.

"This gave us an uncomfortable time," she wrote. "I flew hours watching thunderheads over the everglades. They never quite crossed our path, so they proved a diversion rather than a menace."

However, in an earlier note she said the fog and lightning had her "considerably worried" for a time.

Continuing in her afternoon message, Mrs. Marsalis asked that the ground workers "Please hunt me up some good weather reports. The weather at 5 a. m. today looked terrible. Never have seen it so threatening. The worst since the flight started."

Mrs. Marsalis was co-holder of the record broken last night, establishing it with Mrs. Louise Thaden over Valley Stream, L. I., in 1932.

VOTE HEARING IS DELAYED ON McKINLEY'S PLEA

Continuance to Jan. 5 Is Granted by Jarecki.

The hearing on the petition of Charles F. McKinley, former municipal judge, who is contesting the election of Judge George V. McIntyre on Nov. 4, 1930, was continued yesterday by County Judge Jarecki at the insistence of McKinley.

McKinley recently filed a petition in the state Supreme court, asking that the high court order Judge Jarecki to expedite the hearing and charging that the judge had been dilatory in conducting it. Judge Jarecki filed an answer, denying that he has delayed the case, and pointing out that the last four years have seen an enormous burden of tax litigation in his court, and that he considered it his first duty to dispose of tax objections to increase the flow of taxes to revenue starved local governments.

Goes Ahead With Hearing.

Judge Jarecki did not wait for the Supreme court to dispose of the mandamus petition. He held a hearing Thursday, and the principals and their attorneys in the case were to appear before him yesterday for arguments on one point of the case.

"I'm willing to go ahead with this case right now," said Judge Jarecki.

"I can't do it," said McKinley.

"Well," said Judge Jarecki, "I'll put it over to 2 o'clock for you."

"I'm engaged in the federal court," said McKinley.

Cites McKinley's Petition.

"In Mr. McKinley's petition for mandamus in the Supreme court," said Attorney Cornelius J. Harrington, representing Judge McIntyre, "he said only three precincts had to be counted, and he could finish up in half a day. Since then several full days have been taken up, and I think it would be a courtesy to the court if he filed an amended petition in the Supreme court setting forth the fact that he has another case to try."

"I have important tax cases pending, involving hundreds of thousands of dollars," said Judge Jarecki. "I'll have to continue this case until Jan. 5 if we can't go ahead today."

McKinley and Judge McIntyre both agreed to the continuance.

Plane Pilot Found Dead; Suspect Sedative Drug

Allen Becker, 32 years old, an airplane pilot, was found dead yesterday in his room at 1227 North Dearborn street. He formerly was a part owner of the Edgewater Beach Flying club, now out of business. Mrs. Sarah Smith, the landlady, told police she believed Becker had been in the habit of taking sedatives and that an overdose of these might have caused death. A superficial medical examination indicated that possibility.

NEW FLIGHTS IN PLANS OF "FLYING GRANDMOTHER"

Mrs. Peter Holland, "flying grandmother," 74 years old, who departed as a passenger on the Graf Zeppelin's flight from A Century of Progress Exposition to Germany last summer without previously revealing her plans to her family, informed her kinfolk on her return here this week that her travels have just begun. She makes her home with a daughter, Mrs. J. W. Young, 1548 East 61st street.

Traveling between 25,000 and 30,000 miles, she said, has just whetted her appetite for more travel. While in Europe, from where she returned on the Bremen, landing in New York Dec. 22, the "flying grandmother" traveled by air whenever possible. She visited her girlhood home in Norway and saw her remaining sisters and brothers living there.

"Mother is modest," one daughter said. "But another passenger on the Zeppelin who recently returned to Chicago said mother was the life of the party on the way to Europe. Mother admitted that wherever she went in Europe a good deal of attention was paid her, and that she had an awfully good time. We don't know when she'll start out again now; she won't tell us as she thinks we are too conservative and might disapprove."

CHARGE IS DISMISSED.

Municipal Judge Frederick W. Elliott yesterday dismissed a charge of assault with a deadly weapon against Walter Maciejewski, 27 years old, 2511 North Campbell avenue, when Henry Stack, 1803 West Division street, whom Maciejewski shot on Dec. 22, testified that the shooting was accidental.

SPRINGS ON AUTO TUNED TO HUMAN BODY VIBRATIONS

Greatly Added Comfort Is Objective.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The periodicity of oscillation—that's something you may or may not hear or understand about the new stream lined 1934 models to be announced by the Chrysler corporation with the opening of the National Automobile show in New York next week. The phrase sounds like it might have something to do with the frequency of kisses in the back seat, but it's really describing the spring suspension on America's first tear dropped stock cars, the Chryslers and the De Sotos.

"The periodicity of oscillation," said Carl Breer, chief engineer of the Chrysler corporation, while eating his salad at a luncheon of De Soto dealers this afternoon, "is a rather new subject for research.

Humans Have Comfort Rate.

"We know that the shock absorbing system of the human body—the muscles, the cartileges, the tendons and the membranes — vibrate at about ninety-five cycles per minute when a man is strolling at two and a half or three miles an hour. When he walks faster, these vibrations increase causing a fatigue out of proportion to the additional energy expended in motion.

"In riding a vehicle with vibration cycles faster than ninety-five per second, man likewise becomes fatigued. If the oscillations become rapid enough he gets the jitters. If the cycles become excessively slow, as when riding an ocean liner, he becomes sick.

"The periodicity of modern automobiles has been about 120 to 130 cycles per minute. In the 1934 airflow models the periodicity is approximately the same as the rate to which the human body has been adjusted by evolution through thousands of years of walking at between two and a half and three miles an hour."

May Stimulate Recovery.

"That's just a detail of this improvement," he said. "The significant thing is that the introduction of true stream lining into automobile designs may become a national recovery act by private industry. If it sets a new style, as we believe it will, our competitors will join us in millions of dollars' worth of business stimulated by this pioneering.

"This is as significant in the motor transportation field as is the new production of fast and light stream lined coaches in the railroad field. It's creating new business.

"Thirty million folks who attended A Century of Progress saw and approved modern architecture. Magazines and newspapers have educated the public to an appreciation of aerodynamic engineering."

Position of Seats Changed.

Like the 1934 Chrysler models, the De Sotos have a broad and rounded front with headlights, fenders, and radiator grill in a single unit, wide front seats for three passengers, and roof and sides tapering to the rear.

The engine is over the front axle, so that both the front and the rear seats have been moved forward to cradled positions.

"The bareback rider in a circus," said Mr. Breer, "will sit comfortably near the horse's withers and start to bounce as she moves back to the horse's rump. You have the same principle in an automobile."

CITY TO HONOR IROQUOIS FIRE HEROES TODAY

30th Anniversary of Great Disaster.

The heroism of those who administered to the victims of the Iroquois fire, in which 575 persons lost their lives, will be commemorated today in Mercy day services in the city council chambers. The services will mark the 30th anniversary of the disaster which occurred on Dec. 30, 1903.

At the moment—3:32 p. m.—that the first smoke rolled from the theater building, Chief Fire Marshal Michael Corrigan, who turned in the original alarm, will press a button in the fire commissioner's office, setting off an alarm bell installed in the council chambers.

Speakers at the service will include Rabbi Jacob Singer, the Rev. John M. Handley of New York, who as a priest at old St. Mary's church helped Bishop Muldoon administer to the dying, and Marshal Corrigan.

Pay Tribute to Victims.

Tribute will be paid to the victims of the fire, to the police and firemen, the nurses, doctors and ministers who helped in the rescue work. Guest of honor at the service will be Fire Commissioner Seyferlich, Police Commissioner Allman, and Former Chief of Police Francis O'Neil, who as head of the police department entered the burning theater.

The fire in the Iroquois theater, one of the major disasters of Chicago history, occurred during a performance of "Mr. Bluebeard," starring the late Eddie Foy. Many of the victims died of suffocation when they were trampled in the rush for exits.

Starts During Second Act.

The fire started during the second act of the show while eight chorus men attired as Hussars and eight girls were singing "Let Us Swear by the Pale Moonlight."

Foy rushed out of his dressing room, clad only in his trousers and undershirt, and importuned the people to remain in their seats. As he spoke the flames spread in the stage scenery and the rush for the front entrance and other exits followed.

He was under the car when the motorman, Thomas Elward, brought it to a halt. But as Elward stepped down to the street James crawled from under the car, unharmed. He had fallen between the rails and remained flat as the front trucks rolled over him.

PRESS FREEDOM VITAL TO U. S., SAYS EDUCATOR

Sees No Need for Supervision.

Only through freedom of publication and interpretation can the press render its greatest service to the country, Dr. M. Lyle Spencer, former president of the University of Washington, told the American Association of Teachers of Journalism last night. He spoke at the annual banquet at the Hotel Sherman on "The Press and Our Economic Future."

Dr. Spencer approached the subject of freedom of the press from the viewpoint of a former dean of the University of Washington's journalism school. He declared that, "while banking, commerce, manufacture, and industry generally have shown such inherent weaknesses within their bodies that government has had to step in for protection of society, the newspaper profession has not evidenced such a need. It has governed itself."

Comes Through with Credit.

The defense of the press was prefaced by Dr. Spencer's assertion that in the financial breakdown of industry and local government "you will note that one of the great arms of both—the press—has come through with credit." It has been criticized for publishing too many stories of crime and allotting too much space to the sins of society, he said, "but you have yet to hear of an important editor who has besmirched his name or his profession by graft or robbery of the public, as have certain capitalists, governors, senators, and allegedly great industrial leaders.

"What is more," Dr. Spencer declared, "you have yet to hear of any great paper that has gone through the dregs of bankruptcy and receivership experienced by certain banks, investment houses, utility companies, and other great corporations. The press has suffered along with the rest of society in this time of world depression. But when a paper has succumbed it has passed out through consolidation or the simple process of discontinuation—not with loss of honor."

Long Struggle for Freedom.

Dr. Spencer said he could see no objection to a code for newspapers. "But I am aware," he said, "as possibly Gen. Johnson is not, of the long and hard fought struggle made by the press for freedom of speech. It is our most precious heritage. Second, I am aware of the fact that we shall not always have Gen. Johnson with us to insure the freedom he promises and beyond question will give. There will come other kings who will not know Joseph.

"The present administration has responsibility and authority never before granted a government in Washington. I have complete confidence in the sincerity of this administration, but this administration will not always be in office. It is vital to all of us that we be promptly, correctly, and fully informed on the successes and failures of the appointive officers to whom is delegated responsibility for conduct of the experiments planned by the administration."

PLEA OF YOUNG SLAYER REFUSED; MUST DIE BY GAS

Canon City, Colo., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Walter Reppin, 18, orphan who killed a taxi driver for the change he had in his pockets will be the first to breathe death in Colorado's new lethal gas execution chamber unless a last minute court action saves him.

Gov. Edwin C. Johnson denied a plea for clemency presented at Denver today by the youth's brother, Herbert Reppin, of Newark, N. J., leaving a possible appeal to the state Supreme court the only step remaining in the way of execution, probably Friday night, Jan. 5.

Cyanide eggs dropped into an acid will release the deadly fumes. After experiments with animals, Warden Roy Best pronounced it a much more humane method of execution than the hanging apparatus which it supplants under a new state law.

Reppin was relieved today when the warden told him that a dog placed in the chamber "just slept away."

"Don't worry," the warden said, "one breath and your troubles will be over. We are not going to experiment on you."

$200,000 LEFT BY WIDOW OF BALL CLUB MAGNATE

A motion to admit the will of the late Mrs. Marrie Louise Murphy to probate was continued yesterday to Jan. 19 before Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the probate judge. Mrs. Murphy, widow of C. W. Murphy, once owner of the National league baseball club here, died last Nov. 12 after a fall in her home at 5035 Winthrop avenue.

Her will, disposing of an estate valued at $200,000, sets up three trust funds of $25,000 each for the education of a niece, Dorothy Zeller, and two grandnephews, Robert and Victor Krumdick Jr. Bequests of $2,000 each are left to a friend, Bernue Osmun, and a chauffeur, Helge Swanson.

The will directs that the residue of the estate be divided into eight parts, to be shared equally by the niece, the two grandnephews, and five other relatives. The others are Blance Zeller, a sister; Walter Krumdick, nephew; Fred Krumdick, brother; Henry Krumdick, brother, and Mrs. Harbord Riggs, niece. The Northern Trust company is executor of the will.

She is about 27 years old, has brown hair and gray eyes, and is about 5 feet 4 inches tall. She was wearing a black hat, black chinchilla coat, and black shoes and tan hose. In her purse was a card of the Rialto Dancing school.

FORMER STATE PRINTING CHIEF IS INDICTED

H. L. Williamson Accused with Four Others.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Three conspiracy charges were returned today by the Sangamon county grand jury, indicting H. L. Williamson, head of the Hartman Printing company, and several employés and associates. The charges brought against them were in connection with attempts to defraud the state while Williamson was state superintendent of printing.

The first charge against Williamson and his secretary, Miss Nelle A. Machin, concerned the case in which former Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom of Aledo, was said to have used a clerk in Williamson's office as a means of paying $150 a month to a secret employé in his own office Carlstrom, while involved in this investigation, was not indicted.

The second charge is in connection with the printing of the Illinois Tourists' Guide. Williamson, A. J. Barnes, head of the Schnepp and Barnes Printing company; Willis C. Reddick, former manager of the Jefferson Printing company, and Wayne V. Harsha were all indicted on this charge.

The defendants involved in the third conspiracy charges were the same as those named in the second. This case has to do with the alleged disappearance of a quantity of paper from the state warehouse.

The grand jury returned 25 forgery charges against Miss Machin in connection with the Carlstrom pay roll case. Of this number 23 charge fraudulent indorsement of the fictitous name of A. L. Judson, and two charge forgery of the name of C. B. Hatfield.

GARNER IS BACK FOR CONFERENCE AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Vice President Garner returned to the capital today after spending the summer at his Texas home and told newspaper men he would confer with President Roosevelt on the legislative program to be submitted to congress.

The former speaker of the house disclosed that he had been requested by Mr. Roosevelt to be here for the conference ahead of the convening of congress.

He said he would see "the chief" either today or tomorrow, whichever is more convenient.

The Vice President was taciturn as usual with regard to all public questions, but indicated Mr. Roosevelt would have little difficulty in getting his program through congress.

Opera Ball All That Sponsors Had Promised

ENTERTAINMENT, merriment, opera stars, gayety, carousal, dancing, celebrities, beauty, screen stars, music, ballet, opera, revelry, pageantry and hilarity were the attractions promised by the stunning invitations to the Grand Opera Masque ball and although we have a deadline which prevents our seeing the late events, we are certain the ball is going to furnish all those things for at 11 o'clock many of them were present in the Civic Opera house.

A very different opera house, however, from the one we know for the great auditorium has been draped with aquamarine blue and tiered platforms cover part of the seats at the sides so that there are dozens of tables where the merrymakers may sit and eat and drink and watch the splendid opera review and floor show.

There are tables on the stage, too, which is a plaza tonight with scenery from Butterfly, Carmen, Faust and perhaps other operas but those are the ones we recognized, as a background. In the wings is a long bar but this is not the only place where the thirsty may quench their thirst for up on the mezzanine box floor there is the Opera club room, all newly decorated with chalk drawings of the opera stars by Edgar Miller, where drinks are being served at a bar and at tables and downstairs in the foyer there is a rolling bar where beer is on tap and one of the checkrooms has been made into a small bar.

Four Large Parties Seated on Stage.

Sitting on the stage are four large parties, including those of the Philip Mahers, the Ambrose C. Cramers, Jarvis Hunt Jr., and Moissaye Boguslawski. The Maher and Cramer parties had dined first at the Arts' club, where a buffet supper was served between 9 and 10 o'clock and a makeup man put finishing touches on ravishing Camilles, Rigolettos, and Carmens.

A dashing Rosenkavalier, Mrs. Maher was hostess with Mr. Maher to one of the largest Arts' club supper groups. It's no wonder she was cut in on every few steps on the ballroom floor, for she was a perfect picture in her white satin costume and her delightful curled wig.

Mrs. Byron S. Harvey, the "Jongleur de Notre Dame," with her bells and tambourine (we do wonder, however, if the real juggler had an orchid corsage pinned to his lapel), was a guest in the Maher party with Mr. Harvey. And so were the Thomas Fishers, Miss Suzanne Noble, the Alfred Shaws, "Buddy" Wegg, and the young Arthur Bissells.

Mrs. Shaw took her costume . . . a stiff organdy dress with pantalettes peeping from beneath and a huge flowered leghorn hat . . . from a Mexican portrait, but every one that saw her insisted that she belonged to the "Beggar's Opera." Mr. Shaw, although he looked like he might be a Victorian daguerreotype, explained that he was "just another man."

Debut Season Will Close at Ball Tonight

Miss Fleury Leonard Will Bow at Blackstone.

BY JUDITH CASS.

TONIGHT this gay, giddy debutante season comes to an end in the presentation to society of one of the most striking of the year's buds—Miss Fleury Leonard. At a ball to be given by her father, Clifford M. Leonard, in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone, Miss Leonard is making her formal bow. The party is the last large one scheduled for the debutantes.

Six hundred guests, most of them members of the younger set, have been bid to the party and most of the 600, it is certain, will be present. Shortly after 11 o'clock Miss Leonard will form the receiving line at the ballroom entrance with her father and her mother, Mrs. David R. Forgan.

Before the ball Miss Leonard will dance this evening at the dinner dance that Miss Marie Swift, her cousin, Miss Lydia Swift, and another debutante of last season, Miss Elizabeth Baum, are giving for Miss Jean Wilhelm, who bowed to society at a ball Tuesday evening at the Blackstone.

This party . . . the guest list for which includes eighty of the debutante set . . . is to be held in the handsome mansion of Miss Marie Swift's parents, the Gustavus Swifts.

One of the numerous parties before the Leonard ball tonight is the dinner that Miss Helen Fulton is giving for Miss Barbara Ann Sargent in the Empire room of the Palmer house. Miss Fulton has invited twenty guests.

Miss Leslie Keith Bows at Dance.

Miss Leslie Keith, better known as Patsy, wore forget-me-nots pinned to her white velvet muff last night when she was presented to society by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Keith, at a dinner dance at the Casino. They were a charming complement to her stunning gown of white crêpe fashioned with a matching velvet ruffle that followed the square cut neckline to a deep "V" in the back. With the forget-me-nots, which, incidentally, matched her sandals, Miss Keith combined valley lilies.

The party attended by 200 members of the younger set and a few of their elders was one of the gayest of the holidays. Between 8 and 9 o'clock Miss Keith and her mother, beautifully gowned in smoky blue satin with a flowing scarf trimmed with matching ostrich tips, received in the foyer of the club. Their background was a handsome white leather screen delicately embossed with gold.

Hovering close to the receiving line the early part of the evening was pretty Shirley Keith, the Keiths' younger daughter, who looked adorable in her white crêpe dress trimmed with a shoulder bouquet of gardenias. Shirley even had the privilege last night of inviting a number of her subdebutante friends to her sister's very grownup party.

Among the older guests were major and Mrs. Rex Benson, who are here from London to visit Mrs. Benson's family, the Volney Fosters of Lake Forest.

MRS. FRANK HENRY TEAGLE—better known to Smith college alumnæ as Alice Wright Teagle—is an alumnæ trustee of Smith. The other day, in speaking in Chicago at the Smith college luncheon, she intimated that the job was a pretty big one for her. Then she told the story of Newton D. Baker, who is her neighbor in Cleveland, and his shopping trip. Mr. Baker, who, as you probably know, is small of stature, went into a Cleveland store and asked for union suits. The saleswoman pulled down a box, opened it, and, unfolding a very large suit, held it up for inspection.

"Pardon me, madam," said the suave Mr. Baker in his courtliest tones, "but do you expect me to occupy that all by myself?"

ONE of the biggest tributes a theater audience ever paid, probably, was that of the Seattle audience that waited from 8 o'clock until 11:45 last Sunday night for the curtain to be rung up on "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." The train bearing Katharine Cornell and her company was snowbound near Butte, Mont., on the way to Seattle. This information was received in a wire sent by Orson Welles to Dr. Maurice Bernstein in Chicago early Sunday morning. Dr. Bernstein, a little worried when he received no further news during the day, told a drama critic friend about it. He, by various wires sent westward, discovered that the company landed in Seattle Sunday night, and that the curtain was rung up at 11:45, with the audience still in its seats, waiting patiently.

YESTERDAY, after hearing Ninon Vallin and Jacques Gordon give their program at the Kinsolving morning musical, we ran into Irene Castle McLaughlin, chic in a brown baby lamb jacket and brown wool dress, on her way to make an electrical transcription. Mrs. McLaughlin has become fashion adviser for a corset company, so Mae West curves will no longer dominate the scene. Mrs. McLaughlin, as she laughingly says, couldn't make hers plump if she tried, so she will boost slim figures. If you care exactly how much she weighs, it's 104 pounds, although a cold and too much activity over the family, her new career, and Orphans of the Storm are responsible for a recent loss of weight. . . . The money from her new job will go toward the support of Orphans of the Storm, the dog shelter near Deerfield.

CHARLES F. MIES tells the story of Sarah Lee Cabell, 9 years old, who on a recent voyage in the Caribbean sea watched with some interest the officer on watch walking back and forth on the bridge. Finally she said to her father:

"Daddy, I am sure that man has something on his mind that worries him."

* *

IT WAS the Saturday before Christmas (surely you don't mind Christmas stories already!) and a police patrol clanged through the heavy traffic on East Randolph street, its bell clanging. It pulled to a stop at Randolph and Wabash before a haberdashery and two burly bluecoats hastened out of the car and into the store. A crowd gathered about the wagon and the store, and when the police emerged, one of them, casting a wrathful eye over the crowd, said:

"Well, fer the cryin' out loud! Can't a copper do a bit of late Christmas shopping without gathering a crowd?"

AND Kenneth C. Lovgren, who relays the incident, says that probably the crowd was attracted by the strange sight of a policeman who could afford to buy anything for Christmas.

* *

THEN there was the Happy New Year wish expressed in a letter written by Terry Michaels, 8 years old, to her uncle.

"Dear Uncle Charlie," she wrote. "How are you? I hope you had a Merry Christmas and I hope you have a Happy New Year. I wish to thank you for the dollar that you sent me and I hope that you do not run out of dollars in the New Year."

Heart Association to Open Valentine Stamp Sale Wednesday

The annual sale of Valentine heart stamps by the Chicago Heart association will be started next Wednesday, Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, executive secretary, announced yesterday.

Proceeds go to carry on the association's educational work in the prevention of heart disease. During the last decade the organization has aided in establishing cardiac classes in public schools with medical and nursing care; has opened more than 60 beds in established convalescent homes; maintained summer camps, and increased the number of cardiac clinics.

The heart campaign ends Feb. 14, St. Valentine's day. Less funds are sought this year than in other years because the association has been operating on a reduced budget.

Good Morning!

You said it! ANOTHER musical . . . ! "Flying Down to Rio" cannot, however, be termed JUST another musical, because it has been a-shopping and bought for itself a couple of brand new stunts!

These are—the "Carioca," a sensational dance that will probably be adopted with enthusiasm by the younger set, and cabaret show in the air—atop speeding planes—that's alive with thrills.

(Don't know if I should have told you the piece's surprises, but it takes inducement nowadays to lure those bored to tears by an apparently never ending cycle of musical offerings into a theater where one is showing—and I want you to do "Flying Down to Rio" justice.)

Too—this number brings luscious, ecstatic Dolores del Rio back to us! Fine! AND that very swell dancer, Mr. Fred Astaire, is also much in evidence, proving that he has an ingratiating screen personality in addition to his terpischorean prowess.

Of course, Ginger Rogers is on deck! Is there anything she's been left out of these days? Not that you can mention at a moment's notice. You like Gene Raymond, also, don't you? Well, he's there, too, as an orchestra leader. And the supporting cast is splendid.

Action starts in a Miami hotel where Gene's band is playing. Here he meets the Rio belle, Belinda Rezenda. After this, that and the other merry and tuneful occurrence the scene shifts to Rio, where Belinda's father owns the Atlantico hotel and is in difficulties concerning his entertainment programs, etc.

I could tell you more—but why? Go quaff the sparkle for yourselves.

The music, by Youmans, is lovely, and the scenery, beautifully photographed, is gorgeous and the real thing.

Page Mr. Pomeroy

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

SYNOPSIS.

Bruce Pomeroy, brought up in poverty, befriended a Russian, Boris Orlenoff. In return Orlenoff, before his death, left Pomeroy an invention, which is about to make Pomeroy a millionaire. Orlenoff stipulated that his brother's family, whom he considered parasites, were not to get a cent from the invention. While walking through New York's Central park one winter's morning Pomeroy is kidnaped and taken to a small island off the coast of Maine, where he is made a prisoner in a luxurious home, but kept on a starvation diet. His captor is Boris Orlenoff, nephew of the inventor. Boris' cousins, Cyril and Olga Norrikoff, assisted in the abduction. They want Pomeroy to make a settlement. He refuses. Boris invites Pomeroy to join the family circle downstairs. The older members are unaware that Pomeroy is an involuntary guest. Pomeroy manages to elude his guard, Grateful, and get out of his room, but a raging storm makes escape impossible. Olga Norrikoff tells Pomeroy they are all starving. That the house was lent to them for the winter. Boris and Cyril hadn't been able to get work. Pomeroy arranges through Grateful to get food supplies from Andy Mason, the caretaker. He has fallen in love with Irma Orlenoff, Boris' sister. Cyril's mother dies and his father commits suicide. Cyril had left, before the tragedy, in a leaky boat to get help from the mainland. Pomeroy asks Irma to marry him.

INSTALLMENT XXXVI.

FRANK ADMISSIONS.

"You want to belong to this family, don't you?" Olga asked somberly. "Irma has just told me of your talk."

Bruce's heart leaped.

"She has!" he stammered.

"Yes. We both clutched at the subject as if it were a life line," she went on in the same colorless voice. "It gave us something to say."

"Do you think that some day she might—she will——?"

He was conscious of his selfishness, but he could not repress the question or the eagerness of his voice. After all, Olga had introduced the subject.

"Who can tell?" Olga said indifferently. "Not I. Irma says she doesn't care for you, and she's sure you don't really care for her. She thinks your offer is part chivalry—she likes that—and part charity, and she hates that."

"I wish she was as wrong about herself as she is about me," he interrupted. Olga ignored the words.

"She thinks that in your heart you see as clearly as we do our right to part of Uncle Boris' money, and that this is your idea of a compromise," she went on.

"That's utter nonsense. I wouldn't ask any woman to marry me if I didn't love her." He broke off, ashamed of his self-absorption. "I oughtn't to talk about my affairs with you in all this trouble," he said in sudden abasement.

"What is there to say about my affairs? God in heaven!" Her voice shook, but she went on.

I knew my father couldn't live long, and knowing my mother as I did I wasn't sure she would stay long after him. I suppose in a vague way I had got used to the idea of going on without them both. But Cyril—— It never occurred to me that Cyril could go—that they could all three be wiped out in twenty-four hours. And of course it simply couldn't happen. It's only a nightmare." She stopped and gave him a straight look. "Get me out of it!"

"I wish to God I could!" he groaned. "But it's entirely too soon to give p hope of your brother," he went on hastily. "We may have news of him ny minute. He may get here with a doctor."

She shook her head.

"I know Cyril. If he had ever got to the mainland, he would have been ack here long ago."

"But he may be drifting in a disabled boat?"

"How long would that sieve stay afloat if it was more disabled than is?"

Suddenly she remembered that they were standing still. She started on, nd as he did not again slip his arm through hers, she reached for the arm nd took it.

"What a damned fizzle life is!" she broke out violently. "And what hastly tricks it plays on us! Here you are, in love with Irma! And here's rma, not in love with you. She's got the career maggot in her brain. She's etermined to go to work, and I suppose she'd get on very well if business onditions were different. She's very clever and quite determined—and when rma makes up her mind one may as well stand aside. That's something for ou to remember."

He clung with desperation to what he longed to believe.

"But there's a chance for me—don't you think?"

"I don't think anything about it. I don't want to think anything about it."

She gave him another glimpse of the Olga he had known heretofore, sarcastic, irrepressible, and devastatingly frank.

"If you had happened to fall for me," she went on, "how simple everything would have been! Whatever you had asked I'd have agreed to with three rousing cheers. But that's life's way. For you to fall in love with me was too damned simple. So you had to fall in love with Irma, who doesn't want you now, however, she may feel later. And I must marry Henry Atkinson."

"Who's Henry Atkinson?"

She seemed to have forgotten the name even as it fell from her lips. She had the air of coming back to it from a long mental journey.

"Henry? O, he's a rich, plump, middle aged and partly bald man I've known since last spring. We met in California, but he's head of a big New York trust company. Just before we came up here he asked me to marry him. I told him I'd think it over. I was pretty sure I'd have to do it sooner or later for the sake of the family. Now that there isn't any family I'll have to do it anyway. I've got to have some anchorage. I can't face life alone. I wouldn't mind so much if you hadn't come along to mess everything up——" she ended with a deep sigh.

"O, for God's sake don't talk like that!"

She nodded and looked at him, then said: "You have faced facts all your life and worked them into your plans. But here's a fact you don't want to face just because it has to do with your emotions—or rather with mine. You don't want to be embarrassed by it."

"What's the good of talking about it?" he cried. "Even if you really felt about it as you think you do——"

"Don't prattle that way," she said sharply. "I have brains. So have you. Use yours. There's nothing on earth a modern man and woman can't say to each other, nowadays."

"I'm not modern. But I know there's nothing they don't say." He ended irrepressibly, "I hate this kind of talk!"

"Well, I don't," she said with something of her normal manner. "It does me good. It steadies me and helps to divert my mind. While I'm talking to you I don't see my father and mother lying stiff and cold, or Cyril out in that storm, clinging to some bit of wreckage——"

"Say anything you like," he muttered. "I'll try to understand."

"That's handsome of you," she jeered. "But I'll reward you by telling you it's our last talk of the sort. As soon as—as all this is over—" she choked a little on the words and shut her lips very tightly for a moment—"I'll go away, if you will lend me enough money to get to New York."

"I'm going to take you all with me when I go," he told her with an eagerness that showed his vast relief at the digression.

She smiled ironically.

"Are you? I wonder. But I'll let you escort me, and I'll promise not to make love to you on the way. Henry was a trifle backward in coming forward when he realized that he would have to support my mother and father and perhaps my brother, too. But he finally came up to the scratch like a little man. However, in his secret heart he'll be delighted to know that the others are off this earth——"

"Don't!"

She looked at him curiously.

"What an ostrich you are! You think that by closing your eyes to facts you can get rid of them. You can't. They're right there waiting, when you open your eyes again. As I was saying," she continued, "Henry will be very kind to me. He loves me, and I shall like that. I haven't had much love in my life. Father and mother did their full duty by us, but they were too much absorbed in each other to care passionately for their children. I've never had much love. Bruce!" she stopped and looked at him. "That's your name, isn't it?" she suddenly interjected.

"Yes. How did you know?" Again he was relieved by the digression.

"Boris told me. He saw it on your advertisements. Bruce Pomeroy, President. "It's a good name. It suits you. I'd love to have carried it through life."

"You make me feel like a two cent stamp," he muttered.

"Why do I? A man can't marry every woman who loves him. But as a matter of fact I'd have made you a much better wife than Irma," she went on. "I have more brains and temperament. O, I'm not saying that Irma hasn't brains," she admitted as he frowned. "She'll make a good wife if she ever marries you, and you won't have to worry over possible infidelity."

"Thanks," he said grimly. To him it was a crime for any one to have had such a thought

Beauty Answers

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

MADAME: YES, IT IS WISE TO buy only a small quantity of a new perfume, apply its quality tests at home, and live with it a while to see if its hold on the senses survives.

T. R.: YOU CAN APPLY A GOOD rinse yourself by following carefully the directions given with it, but henna packs had better be left to some expert professional for safe applications.

Opera Ball All That Sponsors Had Promised

There wasn't a more dashing senorita than Mrs. Noble in her red and blue and green costume, and young Mrs. Bissell was as lovely a Venetian lady as any one ever laid eyes upon in a glittering silver cloth dress and a bewitching black veil.

Two Camilles Dressed Alike.

"The two phases have come in," announced Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed and Miss Francise Clow when they arrived dressed in identical organdy dresses. Most distinctive were their gardenia dog collars fashioned out of at least a dozen of the delicate flowers. Questioning revealed that they were attempting to portray Camille.

Miss Clow had dozens of beaux throughout the evening, but three very special escorts included David Leavitt, Charles James . . . a perfect "gob" . . . and Bernard F. Rogers Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Goodspeed were the guests of the Ambrose Cramers. It was Mr. Cramer who was responsible for much of the opera house decoration, as well as the designing of many of the loveliest costumes.

Mrs. Cramer, in a sea green brocade dress resplendent with hoops and ruffles and an ostrich plumed cavalier's hat, announced that she was Musetta from "La Boheme."

"And I'm mighty glad she told me," commented Arthur Meeker Jr., a Chinaman. "If nothing else, this ball is a liberal education in opera, even if you don't recognize your next door neighbor."

Admitting a fascination for Lucrezia Bori, Mrs. John Andrews King was portraying the star in the opera, "La Rondine." It was hard to pin any character on Mrs. Charles Harrington Chadwick, for with a feathered headdress and a tangerine evening dress she appeared half in character and half out.

Mrs. Laird Bell Venetian Lady.

The Laird Bells . . . Mrs. Bell a Spanish lady in her flowing black lace costume . . . were with the Ralph Hamills, the Willoughby Wallings, and Russell Tyson, who acquired capes and masks at the entrance to the ballrom. Their daughter, Miss Helen Bell, who was the duchess of Towers, was strikingly pretty in her bustled costume and was another guest of the Cramers.

"All I have done is grow a beard," explained Charles S. Davis, who, with Mrs. Davis . . . a veiled Venetian lady . . . was host at dinner at the Arts club to the Louis K. Boysens, their attractive daughter, Bobette, the young Johnson S. Davises, Nelson Kimball, and Miss Elizabeth Walker. In a stunning white satin dress that might have been an up to date ballroom gown, Mrs. Johnson Davis was impersonating Violette from "Camille." Her husband was the opera's hero.

Hubert Burnhams Entertain Daughter.

The Hubert Burnhams had as their guests last night their lovely daughter, Mardi, and John Wilkinson, who, as the captain of the Navy football team in years gone by, has the distinction of having defeated the Army three years in succession. Mrs. Burnham wore an extravagant feather lei with her sea green dress, while Miss Burnham was in silver lamé combined effectively with black crêpe. Mr. Burnham, the only member of this party in costume, was an Arab chieftain.

Andrew Reborl, general chairman of the ball, was a sinister Chinaman with a long queue. Mrs. Walter S. Brewster was inspired by an artist rather than a composer for her charming costume. In a big, floppy straw hat and flowered gown, she looked like one of Renoir's paintings.

Perhaps the most striking costume at the ball was worn by a man. Benjamin Carpenter had blacked up and disguised himself so thoroughly as the Emperor Jones that not even his best friend knew him until he took his masque off. Two of the loveliest ladies were Mrs. Harold Strotz and her sister, Mrs. Stresenreuter Butler, although the latter was not dressed as a lady last night, but as the young Lohengrin in immaculate white satin with a pale blue velvet cape. Her escort was Owen Gilman, who decided that a masque was sufficient costume. Mrs. Strotz was a beautiful Empress Josephine in white satin and sapphires.

The lovely colored cellophane capelets and masques that were sold at the door proved to be very popular, and they were seen everywhere in the house.

Mrs. Vernon Herbst a Lovely Carmen.

Mrs. Vernon Herbst was a lovely Carmen in white satin and lace with touches of crimson and her husband was a regal figure in a real Indian atchkan of gold brocade and a turban of blue and gold gauze. Mrs. Alexander Carqueville was as lovely as a story book heroine in a white ruffled net and lace gown like the one Mary Pickford wore in "Secrets."

Mrs. Howard Linn had had the same inspiration as Helen Bell, and she was another duchess of towers [the heroine of "Peter Ibbetson," you who don't remember your opera will need to be reminded] in black velvet. Mrs. Jacob Baur was queenly in an authentic costume, a gown of Queen Caroline's, that she obtained from the Guenther collection. Mrs. Townsend McKeever was a fascinating Manon and her escort, Baron F. A. von Ritter, was a devilish Mephisto.

Mrs. E. R. Graham Empress Eugenie.

Among the late arrivals were the Ernest R. Grahams and their party which included their son and his wife, the William E. Grahams, and young Mrs. Graham's sister, Miss Martha Lee, and Miss Edna Kellogg. Mrs. Graham senior was stunning as the Empress Eugenie; Mrs. Graham junior and Miss Lee were her ladies in waiting, and Miss Kellogg was Adelina Patti. The beautiful long earrings she wore had belonged to the great Patti and are among Miss Kellogg's most prized jewels.

Miss Suzette Morton was charming, all in white with gardenias in her hair, but which of the operatic characters she represented we don't know.

Happy Parties Will Welcome the New Year

Some of the clubs are not having their usual celebrations to watch the old year out and to welcome the new because New Year's eve is on Sunday, but many of them are to have gay parties tomorrow night, perhaps even gayer this year than for many years!

The Onwentsia in Lake Forest is to have a dinner dance, starting at 9 o'clock, and many of the year round residents of that north shore town will be there to greet 1934. The largest party will be one at which the Charles F. Glores will be host and hostess and their guests will be fifty young people, friends of their debutante cousin, Miss Peggy Hixon. Mr. and Mrs. Prentice Porter, Mrs. Frank Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. C. Frederick Childs, Mr. and Mrs. Orville E. Babcock, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. William A. P. Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. Farwell Winston, the Thomas A. Connors, the Joseph C. Beldens, Mr. and Mrs. Owen B. Jones, Mrs. Elliott Detchon, the Ralph Farwells, and the Lithgow Mitchells are others who will entertain guests.

The Chicago Golf club in Wheaton is not having any New Year's eve celebration, but some of its members who live in Wheaton will watch the old year out at a party the Edward N. Hurleys are giving at their residence. It will be a small informal party, really just a gathering of their neighbors, for the Hurleys are in mourning.

Some Members to Dine at Glenview.

The Glenview, Indian Hill, and Exmoor clubs are not having New Year's eve parties either, although there will be some of the members dining tomorrow night at the Glenview club and they plan to dance to radio music and to give the new year a joyous welcome.

The Casino is not having a party tomorrow night either, but it will be the first night in some time that it hasn't been ablaze with lights and the scene of a jolly party, for there has been a private entertainment there every night since the holiday season started.

Tomorrow is to be very gay at the popular Saddle and Cycle club with an old-fashioned eggnog party from 2 to 5 o'clock and at night a dinner dance. Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer are entertaining twenty young people at luncheon for Miss Beth Coleman and Miss Babby Forgan and the whole party will remain to sample the eggnog.

Among those who will have guests at the watch party are the Ralph M. Shaws, the Hopewell L. Rogerses, Bernard F. Rogers, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Blatchford, the Fletcher Durbins, and the Bowman C. Lingles.

Cliff Dwellers, Tavern Clubs to Hold Parties.

The Cliff Dwellers' club and its younger brother (not smaller, though), the Tavern, are having jollifications tomorrow night and both places will be filled with members and their friends anxious to give 1934 a rousing cheer.

Mrs. Sidney H. Heap, who so far has spent most of her Christmas holidays in the Passavant hospital, hopes to be able to join whole-heartedly in the grand New Year's eve party she and Mr. Heap have "engineered." The party, which is to be a Dutch treat affair, will be given at the Tavern, and among the participants will be the junior Byron S. Harveys, the Ogden Kettings, Leo Hogan, and the Countess Visconti, Miss Narcissa Swift and Vittorio Liebman, Miss Cornelia Fairbanks and Fred Poole, and the junior Arthur Farwells.

Wesley Dixons Will Give Party.

The Wesley M. Dixons have invited fifty of their friends to celebrate the arrival of the New Year. The guests will assemble in the Dixons' Lake Forest house at 8:30 and will not leave there until after an early breakfast Monday morning.

Some sixty or more young people will greet the new year at the home of Miss Jean McVoy on Lake Shore drive. The party is a Dutch treat one and the persons present will be some of the post-debutantes and their beaux.

The South Shore Country club, the Evanston Country club, and the Lake Shore Athletic club are others that are having New Year's eve parties tomorrow night.

Debut Season Will Close at Ball Tonight

Miss Fleury Leonard Will Bow at Blackstone.

noon in the Onwentsia riding arena. Next to Christmas day itself it's just about the most exciting event of the year.

The parade on horseback which starts shortly after 2 o'clock will be equal to any rodeo or circus grand march . . . at least as far as color is concerned. The young equestrians have found themselves bright new feather headdresses, they've polished up their leather chaps and two-gun holsters, and recruited all the other paraphernalia necessary to make them look like real wild westerners and Indians.

Mrs. Merrill Hubbard and Mrs. John Andrews King have arranged all the classes which include jumps, seat and hand contests, and varied stunts, but Laurance Armour has the most difficult job of all. It is up to him to judge each event, name the winners, and then choose the best costumes.

After the gymkhana there will be hot chocolate and cookies for the children and a lump of sugar and a bunch of carrots for each one of the mounts.

Junior Assembly Will Be Tonight

Tonight is a big night on the subdebutante holiday program, for all of the young girls and young men will gather at 9:30 o'clock at the Casino club for the Junior assembly. Mrs. Huntington B. Henry and Mrs. John Paul Welling have been active in organizing the assembly this year, and, of course, their daughters, Anale May Henry and Harriet Welling, will be at the ball.

There are several dinner parties being given before the dance, the largest among these being the one that the George A. Ranneys and the James C. Hutchins are giving for their daughters, Miss Cornelia Ranney and Miss Barbara Hutchins, at the Casino. The Ernest S. Ballards are entertaining eight couples at dinner at the Fortnightly for their daughters, Miss Elizabeth Ballard and Miss Susan Ballard, and then are taking the young people to a play before the assembly.

The George Bragg Masseys have invited several future debutantes and their beaux for a buffet supper at the Massey home in Winnetka before the party. Mrs. Phoebe Massey, their daughter, is the reason for the party.

Barton Family Will Receive Friends Today.

Mrs. Enos M. Barton and her four sons, a lawyer, a doctor, a business man, and a budding artist, and one daughter-in-law are to be at home to their friends from 4 until 7 o'clock this afternoon in the Barton home in Hubbard Woods. Receiving with Mrs. Barton at the tea will be Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Sterling Barton, Dr. Evan Mansfield Barton, Gilbert Rust Barton and Wilfrid Converse Barton. Wilfrid, the youngest, is at home from Harvard.

Occupying two boxes at the opera matinée this afternoon will be a group of women who were regular in attendance on Saturday afternoons during previous seasons. This year they plan to meet for luncheon every week in the Electric club atop the Civic Opera house and then attend the matinées. Hearing "La Boheme" today will be Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. Vernon Herbst, Mrs. James H. Lewis, Mrs. Richard T. Crane, Mrs. Harry H. Shearson, Mrs. Charles S. Davis, Mrs. Francis Johnson, and Mrs. George B. Dryden.

The Union League club is having its annual Christmas party for children this afternoon, starting with luncheon at 12:30 and continuing in the crystal room, where Miss Lucille Elmore will entertain the children.

Tea This Afternoon for Two Students.

This afternoon Mrs. James L. Lardner and Mrs. Hilgard B. Young are giving a tea for their daughters, Miss Jean Lardner and Miss Dorothy Young, at Mrs. Lardner's residence on Clinton place in Evanston. Both Miss Lardner and Miss Young attend Denver university.

Miss Betty Loynachan is chairman of the ball that the members of the Evanston Junior Charity Ball association are giving tonight at the Evanston Country club. Proceeds of the ball will go to the Cradle society.

Entertaining box parties tomorrow afternoon at the second of the Sunday afternoon series of Emerson house benefits will be Miss Audrey Campbell, her cousin, Thomas Leiter, Miss Lydia Swift, Mrs. John P. Wilson, Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, Miss Edith Behr, Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, Mrs. Ralph Greenlee, Mrs. Edward Blair, Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, and Horace Kiser. Coe Glade is to appear in an entirely new type of concert presentation. Against a black velvet cyclorama she will appear in a costume recital in which each song is dramatized, and she will be accompanied by a string orchestra.

At a tea yesterday afternoon at their River Forest home Mr. and Mrs. William B. Henri announced the engagement of their daughter, Helen Edith, to Willard Hamilton Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merrick A. Richardson, also of River Forest.

Three Million Visit Museum; a New Record

More than 3,260,000 persons visited the Field Museum of Natural History during 1933, it was revealed yesterday in the annual report of Stephen C. Simms, director. The report shows that the attendance record exceeds any ever attained by any museum in the United States.

While definite statistics from other countries are lacking, Director Simms expressed the belief that the attendance exceeds the highest attendance mark ever reached by any institution in the world. In 1932, the year of the next highest attendance, the museum received 1,824,202 visitors.

"While a large part of the 1933 increase was due to the museum's proximity to the grounds of A Century of Progress," the report said, "there was also an impressive normal attendance increase, indicated by the fact that in the period from Jan. 1 to May 26, prior to the World's Fair, there were 28 per cent more visitors than between the same two date of 1932."

The report set forth as the most important development of the year the opening of two new halls containing anthropological exhibits said to have no counterpart in any other museum in the world. One of these halls is the Chauncey Keep Memorial hall, in which is displayed a series of nearly 100 life size bronze figures, busts, and heads typifying the principal races of mankind. The figures were done by Malvina Hoffman, sculptor, of New York and Paris. The sculptor spent three years on the task and traveled to remote parts of the world to model from life.

The Hall of the Stone Age of the World is the second of the new halls to be opened during the year. In this hall the various types of prehistoric man are re-created and shown in reproductions of caves and other typical habitations they once occupied.

The museum will be open on New Year's day during the usual hours of 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

BY MARY MEADE.

"To what nation does 'Bishop's bread' belong and how does one make it?" This question begins our Cookery Clinic today. It comes from Mrs. J. E. F., and because this same Bishop's bread is a Yuletide treat, with its origin in Austria, how would you like me to pass it on for the delectation of everybody? The recipe is simple, though you will have to use your own judgment, somewhat, in the amount of flour your own batch requires to give that "stiff dough."

BISCHOFBROD.
(Austrian Bishop's Bread.)

¾ cup sugar
½ cup finely chopped almonds
¼ cup raisins
2 eggs
Candied citron, pine nuts, and pistachios if desired
Flour enough to make a stiff dough

First beat together the eggs and sugar until quite light and fluffy. Add the almonds, raisins, and flour. Add the citron and other nuts if they are to be used. Now turn into an oiled pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until well done. When thoroughly baked cut the loaf in long, narrow strips and toast these on both sides under a broiler fire until light brown.

Then how about a final farewell salute to cranberries, which are fast walking out on us these days and will be almost entirely gone by New Year's day? Mrs. H. R. E. inspired us by asking for a Brown Betty that was "quite other."

CRANBERRY BROWN BETTY.

2¼ cups cranberries
¼ teaspoon salt
1-3 teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg
1½ cups sugar
1 2-3 cups buttered, toasted bread crumbs

Crush the cranberries slightly, then mix them with the salt, spices, and sugar. Grease a covered casserole and place in it one-third of the bread crumbs. Pour over this half the cranberry mixture. Add another third of the crumbs, the rest of the cranberries, and the remainder of the crumbs. Dot the top with butter and add finally about two-thirds cup hot water. Cover the dish and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) for one hour.

Or maybe, with Mrs. F. O., you're looking for a speedily made plum pudding which will be fine enough to top off a perfectly corking New Year's eve dinner.

BAKED PLUM PUDDING.

2 eggs, well beaten
¼ teaspoon each nutmeg and allspice
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1-3 cup molasses
3 tablespoons brown sugar
3 tablespoons melted butter
2 cups milk
1 cup seedless raisins
1 cup crumbled graham crackers

Beat the spices into the eggs, then add the rest of the ingredients, except the last two. Blend the crackers and raisins well and stir into the first mixture. Turn the pudding batter into a well buttered pan and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for 35 to 40 minutes. Serve hot with hard sauce or whipped cream.

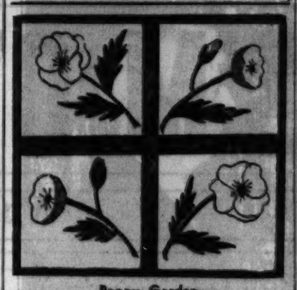
Quilt Is Charming Worked in Shades of Poppy Flowers



Poppy Garden.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Here is a quilt that may be made in all the lovely shades of the yellow poppy in the delicate shades of the pink poppy or in the gorgeous deep reds of the Chinese poppy, with which we probably are most familiar.

It is set together with strips of soft green, differing from the deep green used in the leaves. It is easily appliquéd and is a quilt that increases in charm with time.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, the Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service office, One South Dearborn.

Brimmed Hats Are on Display for Mid-Season

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Though it seems rather quiet along the fashion front so far as dark winter clothes are to be found, there's plenty of excitement in the many spots where wily buyers have hung the best of the new southern wear apparel.

Shoppers with an acquisitive glitter in their eyes are watching the newest frocks of cotton, tricky new fabrics, fascinating new colors and audaciously different combinations and silhouettes with fervid appreciation of something different to buy.

All the mid-season satin hats have been unpacked and the brim addicts will cheer loudly for the many varieties to be found.

Some of the hats turn distractingly up in the face-framing or rather head-framing formation like the hat Marlene Dietrich wore atop her mass of blonde braids in "The Song of Songs." Others have been restrained and kept shallow, achieving an engaging impudence that will do grand things for young dashing coiffures and gay young faces.

Brims that extend kindly over sophisticated eyes and give them that air of charm and a bit of feminine mystery are better than you have been able to find in years. The wider brims of mid-winter picture hats of inky black felt are devastating. They have laced edges, e tremely shallow but cunningly fitted crowns and a small, short bow of the felt as the only trimming. South bound vacationists can buy these picture felts in stunning oyster white and pastel colors.

Turbans are still going strong, but in a different manner from the smooth skull-tight affairs of a season or so ago . . . this time you find them made of two, sometimes three different fabrics and just as many colors.

WEDDING

Mrs. William Edward Gallagher of 1140 East 46th street announces the marriage of her daughter, Helen, to Joseph Anthony Doyle, son of Mrs. Robert P. Doyle of Chicago, which took place last Thursday. The Rev. Robert P. Doyle, brother of the bridegroom, read the service in St. Ambrose church.

A Quick Facial Will Put You in Trim for the Heavy Date

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

You're meeting HIM tonight at seven—and you feel like the wrath of you-know-what. Wish you could put it off until tomorrow night. Your eyes look so tired. Your face so cloudy. Next week you're going to get to bed every night at eight, you vow. But there's tonight's clause in the conquest.

You have an hour to get ready. Better have an hour! Get home, take your warm bath, get right into bed for fifteen minutes. Now for those tired eyes and crinkly lids. Take the plain white of egg and spread it over closed lid and around eye corners—over the whole face if you have time. Lie there in bed as completely relaxed as it is possible for you to do. Make it more possible even. Rest. If you feel backachey lie with legs drawn up so that the base of the spine is hugged by the mattress. When the egg is dried, simply take a warmwater dipped cloth and wipe it off. The egg-white is a powerful astringent and for such emergency use as outlined, it is highly recommended. Your eyes will look so much better when you are through with this treatment that you'll be set up handsomely in spirit. The fifteen minute rest is a lifesaver.

Of course, you may have a good masque treatment recommended by your favorite salon. For a quick pickup, busy women know what one of these treatments means. They give a pristine freshness that insures a successful evening. There are milk masks, buttermilk masks, oatmeal masks and masks with stronger astringent qualities. The market is well ready to supply the demand for this now popular form of rejuvenation.

However, you do not have to have a big date to justify a mask treatment. Many women take them once a week.

Don't Correct Child for Using His Left Hand

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Since this subject crops up repeatedly in our correspondence, it seems well to answer the following letter right here:

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

CLASS DAY.

"Some of you fellows don't look so alert this morning," smiled Prof. Fordney eyeing his class in criminology. "What's the matter? Too many holiday parties?"

"During the night a heavy dew had fallen so that when I reached the scene of the crime we've been discussing and walked across the long grass of the unkempt lawn my ankles were really wet.

"Carefully examining the impression in the grass where the dead body of beautiful Madeline Humbert had lain for several hours, I picked up a small gold clasp. I then sat down on a nearby rock and dried my ankles with my handkerchief as best I could. Nevertheless, I was most uncomfortable, as the early morning hour was chilly.

"On my way back to the house I happened to notice a woman's heel caplying on the cement driveway. Slipping it into my vest pocket, I continued looking in vain for further clews and was just about to give up the search when suddenly I saw another object that drew my attention.

"I stared down at it for a moment and just as I was about to pick it up there came a . . ."

"May I interrupt, professor?" asked Bert Merril.

Fordney nodded.

"Your story can't be true," the student commented. "I learned that from studying the Hanson case. You see . . ."

"All right, Merril," hastily interjected the professor. How many of you other fellows agree with Bert? Give me your answers. Quickly, now!"

GEOLOGISTS TELL NEW FINDINGS ON EARTH'S CRUST

Theories Differ on Birth of Mountains.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

How recent important geological findings support the theory that the earth's surface is a crust floating on a yielding, somewhat mobile layer of matter was explained yesterday at a general session of the 46th annual meeting of the Geological Society of America in Mandel hall at University of Chicago.

The meeting, which has brought together more than 600 outstanding geologists of the country, will be concluded today.

In a symposium on the results of studies undertaken during the last four years in the Yellowstone-Beartooth-Big Horn region in Montana and Wyoming in which ten universities, colleges, and research organizations are coöperating, four papers outlined data showing how mountains are built and how the earth's surface changes form.

Theory on Earth's Crust.

Summing up the content of the papers in an interview later, one of the men who presented them, Prof. W. T. Thom Jr. of Princeton university, said that the findings upheld the theory that the earth's crust, a layer about 70 miles thick, rested on a layer of mobile rock.

Scientists who formerly espoused that theory, however, supposed that mountain ranges were made when erosion caused unbalanced pressure and resulted in light or less dense material being forced up into mountains, said Prof. Thom.

"By this theory it was assumed that ocean basins are deep because underlying the basins are heavy rocks; that continents are higher, because they consist of lighter rock, and that mountain ranges are of still lighter rock. While the studies in the Yellowstone-Beartooth-Big Horn region tend to uphold the first two assumptions, they indicate that mountain ranges are caused by other factors on which scientists still differ.

New Evidence on Mountains.

New evidence bearing on the method of formation of mountain ranges was presented in a paper compiled by Princeton, Vanderbilt, and Montana State university representatives and read by Prof. Thom.

Analyzing the Beartooth and Big Horn ranges of Montana and Wyoming, they concluded tentatively that the region once consisted of a nearly level plain underlaid by moderately strong rocks marked by wedgelike masses of granite. The whole region was then squeezed by horizontal pressure, according to this hypothesis, the weaker rocks yielding, the granite rocks popping up two to four miles in height.

Asked what caused the "horizontal pressure," Prof. Thom in his interview explained that scientists did not agree in their explanations of it, and that geology had yet to study the subject more extensively.

Suggests Climate as Factor.

Prof. J. H. Mackin of Columbia university, who read the paper prepared in conjunction with Prof. Douglas Johnson of that university, cited data regarding the terraces in the Bighorn basin suggesting that marked variations in climate and rainfall, rather than crustal uplift and tilting, were responsible for the sequence of sloping terraces of the region.

A reminder that the forces which form mountains never die, but periodically flare up after slumbering for ages, was given by Prof. Ernst Cloos of Johns Hopkins university and Dr. Hans Cloos of Bonn-am-Rhein university, his brother. They reported findings that the Big Horn and Black Hills mountains probably were repetitions of ancestral ranges which occupied essentially the same sites. These pre-Cambrian ranges had grown to completion, then were reduced to flatness by erosion, only to be built up again by the mysterious processes of the earth tens of millions of years later.

The broad lowlands of the Big Horn and Powder river basins are essentially in "floated equilibrium," said Prof. Rollin T. Chamberlin of the University of Chicago.

A Puzzle to Scientists.

One of the pieces of the world jigsaw puzzle which geologists have had difficulty in fitting into the picture in the past has been the mysterious region of mountain peaks near Cody, Wyo., part of the region under observation by the universities making the study in question.

Prof. W. H. Bucher of the University of Cincinnati explained that the massive slabs of limestone capping these peaks might have been blown through the air for distances of more than 10 miles by volcanic outbursts of the Yellowstone area some hundreds of thousands of years ago.

At the annual dinner of the Geological society at the Shoreland hotel last night Dr. Waldemar Lindgren, head of the department of geology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was awarded the Penrose metad, the society's highest honor. Prof. Edson S. Bastin, chairman of the department of geology and paleontology of the University of Chicago, made the presentation address. Dr. Lindgren is a former president of the society and former chief geologist of the United States geological survey. Participating in the dinner were the Paleonological society, the Mineralogical Society of America, and the Society of Economic Geologists.

COURT SUSTAINS WRIT BARRING EAGLE TAXICABS

The Appellate court yesterday handed down an opinion sustaining the temporary injunction which Circuit Judge Hugo M. Friend issued on the petition of city officials, barring the Eagle Taxi company, 805 West Jackson boulevard, from operating a fleet of 30 low fare taxicabs on the streets without a city permit. The opinion, written by Judge John J. Sullivan with the concurrence of Judges Martin Gridley and Kickham Scanlan, sustained the contention of the city that the added cabs congested the streets unduly and were a nuisance.

GIRLS WARNED OF DANGERS IN EQUALITY QUEST

Impairs Character, Says Woman Doctor.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A warning to college women that they are forfeiting their finer senses and ruining their characters by their efforts to attain equality with men was sounded yesterday by Dr. Elizabeth Whitney, consultant in mental hygiene at Stanford university.

In a discussion of the love problems of the college girl before the American Student Health association in the Stevens hotel, Dr. Whitney deplored the effect of the movement for general sex education, charging that it had tended to make sexuality an obsession.

"In her struggle for equality or superiority as compared to men the college girl is driven away from her instinctive and cultural self toward an attitude which she cannot assume without destruction of her finer senses," Dr. Whitney said. "Twenty years ago there was a general movement towards sex education. Many of us had high hopes that it would solve many of the difficulties of marriage and relationships between men and women. In this it has signally failed."

Sees More Marital Trouble.

There is more unhappiness in marriage and more confusion in relationships than ever before as a result of this, Dr. Whitney continued. She pointed out that the character of modern life compared with that of only a few years ago has brought materialism and utter loss of the internal values.

"Women are undervaluing the family and marriage," Dr. Whitney asserted. "We are informed that marriage is nothing but an outworn convention legalizing sexuality. Mothers with large families are discredited. One hundred years ago new demands on women brought three mental changes, namely: that raising a family was troublesome, that the lot of the male was colorful, and that an animosity to the male must be felt because the male has kept women out of his colorful life.

"The college girl today must realize that her feminine and emotional qualities must not be stifled in her struggle to equal men mentally and that to stifle these emotions brings nothing but destruction and unhappiness to her life. She must get back to the real evaluation of other human beings."

For College Health Services.

At the same session a paper written by Dr. Robert T. Legge of the University of California was read by Dr. Ruby L. Cunningham of the same university, advocating that the association recommend to college presidents the financing of health services where surgical and other medical care and hospitalization could be offered to students without additional cost, particularly in times of depression. He based his recommendations on a study conducted at the University of California, where the student health and medical service has been in operation for several years.

"Colleges should try to finance such health services where medical and surgical cases arise after registration," Dr. Legge said. "There should be unlimited dispensary and hospital care during the period of the semester without special fees."

SEES TELESCOPE 20 TIMES POWER OF BEST TODAY

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—An "electronic telescope," based on a new principle in telescope design, which will make it possible to build an instrument equivalent to a 2,000 inch lens or mirror, was described here today before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The new telescope, opening the way to dimensions hitherto beyond the dreams of astronomers, substitutes electrical for optical amplification. It was invented by Dr. Francois Henroteau of the Dominion observatory, Ottawa, Canada. Describing his model, he declared that the instrument would in all probability be practical.

The largest optical telescope in existence today is the 100 inch telescope at Mount Wilson observatory. A 200 inch telescope, in process of construction for many years at a cost of $12,000,000, has been regarded as the maximum possible in mirror construction. The electro-telescope follows the principle of television.

Feted by Aids

Garrett P. Fitzgerald, a veteran of 56 years' service with the North Western railroad, was tendered a luncheon yesterday in the station dining room by employés in the office of the railroad's auditor of disbursements, where he has been head clerk for many years. Mr. Fitzgerald, who is 71 years old and lives in Lake Forest, is one of a family of North Western employés. His father worked for the railroad for forty years, and he has had two brothers in its service.

CHICAGO SETS A RECORD FOR HEALTH IN '33

Death Rate Lowest in City's History.

This year has been Chicago's healthiest, with the lowest death rate in the history of the city, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, disclosed yesterday in his annual report to Mayor Kelly.

The 1933 death rate from all causes was 9.5 per thousand inhabitants. The previous low level, set in 1932, was 9.75 per thousand. Dr. Bundesen pointed out that the 1933 record is more remarkable in view of the fact that the summer saw some 7,500,000 visitors in the city for the World's Fair.

Birth Rate Falls Faster.

The birth rate, however, fell faster than the death rate. It was 12.5 per thousand in 1933, as against 14 per thousand last year. The depression which caused a sharp decrease in marriages during the last three years, is to blame, Dr. Bundesen said. But babies had a better chance of life during their first year than ever before in the history of the city. The death rate for children under 11 months old was 50 per thousand, a slight decrease below the previous record set in 1932.

Chicago ranked third, behind Milwaukee and Detroit, in the health conservation contest conducted among the cities of the country by the United States Chamber of Commerce. The contest considered health work done by private as well as public agencies. The contest disclosed that the two things which Chicago needs most to attain a higher rank are increased vaccination against smallpox and improved nursing service.

Success of Health Fight.

"The success of the board of health in combating communicable diseases is well illustrated," stated Dr. Bundesen, "by the change in the principal causes of death between the present time and the time when Chicago's first reliable health statistics were compiled. Tuberculosis alone remains among the ten principal causes at that early date, and its mortality has been reduced greatly."

The campaign for the immunization of children against diphtheria, continued in 1933, was marked with a remarkable decrease in mortality from that disease. This year saw only nine deaths from diphtheria, as compared to 68 in 1932, 216 in 1931, and 411 in 1930. Chicago for several years has had the lowest typhoid fever death rate of any large city in the world. There were but eleven deaths from the disease this year, breaking a previous record of thirteen deaths set in 1931.

THIRD BABY IS SMOTHERED TO DEATH IN BED

Mary Grady, 5 months old, was smothered to death in her crib yesterday in her home at 5143 Diversey avenue. Her mother, Mrs. Irene Grady, told police that she had tucked a blanket about the baby's head when she put her in her crib for her afternoon nap. The child was the third to smother in bed since the present cold spell started.

Funeral services for Blanche and Barbara Marshall, 15 month old twins, who were suffocated in bed Wednesday in their heatless home at 2433 Fillmore street, will be held this morning. Peter Granata and Joseph J. Bachigalupo, undertakers, contributed their services and parish authorities of St. Charles Catholic church gave a lot in Mount Carmel cemetery.

Albert Marshall, father of the children, who was a Canadian war veteran and a hero of the 22d street tunnel disaster two years ago, was given a job yesterday by the Johnson & Johnson Supply company, whose officials had read of his plight.

GALES ON STARS BLOW AT 144,000 MILES AN HOUR

Effects on Light Can Be Noted on Earth.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Hurricanes on the stars blowing 144,000 miles an hour, a thousand times faster than the most terrific storm wind ever measured on earth, were reported today before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Discovery of the giant storms in the "atmospheres" of turbulent gases on the stars, 24 million millions miles from the earth, was announced by Otto Struve and C. T. Elvey, astronomers of Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago at Williams Bay, Wis.

Accurate measurement of the winds is possible because they produce on starlight effects which the spectroscope reveals. Discovery of the star winds marks an advance in astronomy, for heretofore astronomers assumed that the atmospheres surrounding the stars were quiescent.

Minerals in Gas Form.

The gales explain changes in starlight which have puzzled astronomers for years and never before have been satisfactorily explained.

The stellar winds contain much less "air," than earth winds. In the atmospheres of the stars there is much less gas to the cubic yard than in the earth's atmosphere. The winds on the stars contain much the same kinds of gases as those on earth, such as hydrogen, helium, oxygen, nitrogen, and carbon dioxide, and also calcium, sodium, potassium and magnesium in the form of gas.

A single tomato root tip, a quarter inch long, is growing so fast "artificially" at the Rockefeller institute that if there were food enough it would become seven and a half times as big as the earth in a little more than a year.

The growth is a living proof of the irresistible energy behind the principle of life and the forces which produce evolution. It shows what a single seed could no under the "favorable" conditions of a millennium where it had no competition.

This study of plant nutrition and the behavior of certain diseases was reported today by Dr. Philip R. White of the Princeton branch of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

Divided and Redivided.

From a sterilized tomato seed, a little more than a year ago, one root tip was cut off soon after sprouting. The tip, the part which grows, was placed in water containing as plant food half a dozen common chemical salts, a small amount of purified cane sugar and less than one one-hundredth of one per cent of yeast.

As the tip grew it was cut back, and the portions sliced off were placed each in its own test tube to grow alone, until there were 100 tubes from the original tip. Since then each bit of root has been pared down once a week, and the "other half" thrown away. Some of the tips died, even under their "tomato millennium" and were replaced.

"If, instead of many branches being discarded," said Dr. White, "all of them had been retained and had grown at rates corresponding to the observed mean values, the total number of branches would today be about 100,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 [one followed by twenty-six ciphers] and the length of the roots more than 1,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,0 0 0 [one followed by thirty ciphers]. inches.

"The enormousness of this figure can perhaps be appreciated when it is realized that this represents a mass of tissue equal to about seven and a half times the volume of the earth."

DR. ADLER TELLS HOW CHILDREN BECOME MISFITS

The inferiority complex and the social misfits it produces can always be traced back to the absence of proper social development during childhood, Dr. Alfred Adler declared in a lecture at Sinai temple last night. Dr. Adler, famous Vienna psychologist, originated the theory of the inferiority complex, which he discussed last night at a lecture sponsored by the Parent-Teacher association of the Sinai congregation.

The psychic disturbance called the inferiority complex was defined by Dr. Adler as an expression of inability to overcome a feeling of inferiority. This sense of inferiority, he said, is natural, but without confidence in one's ability to overcome it the feeling becomes a psychic complex.

Dr. Adler told methods of training to prevent children from becoming social misfits. He said a child, particularly during the first three years of life, should be taught an interest in other members of the family, in relatives, guests and strangers, for without this development of the social interest he cannot forget himself and he develops the characteristics of the problem child. He recommended games for the development of teamwork and coöperation, but declared that guns and other weapons were not good playthings because they do not prepare the child for coöperation.

MOST GIRLS FIB ON WEIGHT TO SEEM VENUSES

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Asked how much they weigh, most women tend to tell what they should weigh instead of what they actually weigh, Dr. Mildred B. Mitchell of New Hampshire State hospital told the American Association for the Advancement of Science today.

Of 105 boarding school girls averaging 16 years of age, only 19 revealed their true weights, Dr. Mitchell reported. Two girls gave 50 pounds less than they really weighed. One, 36 pounds overweight, submitted 105, 12 pounds less than the standard weight of 117 for her age and height.

Nursing school students who averaged 20 years of age, gave only ten per cent correctly, the majority mentioning figures nearer what they should weigh. In both tests the girls were asked their weights casually without knowledge of the checkup.

BOOKS

Thorne Smith Has Fun with This Skeleton

'Skin and Bones' Enlivens Holiday Week.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Skin and Bones," by Thorne Smith. [Doubleday-Doran.]

UTTERLY mad, finally, in a long series of books by one of America's most popular humorists, books each madder and funnier, "Skin and Bones" celebrates the doldrums between Christmas and the New Year, and how it celebrates! The hero, a professional photographer who loves his wife so much that they fight incessantly and with bloodshed, and whose closest friend is a little square dog named Busy, through his experiments in making a film which will photograph fluoroscopically, suddenly finds himself turned to a skeleton.

If he could be sure of being a skeleton always life would have been less of a burden, but sometimes he suddenly gets back his flesh [which wasn't much to boast of anyhow], and finds himself stark naked in moments when a Paisley shawl is not handy. A long white beard which the village mortician gave him when he was fitting himself to a coffin helped him out of some of his moments, but it also helped him into others—when a gangster in his cups mistook him for the returned haunt of a gentleman he had dispatched.

When Busy knocked over a bottle of the chemical compound destined for the films and became a skeleton of a dog—which scratched with horrid scraping of bones, the plot, up to that time about as thick as anybody ever met, practically jellies into guffaws.

Perhaps the chemical would not have worked so well without the saturation of alcohol which every one concerned met with. Anyway, the reader reels with amazement and laughter through 306 hilarious but utterly mad pages.

Nudists and "Bare Living."

If "Skin and Bones" delights you, then rush out for "Bare Living," by Elmer Davis and Guy Holt [Bobbs Merrill]. It is another hilarious and mad tale . . . of a man unwillingly finding himself in a nudist colony. It came out in October, but it's perennial.

Frankau Offers New Novel.

Also published on Wednesday is "Everywoman," by Gilbert Frankau [Dutton], in which a veteran novelist pursues a veteran theme—that at heart every woman is a rake. The heroine, a lovely Anglo-Italian, tells her own story, that of a young painter whose work caught the eye of a famous English connoisseur of the arts and whose beauty made her his wife. Marriage without love followed by love without marriage is the sequence of the life of Oliver Sancetti—the "Everywoman" of Mr. Frankau's thirteenth novel.

Last Beresford Series.

And on Tuesday another veteran novelist, J. D. Beresford, whose first trilogy "Jacob Stahl" still remains one of the great books of its day, gave us "The Young People" which is the third panel of the trilogy which tells the story of three generations of the Hillington family. "The Old People," and "The Next Generation" preceding this story of what the years since the war did to a stock which for years had prided itself on its sequestered aloofness.

Life Story of Christina.

Published on Wednesday was Margaret Goldsmith's "Christina of Sweden" [Doubleday Doran], which tells for the first time the full life story of the only woman ever crowned king. Christina of Sweden, who hated men and who threw away a throne because she could not face the thought of marriage.

Artist Puts Blame on Bankers.

And on Thursday there was issued "Artist Among Bankers," by Will Dyson, a famous English pictorial satirist, who alike with words and a drawing board tells the world what it already knows, that things are in a mess. He blames it all on the bankers [big business], and does a little lashing about among the creative artists also for not doing what they might have done to avert the situation.

Wassermann's Story of Being German Jew Appears in English

"My Life as German and Jew," by Jacob Wassermann [Coward McCann] was originally published in Germany in 1921 and has been translated into English for the first time. It contains a chapter written since Hitler's rise to power, but it was more than twelve years ago that Wassermann wrote the following prophetic passage. In answer to a question about the reason for the German hatred of the Jews he wrote: "They want a scapegoat. Whenever they are badly off, after every defeat, in every difficulty, in every trying situation they shift the responsibility for their distress upon the Jews. So it has been for centuries. Threatening embitterment of the masses has always been diverted into this convenient channel."

Agnes Repplier Pens Another Biography of Religious Pioneer

In her "Junipero Serra" [Doubleday-Doran] Agnes Repplier duplicates the beautiful understanding of the religious pioneer that made her "Pere Marquette" and "Mere Marie of the Ursulines" books long to be remembered.

The adventurous friar who helped the Conquistadores found California is the subject of another of Miss Repplier's distinguished biographies. We in "the east" as Californians call any place east of Sacramento, know Junipero Serra very little. In California his name is on every map. The richness of his life, as well as the conversion of a savage wilderness into one of the garden spots of the world, is the theme of Miss Repplier's biography.

SKELETONS

Two Autobiographies Describe Lives at Extremes of Society

Two unique autobiographies of the fall are "Rough Hewn," anonymous [Appleton-Century], and "The Cat Had Nine Lives" [Farrar-Rinehart], the adventures and reminiscences of Achmed Abdullah, Afghan-American. The two are as different as the life of a well-to-do aristocrat and that of a poor slum raised sailor would be, but both are as fascinating and thrilling as any of the tales of those writers.

The anonymous author of "Rough Hewn," we'd guess, is Capt. Dingle. He's written a startlingly frank story of a sordid boyhood in an Oxford slum; a hard fisted fight from fo'c'sle to cabin during years at sea and then a heartbreaking struggle to win through on land with terrific domestic handicaps. It's a stunning story of sea and land adventure, as gripping as Capt. Dingle's saltiest yarn.

Achmed Abdullah's life has been an easy one so far as finances are concerned. He spent gay, carefree, vivid years in the world's great capitals and also thrillful years in jungle and on battlefields under different flags. "The Cat Had Nine Lives" is a brilliant, sophisticated and humorous record of a cosmopolite's colorful career.

Famed Author, Now Exile, May Settle in U. S.

Feuchtwanger Makes a Quiet Visit to London.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.] — The visit of Dr. Lion Feuchtwanger to London at the time of the appearance in English of his new and highly controversial novel, "The Oppermanns," has been marked by less publicity than usual. He has stayed quietly in an old-fashioned hotel and has seen comparatively few people. That is because of the exceptional political conditions and because his presence is something of an international problem. He intends, says the German exile, to settle either in America or in Palestine, which latter land he is shortly to see for the first time.

Meanwhile the book, published by Secker, is the first of Dr. Feuchtwanger's to be translated by anybody but Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Muir. The translator is James Cleugh, a young novelist who has been much praised for some ingenious short novels in so modern a manner that they have not yet reached a very wide public. Mr. and Mrs. Muir, to whom Feuchtwanger's English reputation owes so much, are in future to work as translators only for the firm of Victor Gollancz, and it was for Mr. Gollancz that they produced the English version of Asch's "Three Cities," to which innumerable critics have applied the brave word "masterpiece."

Translations from the German have slumped a little here of late, but it is interesting to note that two of the now popular very long novels by French authors are in course of publication. One of them, "Men of Good Will," which is to appear in installments through the young firm of Lovat Dickson, has already been given a warm welcome. Another is to come in the spring from Chatto & Windus. This is "Long Road at Night" ["Voyage au Bout de la Nuit"], by Louis Ferdinand Céline. It is the history of a man's life, beginning with the time of the European war, carrying its hero to west Africa and America, bringing him back to work as a doctor in the Paris slums.

Chatto & Windus will also publish in the spring the new book of travels by Aldous Huxley. About a year ago Mr. Huxley was ill, and work upon his new novel had to be stopped in consequence. He determined to seek health and change by a new journey across the world, and for this purpose he visited the Caribbean sea, Guatemala, and Mexico. Now, restored to health, he is going to give us the results of his observation and newly acquired knowledge, and for those many readers who found "Jesting Pilate" so fascinating the news that "Beyond the Mexique Bay" is in the printer's hands will be joyful.

Meetings and Lectures

C. J. Bullet, author of "Apples and Madonnas," will be the speaker at the first of a series of Wednesday luncheons to be given by the Society of Midland Authors in their clubroom in the Sherman hotel this week. The series is under the direction of Adelaide Atwater [Mrs. Harold Pynchon].

The Friends of American Writers will hold their regular luncheon on Wednesday in the banquet hall of the Chicago Athletic club, at which time Hendrik Willem Van Loon will speak on "The Human Touch."

Marquette had too much size and a bit too much class for the University of Chicago's sophomore basketball team in last night's game at the Midway fieldhouse. The Milwaukee team won, 31 to 24.

Bill Haarlow, making his debut in a Maroon suit, played a creditable game, scoring two baskets, one on his specialty, a hook shot, and another when he stole the ball from Marquette and galloped half the length of the floor for a pushup. But it was another Chicago sophomore, Bill Lang, a stocky little guard from St. Rita's High, who was the Maroon hero. Lang sank five goals from near midfloor, almost in succession at the middle of the game.

These efforts, however, came in the infrequent intervals when Chicago had the ball. A big advantage in height and weight, plus superior ball handling, gave Marquette possession a great proportion of the time, and if the Hilltoppers' shooting had been more accurate Marquette's score would have been much larger. Ray Morstadt, playing in the pivot position for Marquette, was able to swing around the short Lang for four baskets, and got himself fouled for a total of eight points from free throws.

ILLINOIS, 21; KNOX, 18

Galesburg, Ill., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Knox threw a scare into the University of Illinois basketball team tonight when it took the lead at the middle of the second half, but Hellmich sank three baskets in a row to give the Illini a 21 to 18 victory. Knox outscored the Illini in the second half after the visitors had led 11 to 7 at the rest period.

Illinois had the advantage in height, taking the tip off on every occasion and grabbing the ball on many Knox passes.

With ten minutes to play in the second half, John Lewis put Knox in the lead when he tipped in a rebound. Bowman dribbled in for a short shot to give the Siwashers a 16 to 13 advantage. Hellmich then sank three in a row and Mills followed with a sleeper before Bill Lewis of Knox broke through for a goal.

LOYOLA WINS, 30-17

Loyola university won its second game of the season last night at the Loyola gymnasium, defeating Columbia college of Dubuque, 30 to 17.

The Ramblers took an early lead and never were threatened. Columbia was guilty of 21 fouls when its defense tried to stop the fast breaking Loyola attack. Loyola converted only 12 of its 24 free throw chances.

NEUSEL SPOTS FOE 50 POUNDS AND BEATS HIM

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Walter Neusel, German heavyweight, gave Ray Impellittiere, Cold Springs, N. Y., giant, every physical advantage in their ten round bout before about 6,000 boxing fans in Madison Square Garden tonight. Then he proceeded to give him a beating. Lighter by 50½ pounds, smaller by 5½ inches, and shorter in reach by 6½ inches, Neusel made up for all of this with a reckless offensive through nine of the ten rounds and carried off the unanimous decision of Referee Arthur Donovan and Judges Tommy Shortell and Jim Buckley.

Iowa-Iowa State Game Nets Each School $6,555

Ames, Ia., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—When the University of Iowa and Iowa State college found Nov. 4 open on their 1933 football schedules and got together for a football game, they turned a Saturday of no income into a Saturday of profit badly needed by both athletic departments. A report by the State university shows that 13,832 paid to see the two state schools play. An equal division of the gate gave each school $6,555.39.

BRITON IS DOWN SEVEN TIMES IN 10 ROUND FIGHT

12,000 Pay $19,000 to See Him Catch.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The 12,000 folks who were out on a holiday and were willing to pay $19,000 for their night's entertainment were introduced to the greatest catcher in the world over on the west side at the Chicago Stadium last evening.

The lad's name is Don [or is it Dinnie?] McCorkindale, the Scotch-Irishman from South Africa.

Jimmy Archer, Johnny Kling, Old Billy Sullivan and our modern Gabby Hartnett and Mickey Cochrane were put to shame by this big fellow from down on the other side of the world. That McCorkindale boy caught 'em, from the top of his trunks to the tips' of his ears not once, but a thousand times.

It's Tough on the Tights.

On seven occasions the caboose end of the purple tights which the Briton was wearing were down in the resin dust. Not for long on any occasion, but nevertheless down there, and those purple tights with the insignia of the Union Jack sewed into them will have to go to the dry cleaners this morning.

Kingfish Levinsky, from our great big fish market in Maxwell street, who did the pitching which won McCorkindale all his fame as a catcher, took particular delight in pecking away at the area just above the Union Jack which was on the left hip of McCorkindale's trunks. Let's all hope it doesn't bring any international complications.

You've Guesed It.

Who do you suppose won the fight? The old Kingfish, of course. The judges and the referee scored all 10 rounds for Levinsky. So did everybody else but Mrs. McCorkindale from London. She thought the second and seventh rounds should have been even.

We don't suppose anybody else in the house agreed with Mrs. McCorkindale.

They couldn't, for Leapin' Lena Levinsky, the sister manager of the great Kingfish, had outrooted Mrs. McCorkindale from the first tap of the bell until the tired and battered Britisher flopped into his chair in the southeast corner of the ring at the end of the tenth.

Boy! This Is Cheering.

Lena rooted with so much enthusiasm at times that our telegraph operator, threw up both hands and shouted:

"Help! I can't hear the dots and dashes!"

McCorkindale was down four times in the first round, once from a good solid right to the head and on the other three occasions he was pushed over.

McCorkindale was down again in the fourth round. He was knocked down again in the eighth, and once more in the tenth.

The Kingfish never hit a guy so hard and so often. Yet the power of a knockout punch seemed to be nowhere in the Kingfish's system. He hit and he landed and this great catcher from the British Isles was knocked down. He didn't let the timekeeper start counting. He was on his feet again, taking more punishment, before anybody could say "one."

When the Kingfish wasn't knocking McCorkindale down he was lambasting him all over the ring. Yet the Kingfish puffed and flopped around at times like one of the big mackerels he sells might do when out of the channel and on dry land. A lot of the punches the Kingfish unbelted went wild and only the ceiling of the Stadium prevented them from sailing out to the end of the Municipal pier.

Government Too Late.

They said the winner of this fight will meet Max Schmeling or Max Baer. Of course it will be the Kingfish. And Lord help the Kingfish if he can't hit any harder than he did against McCorkindale!

Maj. Plamondon of the United States internal revenue bureau tried to put a plaster on Levinsky's purse of $5,000 [33 1-3 of $15,000 net], but Levinsky already had collected the money. When the match was signed two weeks ago Charles Bidwill of the Stadium advanced Levinsky $6,000, it was said. The government is seeking income taxes of $1,400 from Levinsky and $1,100 from Mrs. Levy.

In the opening bout, Adolph Wiater, Green Bay, Wis., 187, defeated Bob Stone, Chicago, 180, in four rounds. Wiater was a member of last year's Golden Gloves team.

Young Walker, Chicago, 147½, won by a technical knockout over Jimmy Phillips, Newark, 148, in the sixth and final round. Referee Norm McGarrity stopped the fight when Phillips was unable to defend himself.

COLLEGE SPORTS CHIEFS DISCUSS RECRUITING CODE

Committee Is Named to Set Up Standard.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Members of the National Collegiate Athletic association, who opened their 28th annual convention yesterday, voted at the conclusion of an afternoon round table discussion to recommend that the executive committee appoint a fact finding group to define recruiting and subsidizing of athletes. Such a definition then would be a standard which universities and intercollegiate conferences might use.

Since the National Collegiate association is not a legislative body and its activity always has been based on a program of education for standard requirements for competition, yesterday's discussion of recruiting and subsidizing, at which Kenneth L. [Tug] Wilson presided as chairman, provided only a collection of personal ideas. No university or intercollegiate conference could be bound by any action of the N. C. A. A., although several speakers mentioned means of strengthening the position of physical directors and coaches, such as affiliation with national professorial groups.

Coaches Try to Save Jobs.

In the main, the conversations followed the same cycle of thought, with the reasoning of the idealists conflicting with the realists, who brought out that outside influences, by alumni, legislators, or influential men, resulted in the firing of the football coach if his teams did not win a sufficient number of games. This constant threat coerced coaches frequently to seek material which would strengthen their teams.

"The integrity of the coach is the answer to the problem," according to H. O. [Fritz] Crisler, football coach at Princeton university. To this, however, was added that the coach, no matter how honest, needed the backing of his university in dealing with alumni interference and attendant problems of recruiting and subsidizing.

Three Would Pay Players.

On a vote to find how many coaches would favor a proposal to pay football players, only three raised their hands in response to the question from Mr. Wilson. The vote immediately brought several coaches and directors to their feet for a discussion of amateurism. Inability to define subsidizing when confined to scholarships or jobs, and the argument that athletes, because they are athletes, should not be discriminated against, took the convention back over familiar paths.

The coaches agreed that there is tendency in the public mind to believe that a winning team has been recruited in part and that the losing team must per se be composed of amateurs. W. O. Hunter, director of athletics at the University of Southern California, decried this tendency and also added that as long as a university was accepted in its respective conference, other universities, unfamiliar with local conditions, should not be prone to criticize.

Admit Some Recruiting.

Off the record, several directors admitted that while conditions have been improved tremendously in the last 10 years, high school athletes will be solicited to attend certain universities as long as receipts from football are necessary to carry on departmental work and as long as a coach's tenure of office depends on winning games. That this recruiting may be within the present code in many conferences was admitted.

At the round table discussion yesterday morning on the subject of an athletic budget, conducted by Romeyn Berry of Cornell university, the directors agreed that the present depression, at least, has made them into better business men. It has induced many football coaches to assist in intramural collegiate sports, Mr. Wilson told the members. Director Wilson said Northwestern's athletic receipts had dropped from $500,000 to $200,000 annually since the big years of 1928 and 1929.

A move to fight against the government tax on tickets to college athletic games, instituted a year ago, gained impetus. Most directors were in favor of appointing a committee to go before congress at its next session. Failing in their demands to congress, a test suit for a refund may be started.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

CHARLES BIDWILL, president of the Chicago Stadium Operating company, had to advance King Levinsky three or four grand before the Orchid of Maxwell street would sign for the McCorkindale bout. . . .

CHARLES W. BIDWILL.

Dick Hanley whose all-east football team meets a similar group from the far west in San Francisco Monday, made a 175 yard hole in one at the Lakeside Golf club in the coast city the other day. . . .

Tod Rockwell quarter back at Michigan 10 years ago, claims credit for much of Red Grange's football fame. . . . He was safety man for the Wolverines the day Red made five touchdowns at Champaign, and he never laid hands on him all afternoon. . . . Rockwell is now a reporter for the Detroit Free Press. . . . Bill Hoskett, who has been ruled ineligible for the Ohio State basketball team, has joined a Columbus semi-pro five. . . . Hal Chase, one of the greatest first basemen baseball has produced, washes automobiles in a Tucson, Ariz., garage at 50 cents a wash. . . . He gets an occasional CWA job, and lives in a tourist camp. . . .

Football coaches employing the Warner system are urging the rules committee to follow the lead of professionals who permit a forward pass to be thrown from anywhere behind the line of scrimmage. . . . They say the game needs more offense. . . . None of them was heard to protest the restrictions on backfield shifts when legislation was put through a few years ago. . . . There was no lack of offense before shifting backs were required to come to a complete stop after each hop. . . .

Harry Grabiner, White Sox vice president whose departure for Miami Beach was noted in this column, announced at the station that all he proposed doing was loll in the sands and sleep ten hours a night. . . This program will work out swell until someone wires him that the grandstand roof is leaking or some one has broken in and stolen all the clubhouse plumbing. . . Then Harry will go back to his normal schedule of one hour's sleep a day. . . Johnny Maulbetsch, one of Michigan's most widely known football alumni, is running a restaurant in Huntington, W. Va., near Marshall college. . . Frank McCormick, Minnesota athletic director, saw the Gophers lose a one sided basketball game to De Paul Wednesday night. . . It is almost universally admitted that a pitcher's worth should be measured by his earned run average. . . Taylor Spink, editor of the Sporting News, advances the sound idea that this record should be included in the daily box scores instead of compelling fans to wait until December when the official averages are released. . .

Charles E. [Gus] Dorais, coach at the University of Detroit, attributes Notre Dame's rise to athletic fame to a New York reporter who in 1913, on the eve of the first Army-Notre Dame game, wrote that the Cadets were engaging an unknown eleven from South Bend, Illinois. . . "That made us so mad, we decided to show 'em something," he explained, "so we ran up a score of 35 to 13." . . This game you will recall, marked the first successful execution of the forward pass . . . Notre Dame started to fire them right after the kickoff. . . After three were completed the Army took time out and decided to drop its secondary defense about 20 yards behind the scrimmage line. . . Dorais then used Ray Eichenlaub, a hard plunger, to rip through the line. . . Again Army took time out. . . This time they moved the secondary up behind the line to stop Eichenlaub's drives. . . Dorais then renewed his passing attack over their heads. . . This went on and on until the timekeeper called a halt.

Northwestern is relying on Bill Henderson, former Senn High school player, to replace Ed. Manske at end on the 1934 eleven. . . John Sabo, formerly assistant football coach at Illinois, is among the leading candidates for the University of Texas coaching job. . . The puck used in Detroit hockey games is given away as an attendance prize. . . The name of Zeke Bonura, the Sox's new first baseman, is not Ezekial, but Henry. . . The Zeke grew out of an anecdote concerning a lady's comment on his physique.

149 SKI RIDERS ALL SET; TRIBUNE MEET TOMORROW

Record Entry List for Riis Park Event.

The third annual ski tournament, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and the northwest park district, will be held tomorrow afternoon at Riis park, Fullerton and Meade avenues.

One hundred and forty-nine boys have entered the competition this year, a record list. From these competitors will come four champions who will receive gold medals. Those who finish second and third will receive silver and bronze medals, respectively. In addition a silver cup is offered as a prize for the team which scores the most points in all divisions. Last year the Norge Ski club won the trophy and the entrants from that club are intent on defending the championship.

Other Clubs Threaten.

The Norge club, however, will have a difficult time winning from the Forest Preserve Ski club, the Fox Athletic club, and the Ishpeming, Mich., Ski club, which has entered a team of six brothers. One of these lads holds the national ski jumping record of more than 180 feet.

The Riis park slide, repaired and put into the best of condition, will permit jumps of better than 40 feet. Form and distance will count in determining the final standings in each class.

All contestants must report tomorrow between 12 and 1 o'clock for their numbers. The contests will begin at 1:30. All those competing and the officials will parade from the fieldhouse to the slide at that time.

GIRL SAYS BAER BROKE PROMISE; DEMANDS $150,000

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Summons and complaint in a $150,000 breach of promise action brought by Bee Starr, a circus aerialist, were served today on Max Baer, heavyweight boxer now appearing here in a night club. The complaint must be answered within 20 days in the State Supreme court.

Baer, who expects to fight Primo Carnera for the heavyweight title in June, insisted that he had never met Miss Starr.

Cunningham Is Voted Leading U. S. Athlete

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Glen Cunningham, middle distance runner of the University of Kansas, tonight was adjudged the winner of the James E. Sullivan memorial medal for 1933.

Cunningham won by a single vote over Bill Bonthron, Princeton track ace, in the closest race in the history of the award, given annually to the amateur athlete who by his example and influence has done most during the year to advance the cause of sportsmanship.

Glen Gets 611 Votes.

Six hundred outstanding leaders in the world of sport, representing all sections of the country, composed the tribunal for the award and gave Cunningham a total of 611 votes, against 610 for Bonthron, who forced Jack Lovelock of New Zealand to a new one mile record in a sensational race at Princeton last summer.

Cunningham, one of the greatest runners developed in this country in recent times, is the National A. A. U. 800 and 1,500 meter champion and the National Collegiate A. A. mile champion and record holder.

Bonthron Sets Mile Record.

Bonthron set up a new American record for the mile, 4 minutes 8 7-10 seconds, on July 15, when he finished a close second to Lovelock, who was clocked in 4:07.6.

In third place, far behind the leaders, was Alfred Jochim of New York, gymnast. He received 294 votes against 291 for Pat McDonald, veteran weight thrower, also of New York.

Trailing these were Clarence De Mar, veteran marathon runner, 277; Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette, national sprint champion, 206; Lenore Kight of Homestead, Pa., free style swimming star, 191; Glen Hardin, Louisiana State hurdler, 127, and Keith Brown, Yale polevaulter, 69.

Second Kansas Star Honored.

Cunningham is the second Kansas athlete in as many years to receive the award. Jim Bausch, former University of Kansas football player and winner of the Olympic decathlon title at Los Angeles, captured the prize in 1932.

Other winners were Barney Berlinger of the University of Pennsylvania in 1931 and Bobby Jones in 1930.

In the Wake of the News

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: In 1850 my great-grandparents came to Chicago from Buffalo, N. Y., moving into an abandoned squatter's home situated on what is now the northwest corner of 35th and Federal streets. At that time there were only a few scattered houses within a radius of several miles.

Believing the building belonged to some one, they scrupulously saved up rent money month after month, but no landlord ever appeared.

Chunks of firewood thrown off by firemen on the woodburning locomotives which ran close to their home constituted a large portion of their fuel. For provisions they traveled on foot to Schoellkopf's grocery on Randolph street. The house in which they lived was demolished only in recent years and was last used as an office by a coal company.

Camp Douglas, wherein thousands of Confederate prisoners were confined during the civil war, was in the immediate vicinity. Grandfather as a boy of 10 years often visited the camp. He and his chums were allowed to go and come as they pleased by the good natured soldiers on guard. Their only admission fee was an occasional whack over the posterior from the butt end of a rifle. JOSEPH C. LUTZ.

To clear up a disputed point, Ed Williamson played third base and Tom Burns shortstop from the time they joined the old Chicago White Stockings until after the close of the 1885 season. Burns came to begin the 1880 season and Williamson in 1879.

Capt. Anson was not satisfied with the way Burns covered short, so when Jimmy Ryan, a left handed thrower, joined the team late in 1885, Anson put Jimmy at short, where he did surprisingly well. The next spring, however, Williamson went to short, Burns to third and Ryan to left field, where he displaced Abner Dalrymple. Dal hung on during the season, but later was sold to Pittsburgh.

Fred Pfeffer played on his home town team, Louisville, until the spring of '82. Then he went to Troy, playing shortstop. Al Spalding brought him to Chicago to start the 1883 season and he succeeded Joe Quest at second base. Unless he has passed on recently, Quest is living at Fairhope, Ala. IRWIN M. HOWE.

Dunlap Again Wins Pinehurst Golf Title

Pinehurst, N. C., Dec. 29.—(AP)—George T. Dunlap Jr., the national amateur golf champion, won his eighth Pinehurst midwinter golf title in nine years today by defeating Dick Wilson of Southern Pines, 2 and 1, in the 18 hole final round.

TROPICAL PARK OPENS FLORIDA RACING TODAY

Gold Step Picked to Take Inaugural.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 29.—(AP)—A fast strip awaited the thundering hoofs that tomorrow will open the Florida racing season at Tropical Park, with an expected attendance of between 12,000 and 15,000 persons.

Gold Step, veteran from the stable of Mrs. Sheldon H. Fairbanks and one of 1933's top sprinters, apparently will go to the post as the favorite in the Inaugural handicap.

Carrying an impost of 126, ten pounds more than Ever Gold, of the Shandon farm, Gold Step's record of the last summer is expected to persuade most of the trackgoers to string along with him.

Ten horses were nominated for the Inaugural, but only seven were regarded as probable starters tonight.

Florida races 79 days at three tracks this season, with the two Miami ovals, Tropical and Hialeah, splitting the period.

*Fancy Flight [R. Moser], 106.
Crowning Glory [E. Steffen], 115.
Gold Step [E. Porter], 126.
Leval [M. Guest], 110.
Ever Gold [L. Ruder], 116.
*Feudal Lord [L. Schaefer], 109.

Women's Cue Tourney to Start Jan. 9

The women's second national amateur pocket billiard tournament will be held in Chicago at the 131 South Wabash Avenue Recreation, Jan. 9 and 10.

Mrs. Gertrude Baker McEvoy of New York City, present national champion, will defend her title against the two sectional winners, Miss Georgia Veatch of Chicago, western sectional champion, and Mrs. Irene Hummel of New York City, eastern sectional champion.

Will Play Round Robin.

Mrs. McEvoy won the first national title to be awarded in the women's amateur division by the National Billiard Association of America when she defeated Miss Veatch last year in New York in a four 50 point block match, 200 to 198.

This year the tournament will be a twice around round robin match, each player meeting the other twice. There will be a total of six games, each for 35 balls, at the lineup style of pocket billiards. The title is not open for challenge, but must be defended at the next tournament.

Cup for Winner.

A silver cup donated by the National Billiard Association of America, sponsor of the tournament, will be presented to the winner by Mrs. Florence Robnett, dean of women of Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill.

YANKEES MAKE SHAWKEY PILOT OF NEWARK CLUB

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Robert J. Shawkey today was appointed manager of the Newark Bears for 1934. Announcement of the appointment was made by George M. Weiss, head of the chain store system of the New York Yankees, who operate the Newark club as their principal farm.

Succeeding Al Mamaux, also a former major league pitching star, who piloted the Bears for the last three seasons, Shawkey returns to a position of prominence in the Ruppert organization, under whose colors he won his greatest fame as a pitcher. He subsequently managed the Yankees for one season. His contract to manage the Newark club is for one season.

IF YOU'RE AFTER SOME FUN VISIT A MONKEY HOUSE

Apes at Lincoln Park Zoo Offer Amusement.

BY BOB BECKER.

When a visitor goes to the Lincoln park zoo and finds the lions, Bengal tiger, Siberian tigress, and the other big cats sleeping and therefore zero in entertainment, he has only to walk a few steps into the "monkey house" to secure plenty of amusement.

Among the baboons, the rhesus monkeys from Africa, cherry headed Mangabeys, the chimpanzees, the woolly and spider monkeys from South America, and the other animals on exhibition are all kinds of comedians. Some are unconsciously funny. Others seem to have developed a sort of "showoff" complex and deliberately do all kinds of outlandish stunts to amuse their "public."

Large Collection of Apes.

Although the average visitor to the Lincoln park zoo may not realize it, he has the opportunity to see there one of the most complete and valuable groups of large apes in the country. In fact, the chimpanzees, the ourang-utans, and the gorilla virtually are a whole show in themselves. Probably the funniest looking ape in the zoo is the Sumatra orang-utan. Look for him the next time you go to the zoo.

You can't help but laugh when you just see this fellow, because he has the most ridiculous set of chin whiskers to be found on any ape. These whiskers are long, have a peculiar "cut" to them and are reddish brown in color. The other morning this gentle, tame ourang-utan came up to the bars to be petted by Floyd S. Young, superintendent of the zoo. When Mr. Young finished arranging the ourang-utan's beard into two sections, each pointed, this sad faced, bewhiskered ape made us laugh, even though he didn't do anything but sit perfectly still against the bars.

Take Cod Liver Oil.

When we walked into the monkey house the other morning we saw an attendant passing behind all the cages with a big brown bottle. He was taking small things from the bottle and handing them to all the monkeys, large and small. The monkeys would reach their small hands through the bars, grab what was offered, and eat it.

Later Mr. Young told us that the animals were getting their ration of cod liver oil tablets. All of the monkeys are given a diet which provides the correct vitamins for their health. To make sure that vitamin A is in the diet in sufficient quantity they are supplied with cod liver oil tablets or the oil itself.

Glass Protects Visitors.

Visitors to the building which houses the monkeys in Lincoln park may wonder why there are big glass fronts in front of the cages containing the chimpanzees, the ourang-utans and the gorilla. At least this glass partition between the cages and the public puzzled us. There are several reasons why this arrangement is necessary, the most important of which is protection of visitors from the big apes.

Even if there were no glass partition, the big fellows can't reach anybody. That isn't the worry of zoo officials. But those chimps and ourangs have no manners. They can expectorate so far and so accurately that a fellow isn't safe eight feet from their cages. Without that big glass in front of the cages the fun of watching the big apes would resolve itself into a dodging contest. We know because we met those big apes at close quarters the other day.

200 Expected to Enter Illinois A. C. Boxing Tourney

Entries are being received for the invitational amateur boxing tournament at the Illinois Athletic club on Jan. 23 and 24. The first entry was received yesterday from Herman Wright, who has entered in the featherweight division unattached. Over 200 boys are expected to compete. The preliminary bouts have been tentatively set at three rounds at two minutes each and the semi-finals and finals three rounds at three minutes. Applications should be mailed to Johnny Behr, athletic director, at 112 South Michigan avenue.

The boxing committee of the Central A. A. U. yesterday approved applications and renewals for licenses of 18 officials. The list comprised four physicians, six timekeepers, six judges, one announcer, and one referee. A tournament at the Arcadia Gardens Jan. 15, 22 and 30 was sanctioned. It also was announced that final bouts in the colored tournment at the Savoy arena beginning Jan. 9 will be five rounds at two minutes each.

Meyer Grace, Indianapolis, Ind., welterweight, will arrive tomorrow for his eight round match with Pee Wee Jarrell of Fort Wayne, at White City Monday afternoon. He will be making his first appearance here in several years. In his latest he defeated Jackie Purvis at Indianapolis last Wednesday.

Jarrell signed with Johnny Coulon yesterday to face Henry Rothier in an eight round match at the Rainbo Fronton next Friday night. In case he is beaten Monday, Grace may replace him.

Art Zimmer, Chicago junior lightweight, yesterday was substituted for Jimmy Richards in a four round preliminary encounter against Hugh Allen at Cicero stadium New Year's afternoon. Johnny Phagen and Solly Dukelsky, and Roy Williams and Larry Johnson, end boxing today for their feature bouts on the card.

HYDE PARK AND PARKER WIN IN BASKET TOURNEY

Tourney Facts

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.
[Quarter finals.]
Harrison, 28; Tuley, 17.
Lane, 31; Austin, 29.
Parker, 28; Blue Island, 10.
Hyde Park, 23; Marshall, 17.

TODAY'S GAMES.
[Semi-finals.]
7 p. m.—Harrison vs. Lane.
8 p. m.—Parker vs. Hyde Park.

Hyde Park's lightweights did it again last night. For the third time in three days Coach Elliot Hassan's scrapping youngsters came through in the University of Chicago's prep basketball meet, this time to defeat Marshall by a score of 23 to 17 and to win the right to face Parker in the semi-finals tonight.

Yesterday's games reduced the contenders to four, all of them city teams: Harrison from the central section, Lane from the north, and Parker and Hyde Park from the south. Harrison will meet Lane tonight in the first semi-final match, and all four of yesterday's victors will play Monday, either for the championship or for third place.

Lead Changes Rapidly.

Lennie Garmisa, sixteen year old stripling from Hyde Park, was again his team's hero. Entering the game with his lightweight mates in the middle of the second quarter, he piled in three baskets and a free throw to lead the scoring. Marshall's quintet was little bigger than Hyde Park's team and just as fast. The encounter went on at a furious pace, with the lead changing five times. Morris Adelstein's goal gave Marshall a lead of 7 to 5 at half time.

Garmisa tied it up with a corner shot. Marshall went ahead on Goldman's goal, but Porter's free throw and Garmisa's next shot put Hyde Park into a lead which it retained. In the closing minutes Hyde Park stalled in the front court and did it so cleverly that they counted three free throws and a basket.

Parker, which will have a big height advantage over Hyde Park tonight, used its height in routing Blue Island, last suburban team surviving, by a score of 28 to 10 in the first game of the evening. The game was decided by Parker's ability to control the tipoff and the backboards. Leonard Rumpf, six foot six center, and Bob Peterson, sharp shooting forward, were credited with eight points each. Blue Island penetrated the Parker defense successfully only three times.

Lane Whips Austin.

Lane, a semi-finalist last year, won that honor again at the expense of the strong Austin team, which was defeated, 31 to 29. Slow to start, Lane has three times overcome early leads built up by opponents. The Tech team plays a methodical game, increasing its speed as it goes. Austin led, 8 to 0, in the first quarter before Steve Lakner and Capt. Polachanin of Lane started on a series of workmanlike scoring plays. Jack Drees, tall Austin center, was held to seven points, but Lee Harmon, a fine forward, kept Austin in the game with five baskets. The score was tied four times and Austin led by a point twice in the last quarter before Lakner made three points for the victory.

It took Russell Hamm, Harrison forward, to unravel the mystery which carried Tuley through two rounds. In the first afternoon game Hamm dropped in two shots on the first plays, and George Wenskus then took up the burden. Tuley rallied briefly at the start of the second half, but was unable to sustain an offense and the game ended with Harrison still in front, 25 to 17.

CENTRALIA HIGH WINS FINAL AT PONTIAC, 34 TO 28

Pontiac, Ill., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Centralia High school won the Pontiac holiday basketball tournament tonight, defeating Benton, 34 to 28. Centralia led at every quarter. Late in the game Ludwig's basket put Benton ahead, 28 to 27. Branson evened the count on Aiken's foul. Waterbury's basket and free throws by Welborn and Spurgeon regained the lead for Centralia.

Springfield beat Mahomet, 21 to 15, to win the consolation championship.

MISSISSIPPI FIVE LOSES, 39-37, TO ILLINOIS COLLEGE

Jacksonville, Ill., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Three free throws in the last four minutes of play tonight gave Illinois college a 39 to 37 victory over Mississippi college, Clinton, Miss., in a basketball game here.

Illinois led the visitors, 24 to 12, at the half, but Mississippi whittled down the margin and took the lead with four minutes to play. Winn, Illinois guard, tossed in 13 points to lead the scoring.

Notre Dame, Wisconsin Out to Extend Win Streaks Tonight

Notre Dame and University of Wisconsin basketball teams will defend their undefeated records tonight. Notre Dame meets Northwestern in another chapter of their traditional series at Patten gymnasium in Evanston and the Badgers oppose Butler in Madison.

JOE VOEGELE.

The Irish, who have met Northwestern twice annually for the last six years, will be seeking their eighteenth consecutive victory. It will be the second game between the schools this season, Notre Dame having won the first at South Bend, 28 to 24. The Badgers, who have won five straight games, face their hardest test against Butler.

Wildcats Must Stop Krause.

In addition to the Wildcats the Irish this season have beaten Kalamazoo, Ball State Teachers, Albion, Purdue, and Bradley. Capt. Ed Krause, 6 foot 3 inch star, kingpin of the Notre Dame attack, will be at center. The former Chicago high school star, along with Peters, Voegele, Crowe, and Newbold, were named for the starting lineup by Coach George Keogan yesterday.

Coach Dutch Lonborg of Northwestern has shifted his lineup since the return of Al Kawal after recovering from football injuries. Lonborg sent Eggs Manske to forward. He will pair with Del Prendergast, sophomore. The guards will be Culver and Kawal, with Red Kopecky, 200 pound sophomore, at center.

Together Eight Years.

Butler will represent a squad against the Badgers which has played together for the last eight years. All regulars of the Hoosier quintet started together at an Indianapolis high school and have played as a unit since. Demmary, 6 foot 3 inch center, gives Butler a good chance to mar the Badgers' record.

Wisconsin, against its five opponents this year, has piled up 196 points. Butler has played four games and scored 134 points. The Badgers will be without the services of Ed Stege, sophomore center.

A third Golden Gloves fighter won when Frankie Segilio, Chicago, 136, knocked out Frankie Keevil, Chicago, 136, in the second round of a scheduled four-rounder. A perfect left hook to the chin sent Keevil down for the count.

Karl Ogren, Chicago, 163¼, another former Golden Glove champion, stopped Young Stuhley, Kewance, Ill., 161, in the third round of a scheduled six rounder. Stuhley fell out of the ring in the second as the result of a punch and the refere reached a count of nineteen before he was able to get back in. A moment later he went down for the count of eight, but this time the bell came to his rescue. In the third round Ogren hit him flush on the jaw and he fell. The referee started to count, but stopped, and waved him out.

HAWKS PREPARE FOR GAME WITH TORONTO JAN. 1

Despite the report of Trainer Eddie Froelich that half of the Blackhawks were either cut or bruised in Thursday's contest with the Ottawa Senators, Manager Tommy Gorman ordered practice for today and tomorrow afternoon in preparation for the game with the Toronto Maple Leafs at the Stadium Monday night.

John Gottselig's two assists Thursday night placed him high among the first five scorers in the United States division list which now reads:

	Goals.	Assists.	Pts.
Barry, Boston	9	5	14
Gottselig, Chicago	5	8	13
Sorrell, Detroit	9	4	13
Boucher, New York Rangers	2	10	12
Aurie, Detroit	6	6	12

Duke Dutkowski, defense player, who was loaned to the Hawks by the Syracuse team when Art Coulter was injured two weeks ago, was sent back to his team last night and Louis Trudel, left winger, who took Dutkowski's place during his time of service with the Blackhawks, will report in time for this afternoon's practice.

GUS SONNENBERG MEETS SMITH AT ARCADIA JAN. 12

PARIS, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The American light heavyweight, Jimmy Taranto, outpointed Young Lauriot of France in 10 rounds tonight.

Madden Is Easy for Frank Parker in Junior Tennis

Allowing his quarter-final round opponent, Robert Madden of Pittsburgh, only six points in the opening set, and reeling off a series of aces, Parker made short work of the eighth seeded player to win, 6-1, 6-2.

Parker, who has not yet been extended to three sets in the tourney, and who has yielded no more than three games in a single set, meets Jack Behr of the Roxbury school, seeded No. 5, in the upper semi-final tomorrow.

Gilbert A. Hunt Jr. of Massachusetts Tech achieved something of an unexpected triumph today over George H. Ball of Northwestern university, who was seeded fourth. The scores were 6-1, 6-2.

The manner in which Hunt won indicated that he may cause much trouble for Joseph L. Abrams of New York, the No. 2 player, whom he meets in the upper semi-final tomorrow. Abrams advanced by defeating Lester Steifberg of New York university, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

In the boys' division Melvin Lapman of New York conquered Lyman W. Crossman Jr., the No. 1 favorite, 8-6, 3-6, 6-2.

The Doubles found Frankie Parker and Phil Osborne, the Lawrenceville top favored pair, advancing to the semi-finals by an easy victory in love sets. They will meet the Rodman-Hunt combination in their semi-final.

George Halas, coach and president of the Chicago Bears, world's professional football champions, yesterday invited the winner of the Stanford-Columbia Rose Bowl game Monday at Pasadena to play the Bears at San Francisco Jan. 6.

The Bears are planning an exhibition tour of the southwest and Pacific coast and want to meet the collegians for the benefit of Knights of Columbus charities in San Francisco. They have a game carded in Dallas for Jan. 6 but would postpone that for a shot at either Stanford or Columbia.

Other games on the Bears' schedule are against Ernie Pinckert's Southern California All-Stars at Los Angeles Jan. 14, and contests at Fresno, Jan. 24; at Los Angeles, Jan. 28, and at San Diego, Feb. 4.

The baseball players' lineup also will include Ray Schalk of the Yankees, Milt Bocek of the White Sox, Jim Smilgoff and Irv Cohen, Davenport, Mississippi Valley league; Chick Starr, St. Joseph, Western league; Dave Goodman, New Orleans, and Andy Marsh, Logan Squares. Two preliminary games will be played. The first will start at 1:30 p. m.

Army and Navy to Meet in Five Sports in 1934

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Teams of the naval and military academies will meet in five sports during 1934 as follows: Basketball, Feb. 24, at West Point; baseball and track, May 26, at Annapolis; lacrosse, May 26, at Annapolis; football, Dec. 1, at Franklin field, Philadelphia. Last year the army won in football, lacrosse, and track, while the navy was ahead in basketball and baseball.

East and West Elevens Drill Despite Rain

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Through steady rain this afternoon, the eastern and western squads took final heavy workouts for the annual East-West charity football game here New Year's day.

The fields were wet, but the players sloshed through practice that included light scrimmage on the part of the easterners and defensive preparations by the westerners.

Coaches Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley of the eastern team mixed up a scrimmage session during the two hour turnout, meanwhile switching players in and out of positions in an effort to determine the best starting combination. Wet weather was the least of their worries, according to Coach Kerr, who pointed out the eastern boys "thrive on rain."

Make Back Field Changes.

"We get plenty of this kind of weather back east," Kerr said. "Here you fellows run to cover after the second rain drop, but it doesn't bother us. I don't think it will affect our play if it rains all day next Monday."

Backfield changes were made again with both Charles Soleau of Colgate and Paul Pardonner of Purdue alternating at the quarter back position on what is expected to be the eleven that lines up for the kickoff. Beattie Feathers of Tennessee was used frequently at the left half back berth, as was Herman Everhardus of Michigan. Mike Sebastian of Pittsburgh and Joe Laws of Iowa, took turns at right half and Nick Lukats of Notre Dame and Ed Danowski of Fordham divided the full back duties.

Four Starters Announced.

While the rest of the team that will assemble for the kickoff has pretty well been decided upon, the coaches said they would not be ready to make an announcement until the day before the game.

The rain that doused the east's Stanford university field also soaked the westerners' gathering ground at the University of California. After a 45 minute turnout, Coaches Percy Locey and Orin Hollingbery brought their charges inside for a "chalk talk."

Signal drill and concentration and defense made up the west's practice. "They've got the plays and now it is a matter of polishing up," said Coach Locey.

The western leaders said they were not afraid of rainy weather.

"It will affect both teams," Locey declared, "but I think we will suffer less. We have a more powerful back field and should benefit in the work on the ground."

NAMES HURT, WHITE SAYS IN DIVORCE ACTION

It wasn't the sticks and stones she threw, but the names she called him which really hurt, Charley White, former lightweight boxer, charged in a crossbill for divorce which he filed yesterday against Mrs. Stella White, 1103 North Shore avenue, before Judge Joseph Sabath in the Superior court.

White charges his wife with cruelty, the same charge she made in her original bill for divorce. The incidents charged extended from 1922, when he charges she struck and kicked him, to April 8 of this year, when he charges that she locked him out of the house and threw a piece of glass at him, cutting him. But the crowning indignity, his bill indicates, is the fact that Mrs. White "has persistently called him an illiterate and ugly individual."

Reds Want Ruth as Manager, But Ruppert Says No

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds, in their quest for a new manager, tried to get Babe Ruth, but all they got was a vociferous "No!" from Col. Jacob Ruppert of the Yankees, Larry MacPhail, general manager of the Reds, said today.

He said an American league club owner told him Col. Ruppert had agreed to give the Bambino his release if he could get a job as manager, and that Ruth had made known he would sign to manage a club for $35,000 a year.

The informant was authorized to approach the head of the Yankees. Besides the decision "No" he also brought back, MacPhail said, the information that Ruppert would let the Babe go to any American league club, but would not consider permitting him to go over to the National league.

Swimmers Break 5 U. S. Records in Miami Pool

Miami, Fla., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Five national swimming records were swept into the discard today, making a total of nine in the first two days of the Olympic stars' meet.

LEONARD SPENCE.

Leonard Spence of the New York Athletic club was in the lead with three national records, with Anne Govednik of Chisholm, Minn.; Alice Bridges of Whitinsville, Miss., and Lenore Kight of Homestead, Pa., trailing him with two each.

Miss Kight had to content herself with equaling her own record of 3:23 2-5 for the 200 yard free style short course.

Spence's victories came over the 500 meter short course. He lowered the previous mark of 8 minutes by 12 and 4-5 seconds. He was clocked at the 500 yard line in 7:04. The previous time for the distance was 7:18 3-5.

Miss Govednik was timed at 2:58 1-5 seconds to better the previous 200 yard breast stroke mark by 9 1-5 seconds. The former time was swam in 1932 by Katherine Rawls of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., at Newburg, N. Y.

Ralph Flanagan of Miami bettered by 10 1-5 seconds Buster Crabbe's time in the 500 meter free style. Flanagan was clocked at 6:30 1-5. Crabbe established his record at Honolulu in 1931.

The fifth national record of the day came when Miss Bridges swam the 50 yard back stroke in :33 1-5, supplanting the previous mark of :34 3-5 set by the late Sybil Bauer in 1928.

GIRL SWIMMING STARS TO RACE AT UNION LEAGUE

The young women stars from the Lake Shore Athletic club invade the Union League club on New Year's day for a swimming exhibition. Elmina Shemaitis, captain of the team, and Central A. A. U. 220 yard free style champion, heads the list of swimmers and divers who will appear.

LEADING PLACES AT STAKE IN K. OF C. LEAGUE

Leading positions in both the south and west sections of the Knights of Columbus basketball league again will be at stake tomorrow when the two divisions stage their weekly contests. In the west section, Damen and Hughes, both unbeaten, will clash to determine first place. The south section, where four teams are on a par for top position, is featured by the games between Englewood and McHale and Loyola-Hyde Park and Calumet.

Blue Ribbons Face Queens Six Tonight

The Queens university hockey sextet of Kingston, Ont., which defeated the University of Wisconsin, 6 to 0, Thursday, meets stronger opposition tonight when it battles the Blue Ribbons of the Big Four league at the Coliseum.

This is the second of three exhibition games scheduled for the Canadians. Tuesday night they will play the Baby Ruth sextet.

Blue Ribbons Add Strength.

The Blue Ribbons have been strengthened for tonight's game. Constant practice, with this game in mind, has the Ribbons on edge.

So far, only one visiting team has earned a victory over one of the Big Four division teams. The Chatham Maroons beat the Ribbons by one point.

Game Is Moved Up.

Tonight's game originally was scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, but was advanced because of the holiday. The game is the only one on the program and will get under way at 3:30 o'clock p. m. Lineup:

Jewish Youths Form Sports Organization

An athletic organization has been formed in Chicago to be known as the Jewish Organized Youths. The J. O. Y. of Chicago will promote an all around athletic program for Jewish boys and girls in the middle west.

Jan. 29 and 30 have been set aside for the first annual boxing tournament, to be held at the People's playhouse, 3500 Douglas boulevard.

Jewish boys in Chicago and all suburbs, whether affiliated with a group or are unattached, are eligible to compete in this tournament, provided they are physically fit and over 18 years of age.

There will be a novice class for boys who never have won a prize in a major tournament, such as the A. A. U. or the Golden Gloves tournaments, and an open class for the experienced boxers.

Entries will be accepted until midnight, Jan. 24, with the athletic committee, J. O. Y., 3500 Douglas boulevard.

Intended mainly for the unattached boy who lacks training facilities, the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard, will open its gymnasium tomorrow afternoon for three weeks of conditioning and boxing instructions preceding the preliminary contests.

Hannin Quintet Beats Major League Stars

The Hannin-Klein Did-Its basketball team defeated the Major league all-stars, 29 to 19, at the Tuley gymnasium last night. Burdick starred for the Did-Its, scoring 11 points, while Linke led the all-stars' with seven points. The Spencer Coals won from Pullman Girls, 32 to 5, in a preliminary game.

STANFORD WORKS ON DEFENSE FOR COLUMBIA PLAYS

Sickness Keeps Grayson Out of Practice.

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The Stanford football team today set about learning as much as possible about Columbia's plays in preparation for the New Year's day game at the Rose Bowl.

Coach Thornhill hoped to have all his sick and injured players back in uniform today so the rehearsal for defense could be put on with a full cast, but a slight illness put Bobby Grayson, star ball carrying back, temporarily out of action.

However, there was no thought in the Stanford camp that Grayson would not be able to start the game Monday, and right with him will be Monk Moscrip, injured end, and probably Wes Muller, star center, who has been seriously indisposed.

Columbia Arrives Tomorrow.

No Stanford scout saw Columbia play this season, so Coach Thornhill is not supplied with a blue print of the intricate criss-cross shift from which the Lions go into the line of scrimmage, but he has a general idea of the formations.

Columbia will not reach Pasadena until early Sunday morning and the Lions will work out only briefly in the Rose Bowl. The Columbians are expected to view the lights and shadows and get the feel of the turf in preparation for the morrow and call it a day. Stanford will be all through after the Saturday workout and that, too, will be light.

COLUMBIA IS READY

"We have no injuries," he said. "The morale is good. We've drilled hard on every detail of our defense and offense, and we expect to win."

Although Little would have liked to work the players more, he was afraid to do so because of the lack of reserves.

Workouts Are Light.

"We couldn't afford to take a chance," said one of Little's assistants. "The boys know and we knew that injury would cut our strength sharply, so we have prepared them for the game without rough work. Our punting has improved here at Tucson. The backs and ends have been handling the ball cleanly and the line has been coached to the minute. As for the defense, you never know if your plans are right until the game."

Capt. L. M. [Biff] Jones, Louisiana State coach, watched the Lions go through a light workout this afternoon. The last Tucson workout will be held tomorrow afternoon. The team will board a special train in the evening and arrive at Pasadena Sunday morning. A light workout will be held in the Rose Bowl in the afternoon.

SPEED SKATERS RACE TOMORROW ON HUMBOLDT ICE

The speed skating racing season begins tomorrow with a tournament sponsored by the Walton A. C. on the Humboldt park lagoon. Chicago's star skaters will use tomorrow's races to get in condition for the North American championships at Oconomowoc, Wis., Jan. 27 and 28.

Rivalry between Eddie Schroeder, world's 10,000 meter titleholder, and Eddie Stundl, co-holder of the world's 500 meter indoor record with Frank Stack of Winnipeg, Canada, will start with this derby. Several ex-Olympic speedsters are entered in the class A events. A special 5,000 meter contest, to prepare the United States blade stars for the next Olympic games in 1936 is carded.

Among the girl champions to skate are etty Du Bois and Helen Bina, who were members of Uncle Sam's 1932 Olympic team. Miss Bina broke the 500 meter Finnish record and the women's 1,000 meter indoor mark last winter, while Miss Du Bois was the fastest in the 500 meter Olympic race at Lake Placid.

Contestants are urged by the Walton club's officials to report before noon for their numbers. The races will commence at 1:30 p. m. Post entries will be excepted.

New York, Dec. 29.—A general rise marked prices in the listed bond market today in moderately active dealings. United States government bonds rose 1-32d to 9-32d point with the exception of the treasury, 3¾s, due 1943, which sold off 2-32ds point.

All classifications of domestic corporation bonds and leading foreign loans, closed higher.

Many Up Point or More.

In the domestic corporation issues, gains of a point or more were registered by a long list of representative bonds. Utility, industrial and railroad bonds averaged higher in the order named.

The communications issues showed particular strength, with the maximum gains amounting to a point or two. The rise brought many domestic corporation issues close to the highs for the year.

Foreign Range Narrower.

Price variations in the foreign group were not as wide as in the domestic issues. Most of the German loans closed higher on the day. French government and municipal loans closed up a point to down fractionally, while United Kingdom issues were up half a point to 1¼ and Dutch East Indies loans gained fractionally to 3¼ points. Latin-American issues, however, were generally lower. Cuban issues displayed particular weaknesses.

Curb bonds were higher in lighter trading.

Jones & Laughlin Steel.

Investors' Guide: Would very much appreciate information concerning Jones & Laughlin Steel.—P. A. C.

Answer: Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation ranks as the fourth largest unit in the industry. It has an annual capacity of about 2,900,000 tons of finished steel. It caters to a fairly well diversified group of customers, although about 70 per cent of total tonnage is pipe, structural steel, and merchant bars. This makes it somewhat dependent on operations of oil, gas and water companies and the building trade as well as general industry.

Earnings prior to 1931 were substantial over a long period of years. Since then, however, factors which have affected all steel companies have caused operations to be reported in the red.

Loss of $997,000 in the third quarter of 1933 was the smallest reported in any three months period for two years. For the first nine months of 1933 loss was $4,741,000, against loss of $6,193,000 for the corresponding 1932 period.

	Shipments (in tons).	Net inc.	Inc. per com. shr.
1932	572,988	*$7,910,000	*$20.86
1931	1,115,804	*2,283,000	*11.09
1930	1,757,894	9,093,000	8.65
1929	2,455,435	20,849,000	29.04

*Loss.

Current position is strong. At the close of 1932 cash assets alone of more than $14,000,000 compared with total current liabilities of $3,178,000. Funded debt, due 1939, amounts to $8,770,000, or only about 6.6 per cent of total capitalization. There are outstanding 587,139 shares of 7 per cent $100 par preferred and 576,320 shares of $100 par common.

Nothing has been paid on the common since June 1, 1931. Dividends have been paid regularly on the preferred, although at a reduced rate since April 1, 1933, but directors voted to omit the Jan. 1, 1934, payment.

Recent earnings show an improvement as a result of better business conditions. A continued improvement in general conditions should be reflected in future earnings.

Both the preferred and common are speculative at present.

Broker's Commission.

Investors' Guide: In disposing of our bonds of Union Pacific and buying Union Pacific stock would separate transactions have to be made? Or could the bonds be exchanged for common stock, thereby having but one transaction?—C. F. A.

Answer: The deal you mention would involve a sale and a purchase, two separate transactions. A brokerage commission would be charged for each.

PACKERS FACE U. S. OPERATION IF NRA IS EVADED

Probe Being Made to Determine Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—The meat packing industry, it was learned today, faces the possibility of being virtually taken over by the government unless it complies with the spirit of the farm relief and recovery programs.

An intensive investigation of the industry, it was learned, is now being conducted by the agricultural adjustment administration. If the results of the inquiry indicate a disposition on the part of the packers to thwart or evade the purposes of the administration, it was said, the AAA will declare open war and invoke the most drastic measures.

More radical officials of the farm administration are reported to be in complete sympathy with the proposal of Speaker of the House Henry T. Rainey, who publicly demanded that the government "commandeer" the meat packing industry, in the same manner in which it took over certain industries during the war.

Urge Waiting on Inquiry.

Other officials of the AAA, however, feel that there has been insufficient evidence that the packers have sought to buck the recovery campaigns. They are insisting that no drastic steps to bring the packing industry under federal domination be taken until the present investigation has disclosed the real facts.

The Institute of American Meat Packers meanwhile vigorously denied the charges made by Speaker Rainey that the packers have deliberately forced hog prices down, and asserted that the packers are striving to cooperate in every way with both the national recovery and the farm relief programs.

In addition to the possibility of complete federal operation of the packing industry, it was learned today that the Federal Surplus Relief corporation may take over several packing plants throughout the country for the purpose of processing hogs purchased for relief distribution.

Packers' Charges Criticized.

Under the present arrangement the government buys live hogs and contracts with the packers to process them. Some criticism of the prices charged for processing by the packing industry has been heard at the farm adjustment administration. Officials in charge of the relief hog buying program, however, believe the prices to be fair, considering the fact that relief pork is processed differently from all regular products.

High officials of the AAA said today that the farm administration is not yet equipped with facts sufficient to warrant drastic action against the packers. The problem of hog marketing, they declared, is so involved and intricate that all aspects of the packing industry's operation must be carefully considered.

WOODS EXPLAINS PRICES

BY PAUL POTTER.

Unusually heavy production of meat animals during recent months by farmers in the face of curtailed consumer buying power was given as the chief reason for low live stock prices yesterday by W. W. Woods, president of the Institute of American Meat Packers.

Woods admitted the processing tax has been a direct factor in current prices. But, he added, it should not be overlooked that from the funds derived from the tax the farmer will receive, in addition to current price of hogs, a benefit payment from the government if he agrees to reduce corn and hog production.

Further, he pointed out, if efforts to reduce supplies are successful hog prices should be affected accordingly. In addition to its curtailment program, Woods cited that the administration has used funds to reduce the supply of hogs for the coming year and is purchasing pork products for relief.

Heavy Marketing Cuts Price.

"Live stock prices are low," said Woods, "because production of meat during the year, and particularly recent months, has been very large as the result of heavy marketing of live stock, and the increased meat supply has been larger than the consumer, with his relatively low purchasing power, could take at prices satisfactory to the producer.

"With production so heavy the packing industry has been unable to get better prices for meat. As a matter of fact, pork prices have been lower since the processing tax went into effect because of the low purchasing power and increased supplies."

Knowledge of these conditions by the AAA is credited by some stockyards officials as having caused Secretary Wallace to relent from his previous plans to increase further the processing tax, which remains at $1 per hundredweight.

PRINCIPAL STOCK, GRAIN EXCHANGES TO REMAIN OPEN TODAY

Principal North American grain exchanges and leading American security markets will be open today as usual but will be closed Monday, New Year's day. Several eastern commodity markets, including the New York Sugar and Cotton exchanges, will be closed today and will not reopen until Tuesday morning. The New Orleans Cotton exchange, Liverpool wheat market as well as most of the continental European markets will also be closed today.

Wheat Drops 2⅛ to 2½c on Selling Move

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Local operators who had attempted to advance grain prices for several days became discouraged yesterday over the failure of outside interests to react to favorable news and liquidated. There was a noticeable lack of support the greater part of the day and all grains closed lower.

May wheat at one time was off 3¼ cents and July 3⅝ cents from the best figures on Thursday with the close showing net losses of 2⅛ to 2½ cents for the day. May closed at 83½ to 83⅝ cents and July at 82⅝ to 82½ cents. Corn lost 1⅜ to 1⅞ cents with May at 49⅞ to 50⅛ cents. Oats lost 1 to 1¼ cents, May at 36⅜ to 36½ cents. Rye broke 1¾ to 2 cents at 56¼ to 56⅜ cents for May. Barley lost 1¼ to 1½ cents, May at 52 cents.

Weather More Favorable.

The passing of the cold wave and the forecast for rising temperatures with rain or snow over the greater part of the winter wheat belt removed part of the apprehension regarding damage to the new crop. However, no precipitation was expected in sections of Kansas and Oklahoma which have been extremely dry for some time.

With all of the world's leading markets closed Monday and a holiday in Liverpool today there was some evening up in wheat and other grains for the year-end holidays. London cables expressing fears Russian exports would have considerable influence on the world price level attracted little attention.

As a result of the extremely cold weather in the northwest, the movement of wheat in that section has fallen off materially, and total receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth aggregated only 27 cars yesterday.

Winnipeg Closes Lower.

Winnipeg weakened with Chicago and closed 1⅝ to 2⅛ cents lower, with export sales estimated at 300,000 to 600,000 bushels in all positions. Liverpool finished ¼ to ⅝ cent lower, with preholiday liquidation a factor.

A few cars of cash corn were reported as having been offered to arrive from the country yesterday, but the desire to sell on the part of farmers was by no means general. According to a trade report, one of the leading railroads did not receive an order to deliver a single car for grain at country elevators between Freeport, Ill., and Clinton, Ia., on Thursday, a distance of 182 miles.

South Africa, which has been providing a large part of the corn which has been imported by Canada in the last few years, has started to import grain as the result of a near crop failure. Argentine shipments for the week included 224,000 bushels to South Africa.

U. S. RANKS FIRST IN CHINESE TRADE DESPITE LOSSES

While United States trade with China dropped 17 per cent in imports and 21 per cent in exports in the first ten months of 1933, believed to have resulted from severance of Manchuria from China, this country continued to enjoy first place with that nation by supplying 20 per cent of its imports and receiving 19 per cent of her exports, the Bank of America reports.

Of particular significance were substantial increases in purchases from the United States of tinned plates, motor trucks, wheat, artificial indigo, gasoline, kerosene, fuel oil, newsprint lumber, railway sleepers, tires, air planes, munitions, and radio sets.

Total imports of motor vehicles into China, exclusive of Manchuria and Hongkong, increased 215 units in the first nine months of 1933 over last year. The United States ranked first in this trade.

Decline of the dollar resulted in a climb of the Japanese yen which is now reflected unfavorably against Japan's exports to China, with the United States showing decided betterment in inbound and outbound oriental traffic as a result.

United States exports to lands bordering the Pacific ocean amounted to $237,814,223 in the first ten months of 1933, the bank says.

DOLLAR HOLDS STEADY, DUE TO TRADE DEMAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 29.—Commercial demand for dollars offset any adverse influence of speculative operations in the foreign exchange markets today and American currency held its position against foreign funds.

The French franc closed at 6.085 indicating a gold value of 64.30 cents for the dollar, off about a seventh of a cent from yesterday's price of 64.44. The British pound sterling closed a quarter of a cent higher at $5.07¼. The Canadian dollar fell a quarter of a cent to close at 99.56¼ cents.

Ferguson Named Chairman of Federal Trade Group

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The federal trade commission today designated Commissioner Garland S. Ferguson Jr. as its chairman for 1934. He will succeed Charles H. Marsh. Ferguson, a Democrat, appointed by President Coolidge in 1927, advanced to the chairmanship under rules which call for rotation of the post. He comes from Greensboro, N. C., where he was an attorney. As a member of the commission he has been particularly interested in the securities act.

In line with an easier money market and accompanying an increase in demand, the rates on bankers' acceptances, prime commercial paper have been reduced one-eighth of one per cent, dealers announced yesterday. Car Loadings Sag, but Top Last 2 Years

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The American Railway association announced today that loadings of revenue freight for the week ended Dec. 23 were 527,067 cars, a decrease of 27,765 below the previous week, but an increase of 32,557 above 1932 and 86,168 above 1931, when loadings were reduced by inclusion of the Christmas holiday.

The current recession is less than half of the average decline at this time of year since 1925. Moreover, the year to year gain, which began last May, has been maintained. Loadings have shown either abnormal increases or smaller than usual declines for several weeks.

Merchandise Best in Two Years.

Merchandise shipments topped both 1931 and 1932 for the first time last week and miscellaneous freight, another barometer of public buying, was nearly 45,000 cars above a year ago and 37,315 cars above 1931. Grain, forest products, ore, coal, and live stock also topped 1931, although coal fell substantially below 1932.

Miscellaneous freight loaded for the week of Dec. 23 was 182,528 cars, a decrease of 9,436 below the preceding week, but 43,997 above 1932 and 37,315 over 1931; less than carload merchandise, 150,179, a decrease of 4,234 below the preceding week, but 889 over last year and 4,738 over 1931.

Grain Shipments Lower.

TWO FIRMS GET MILLION DOLLAR PLANE CONTRACT

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Contracts for twelve 200 mile an hour multimotored air liners at a cost to exceed $1,000,000 were awarded today by Pan-American Airways to the Douglas Aircraft company and the Lockheed Aircraft corporation, both of California.

At the same time the air line exercised a month old option to buy the Port Washington seaplane base on Manhasset Bay, L. I.—reputedly at a sacrifice figure—as part of its program for regular trans-Atlantic service.

The Douglas and Lockheed planes have no place in the trans-oceanic picture, the Douglas ships being intended for Pan-American's present route through Mexico and Central America to Panama and for the regular route of Pan-American-Grace Aidways (an affiliated company) down the west coast of South America to Santiago Chile, and across the Andes to Buenos Aires, while the Lockheed plants will go on other Latin-American routes. Six planes of each type have been ordered.

MIDLAND STEEL VOTES DIVIDEND ON PFD. SHARES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 29.—The Midland Steel Products company declared a dividend of $2 on the 8 per cent cumulative preferred stock. The company stated that $1 of the dividend was to apply to dividend accumulation of like amount from the October dividend and $1 on the dividend due in January. Three months ago the company declared a dividend of $3 on which $2 was applied on accumulations.

The Hooker Electro Chemical company declared a dividend of $1.50 a share on the 6 per cent preferred on account of accumulations, which will amount to $9 a share after this payment.

Foreclosure Suit Filed on Rogers Park Hospital

A suit to foreclose a $200,000 mortgage on the Rogers Park hospital, 6970 North Clark street, was filed in the Circuit court yesterday by E. The bonds were issued June 1, 1926.

Claim Power to Confiscate Reserve Gold

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Power to nationalize all gold in the country, including the huge 3 billion 700 million dollar gold store in the federal reserve banks which the government has not yet dared to touch, by a simple treasury order was claimed today by the treasury department.

Following yesterday's order from Acting Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., rounding up all private gold holdings, small as well as large, only the reserve bank gold, much of which is used as a monetary reserve, remained outside the scope of the government's anti-hoarding orders.

That the treasury believes itself empowered to seize this gold too by a simple order such as that issued last night, thus paving the way for devaluation of the dollar, was admitted by its legal staff today.

Seek Metal Privately Held.

President Roosevelt, meanwhile, explained that last night's new anti-hoarding order was expected to round up another five million dollars in gold which Secretary Morgenthau believes still to be in private hands.

Although yesterday's order wiped out the $100 exemption for gold holders which previously existed, Secretary Morgenthau insisted today it was aimed primarily at large gold holders.

After consultation with lawyers Herbert E. Gaston, official treasury spokesman, explained that since the reserve banks were corporations, and corporations were specifically named in the banking act, the treasury believed it could demand this gold, too.

Fail to Deny Claim.

Officials of the reserve board, although they did not deny this claim flatly, said that in their opinion it was a moot question whether the reserve banks were necessarily covered by the term corporation.

Federal reserve banks are by far the largest gold owners in the country, holding 3 billion 700 million dollars' worth of gold and gold certificates out of a national gold stock of 4 billion 300 million.

Since the value of gold bullion would be doubled by a 50 per cent cut in the gold content of the dollar the government is reputedly anxious to concentrate all gold under its own ownership, so that the profit will accrue to it alone

PENNSY SIGNS $77,000,000 LOAN CONTRACT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes and representatives of the Pennsylvania railroad today signed a contract for a $77,000,000 loan to the carrier from the public works fund for electrification work between Philadelphia and Washington and for 7,000 new freight cars and 100 electric locomotives.

The company originally had been granted $84,000,000, but did not require all of the money because of a change in plans.

Signing of the loan contract was delayed because of discussions with the public works administration over wage rates. The Pennsylvania agreed to pay unskilled labor not less than $15 a week and it was agreed that for the electric locomotives built by outside manufacturers, wages and hours of labor of those companies' employes would be governed by NRA codes.

Public works officials estimated more than 45,000,000 man hours of labor would be created by the work, described as the "largest private construction job" in the country.

Work can begin immediately for the Pennsylvania has plans and schedules of work prepared and is resuming construction on a job that is partially completed and which it was compelled to suspend because of economic conditions.

TELL VALUES OF INSULL STOCKS IN DAWES LOAN

Senators to Ask RFC for More Data.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—Insull securities included in the direct collateral held by the RFC against the 62 million dollar residue of the original 90 million dollar "Dawes bank loan" were valued by the finance corporation on Nov. 22 at $1,236,996, it was disclosed today.

In addition to these securities pledged as direct collateral by the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, according to an RFC report to the senate banking and currency committee, several million dollars' worth of various Insull securities are still held by the corporation as subcollateral in the form of security for notes pledged directly with the RFC for the 90 million dollar advance.

The RFC did not try to estimate the present value of the collateral but Chairman Fletcher of the senate committee said the corporation will be asked for further information as to the collateral's value.

Delay Action on Report.

The corporation's report, transmitted to the senate committee nearly a week ago at the request of Chairman Fletcher, was the subject of a committee meeting today. Action on the report was deferred, however, and senators on the committe declined to comment on the status of the loan, as shown in the report.

Against the total unpaid obligation of $62,157,000, the RFC disclosed it now holds collateral valued on Nov. 22 at $91,158,034.

The aggregate collateral was made up as follows: Stocks, $1,412,864; bonds, $12,779,360; notes and mortgages, $64,338,411; miscellaneous assets, $7,766,626; book accounts, including advances on mortgages on bond issues in foreclosure, $1,600,148.

Foreign Securities 3 Millions.

Domestic securities held against the 62 millions still unpaid were valued at $87,897,411 in the RFC report. Foreign securities valued at $3,260,622 made up the total.

Collateral for the three loans to Martin J. Insull totaling $266,873, and one loan of $500,000 to Samuel Insull made by the Central Republic bank just prior to the collapse of the Insull utilities empire, was shown by the report to consist of stock in Insull companies, most of which are now defunct.

Among other loans was the biggest to an Insull company, $2,812,577 to the Insull Utility Investment corporation, an investment trust now in receivership; nine loans totaling $280,000 to A. B. Leach & Co., $241,679 to the Stevens hotel, and $100,000 to Robert Jackson.

Cuban and German Bonds.

Included in the foreign securities were $100,000 of Cuban government public works bonds and about $1,400,000 of German government bonds. Some securities of German state and cities also were included.

In conjunction with the 90 million dollar RFC loan, a group of Chicago banks loaned the Dawes institution 5 million dollars which was secured by the same collateral as the RFC obligation. The collateral, it was revealed, is held by the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, which allocates payments to the RFC and the banks proportionately. At the close of business on Nov. 22, it was stated, these payments to the banks exceed their proportion by $325,531, and the next payments will be made to the RFC.

TREASURY SELLS DISCOUNT BILLS AT LOWER RATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—Easing money rates in the last two weeks enabled the federal treasury to sell its latest issue of 91 day discount bills at a slightly smaller discount than that for the two preceding issues.

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced tonight that accepted bids on the 100 million dollar issue offered on Wednesday ranged from 99.848, equivalent to an annual rate of about 0.60 per cent, to 99.843, equivalent to a rate of about 0.62 per cent. As 99 per cent of the amount bid for at the latter price was accepted, the average rate was about 0.62 per cent. The average rate on the two preceding issues was between 0.72 and 0.74 per cent.

Also reflecting easier money conditions, the current issue was more heavily oversubscribed than recent similar issues. The total amount applied for was $384,619,000, of which the treasury accepted $100,990,000. The new bills will be dated Jan. 3 and will mature April 4, 1934.

Decide Soon on Cummings as Bank Chief

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—Whether Walter J. Cummings, head of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, is elected chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, Chicago, on Jan. 12 probably will be decided at a conference between Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and directors of the bank early next month, it was learned today.

Mr. Cummings today refused to deny or confirm earlier printed reports that he is to be elected head of the Chicago bank, but insisted flatly that nothing definite had been decided. Mr. Jones made the same assertion.

Chances of Mr. Cummings being elected were considered brighter here today, when reports were received that George A. Ranney, treasurer of the International Harvester company, had withdrawn as a candidate for the chairmanship of the bank.

Denies RFC Will Dominate.

Although the RFC has owned a controlling interest in the bank since it purchased 50 million dollars' worth of the bank's preferred stock, Mr. Jones explained today that the RFC has no intention of forcing any chairman on the bank. He intends to talk the matter over thoroughly with the directors before the RFC decides how to vote its interest at the stockholders' meeting on Jan. 12, he said.

Because of the pressure of year-end matters, he has been unable to give any consideration to the forthcoming election and the RFC's action in it, Jones said. Only the preliminary discussions have been held.

Mr. Jones' close friendship with Mr. Cummings and the reputed desire of Controller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor to succeed Mr. Cummings as head of the Deposit Insurance corportion, lent weight to the belief that the government will insist upon Mr. Cummings' elecion.

O'Connor Guides Reorganization.

Controller O'Connor is supervising the reorganization of the bank, which the federal reserve board suggested be made when it granted the bank permission to revise its capital structur and sell preferred stock. Gov. Eugene R. Black said today that although the reserve board had suggested the reorganization of the bank's management, supervision of the change was up to the controller.

Mr. Cummings is intending to leave the chairmanship of the Deposit Insurance corporation by Jan. 15, in order to return to his private affairs. His resignation has been on President Roosevelt's desk since long before the RFC took over the controlling stock interest in the Continental Illinois.

KUPPENHEIMER REDUCES LOSS; BUSINESS GAINS

Business improvement during the latter part of its fiscal year enabled B. Kuppenheimer & Co., Inc., to make a sharp reduction in its loss from operations for the period.

The company's annual report, issued yesterday, reveals net loss for the year ended Oct. 28 last of $222,121, against a deficit of $776,980 in the corresponding period a year earlier. The current ratio was well maintained, current assets at the end of the year standing at $1,467,134, against $1,623,293 on Oct. 31, 1932, and current liabilities at $190,092, compared with $134,855.

Bertram J. Cahn, chairman, in his remarks to stockholders accompanying the report, said continued adverse economic conditions, particularly in the first half of the period, were responsible for the deficit, although, because of improvement in the last half, operations were conducted practically without loss, because of better sales volume and continuation of rigid economies.

Advance sales for the spring season show a satisfactory increase in both volume and units, he asserted, which, together with further reduction in overhead expenses, gives promise of more favorable results for the coming year.

GAIN IS SHOWN BY CONTINENTAL ASSURANCE CO.

That business conditions have improved is indicated in the record of Continental Assurance company for 1933, announces H. A. Behrens, president.

Production of ordinary life insurance has increased during the year, cancellations have been less than those of 1932, rejections have been fewer, and the record of lapses has improved by a third, according to Mr. Behrens.

The company is finishing 1933 with more insurance in force, larger assets, and a greater degree of liquidity than ever before in its history, he declares. This marks the twenty-second consecutive year of increase in assets and insurance in force.

The company already adheres to the Illinois insurance investment act, which, effective as of July, 1935, is the strictest in any state of the Union.

Breach Between Prince, Armour Officials Healed

The stockholders' advisory committee of Armour & Co., backed by F. H. Prince, Boston capitalist, yesterday sent a letter to all shareholders urging them to support a proxy committee consisting of Mr. Prince, T. G. Lee, president of the company, and A. Watson Armour, a director. The letter marks the final healing of the breach between the Prince faction and the management which developed over the financial reorganization proposed last summer. The annual meeting of stockholders is to be held Jan. 26.

RANNEY QUITS RACE FOR HEAD OF CONTINENTAL

Lack of Approval by RFC Is Reason.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

George A. Ranney, vice chairman of the Commonwealth Edison company, last night withdrew his candidacy for the position of chairman of the board of directors of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, giving as his apparent reason the fact that the Reconstruction Finance corporation, owner of $50,000,000 of the bank's preferred stock, had failed to approve his election.

Mr. Ranney's withdrawal is believed to leave no candidate to oppose Walter J. Cummings, assistant secretary of the treasury, who is reported to be the Reconstruction Finance corporation's selection for the job.

The decision of Mr. Ranney was disclosed in a letter to the committee of the bank's board of directors which had on Nov. 14 invited him to become chairman of the bank.

Had Tried to Retire Earlier.

In his letter Mr. Ranney revealed that he had earlier asked permission to withdraw his name, following the publication of a Washington dispatch to THE TRIBUNE mentioning Mr. Cummings as the administration's favored candidate. At that time the directors' committee persuaded him to remain in the running.

Mr. Ranney discloses that although the federal reserve board in Washington had approved his election a letter on this subject to the Reconstruction Finance corporation remained unanswered.

The position of chairman for which both Ranney and Cummings were candidates was vacated several months ago by the resignation of Stanley Field, who succeeded George Reynolds, after the latter's retirement. Since Mr. Field's resignation duties of both positions have been assumed by James R. Leavell, president, although it was known that Mr. Leavell desired an associate to share the work and that eventually the vacant post would be filled.

Ranney's Letter to Board.

"Your invitation to become chairman of the board of directors of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company came to me on Nov. 14," Mr. Ranney's letter to the directors committee states. "Obviously the invitation was not a matter to be lightly decided.

"Knowing that the government, through the Reconstruction Finance corporation, would own two-thirds of the capital stock of the bank and consequently stock control, and knowing that the new banking act of 1933 gave the federal reserve board and the controller of the currency jointly, the right to remove any director or officer of a member bank of the federal reserve system, I asked you to secure in writing from the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the federal reserve board their approval of your selection before I should be expected to give the matter further consideration. Your letters were sent to Washington on Nov. 21.

RFC Fails to Answer.

"While properly declining to assume the responsibility of designating an officer for a member bank, the federal reserve board approved of my selection. Up to the date of this letter no reply from the Reconstruction Finance corporation has been forthcoming. [Mr. Ranney's letter to the directors committee was dated Dec. 26.]

"At the time that the Washington news article appeared in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE [Dec. 12] intimating that Mr. Walter J. Cummings was to fill the post I naturally wished to relieve you of any embarrassment and so requested that you withdraw my name.

"This you declined to do; and, not desiring to make your situation more difficult than it was, I therefore consented to let the matter stand.

"The present situation regarding this matter has changed quite materially during the last six weeks—so much so that I now ask you to withdraw my name.

"I deeply appreciate the honor that you conferred upon me in selecting my name for the important position you desire to fill."

Bank Officers Silent.

Officers of the bank had no comment to make when informed that Mr. Ranney had released his letter to the directors committee. From outside sources, however, it was learned that there is no resistance to the Reconstruction Finance corporation among the officers of the bank.

The opposition, it is understood, developed among a certain group of the directors who were not willing to brook any interference by the RFC in the management of the bank. This faction, including Sewell Avery, president of Montgomery Ward & Co.; Col. A. A. Sprague, and William F. Hayes, is reported to have engineered the invitation to Mr. Ranney.

With the RFC purchasing two-thirds of the bank's voting stock, however, the insurgent directors appeared from the start to have little chance to elect a chairman not acceptable to the administration. The Ranney men suffered a further and very definite reverse when stockholders met last week and approved the amended articles of association which included a provision, inserted at the last moment, to the effect that salaries could be set by the RFC as long as it should hold as much as 25 per cent of the outstanding preferred stock and a further provision that directors must be "persons acceptable to the Reconstruction Finance corporation" as long as 50 per cent of the outstanding preferred shares are in the hands of the RFC.

There has been no official indication as yet whether the directors who backed Mr. Ranney will run for re-

REVEAL $600,000 PROFIT IN CRASH OF ATLAS TACK

Broker Says He Warned Stock Exchange.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 29.—Although the stock of the Atlas Tack corporation crashed with heavy loss to hundreds of investors, Philip H. Philbin, who acquired control of the company last August, emerged with a net profit of $600,000.

This was brought out at today's hearing on the circumstances of the spectacular crash conducted by the attorney general.

Mr. Philbin testified that he acted for himself alone in acquiring the stock which gave him control, although he "had many friends."

An analysis of Philbin's books revealed that in his intricate trading in the stock before the crash he had picked the peaks during which to sell large blocks. He began to sell heavily in September, the books showed.

Specialist Warns Brokers.

Sydney Rheinstein, member of the stock exchange since 1909, and a specialist in Atlas Tack stock, testified he warned other brokers against Atlas, saying he believed "it was a one-man market," because the majority of the buying orders came from one brokerage house. He said that about ten weeks ago he reported to the business conduct committee of the stock exchange the Atlas situation, characterizing it as "unusual." Mr. Rheinstein said he rarely traded in Atlas stock, but lost about $48,000 in the break of Dec. 16.

Philbin was shown to have held 30,381 shares of Atlas on Dec. 15, the day before the stock broke sharply. His total purchases over a period of several months were 98,981 shares, at a cost of $1,660,660, and his total sales were 68,680 shares, on which he received a profit of $316,489. The market value of his present holdings at current prices indicates another profit of about $300,000.

Mr. Philbin admitted that at the time he was selling he gave out an optimistic story that the Atlas Tack directors would meet Jan. 10, 1934, to consider a 3 for 1 split of capital stock and a change from no par values to a stated par value.

Earlier in the hearing Mr. Philbin admitted that he had sold considerable Atlas Tack stock in the week preceding Dec. 16, when Atlas Tack began the break that carried it down from above 34 to 24 in a day.

Philbin testified that after obtaining control of Atlas he put in directors of his own choosing.

"Isn't it fair to say that the complexion was made more rosy by a decrease in operating expenses rather than by new business or an increase in business production?" he was asked.

"To the best of my knowledge it was made so by economy of administration," Philbin answered.

HOLDERS UNLOAD COTTON; PRICES SLIGHTLY LOWER

Unloading of cotton in year end liquidation was fairly well taken yesterday. Prices held within narrow limits and closed 1 point higher to 5 points lower in Chicago, with losses on most deliveries only 1 point.

New Orleans was unchanged to 1 point lower on futures, and spots were off to 10.15 cents. New York was unchanged to 5 points lower on futures and dropped 5 points to a base of 10.30 cents. Galveston was 10.15 cents and Houston unchanged at 10.10 cents.

Spinners' takings for the week are 250,000 bales, compared with 309,000 bales last week. The into-sight movement is 232,000 bales, compared with 270,000 bales last week. Prices:

WEATHER, STORAGE NEWS AID EGGS; BUTTER HIGHER

All commodities advanced on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Butter gained ¼@½c; eggs, ½@1½c, and potatoes, 6c.

Eggs opened with strong support and advanced rapidly, January at one time showing a gain of .8120 per car, but at the top profit taking and new selling developed and the market reacted. Support was moderately active at the close. The market was aided by continued cold weather over producing states and a storage movement 26,000 cases better than last year.

The cash potato market was stronger. For the first time this week, cars were opened. The severe weather prevented business previously. Cash prices were up 15@20c over the last quotations, which aided the futures.

Butter was very quiet. The market opened firm and held within a narrow range during the rest of the session. Storage withdrawals again ran 500,000 pounds ahead of last year.

SUGAR.

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Raw sugar was more active today and spot prices were advanced 5 points to the basis of 3.20, while later shipment remained unchanged. Refiners displayed greater interest, with sales reported of 25,000 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment at 3.20 cents and about 135,000 bags of Philippines for January and February arrival at 3.15 cents. Reflecting the better tone in the spot market, futures were firmer on increased covering against sales of actuals, with the market closing 3 to 4 points net higher. Sales were 15,450 tons. STOCKS DROWSE IN PRE-HOLIDAY TRADE LETHARGY

Prices Move Unevenly in Narrow Range.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 29.—Business dwindled to extremely small proportions on the stock exchange today. Prices moved within fractional ranges for the most part, with little genuine speculative interest in evidence. "Cash" sales dried up perceptibly from yesterday's heavy run, indicating to tape watchers that most traders had wound up their belated tax selling.

The latest gold move in Washington, while generally interpreted as the forerunner of dollar devaluation, failed to exert appreciable influence on the market as a whole. Gold shares perked up somewhat not only in response to this development but partly on the strength of Prof. Warren's prediction that the yellow metal will command a high price for a long time.

Homestake Rises 11 Points.

Homestake rose 11 points to 315 and Alaska Juneau and McIntyre moved into a little more elevated positions.

There were other favorable bits of trade news, but none of it found worth while reflection in share buying. The market obviously had settled into a year-end stalemate and refused to be budged by anything but a change in the calendar.

Most of the group leaders, such as American Can, United States Steel, Union Pacific, Western Union, American Telephone, General Motors, and the like, finished slightly below their previous closing levels. A few scattered issues like Armour of Illinois preferred, G. W. Helme, and Liquid Carbonic showed signs of independent strength for one reason or another. Buying of the Armour issue was credited to general expectations that a better year is ahead for the packing industry.

Liggett Recovers Point.

In the tobacco group Liggett & Myers recovered a point of the losses it suffered along with the rest of the group in the selling induced by estimates of lower earnings earlier in the week and American Tobacco and Reynolds succeeded in holding their own.

Profit taking was in evidence in an assortment of specialty shares like Celanese and Johns-Manville. The first named issue lost more than 3 points. Selling of this kind also bore rather heavily at times against the motors, particularly General Motors and Chrysler, which qualified as such prominent features of yesterday's dealings. Auburn moved within a narrow range and wound up about where it started.

Utilities made a good showing, with Consolidated Gas and Public Service out in front. Bohn Aluminum and Brass climbed to a new 1933 top of 57½. Liquor shares came in for a little play on the up side, with American Commercial Alcohol, Schenley, and National Distillers attracting the major share of the patronage. Rails held steady in light trading.

Bank Director Resignations Await Rulings by Reserve

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Resignations of directors from more banks in compliance with the banking act of 1933, are still awaiting rulings from the federal reserve board defining whether directors or officers of investment trusts are dealers in securities within the meaning of the law as well as a ruling whether a broker who acts only as agent for others in the purchase and sale of securities is a dealer in securities within the terms of the law.

HOGS MOVE UP; U. S. TO RESUME RELIEF BUYING

Packers to Handle 292,000 for Government.

The recovery that started in the hog market late Thursday on buying by larger packing houses carried prices 5 to 10 cents higher yesterday, with all interests aggressive on the rise. Only 1,000 were sold for the account of the government, but the trade looks for larger federal buying orders next week.

It was announced yesterday that the packers' bids for the job of handling hogs purchased for the account of the government had been accepted and that the relief corporation had started on a three weeks' buying program by which packers will purchase 292,000 hogs for the government at the rate of about 19,500 daily at the various points.

Average Is 5 Cents Higher.

The general average at $3.30 also showed 5 cents gain, but the most strength was found in the medium and weighty butchers bought by the packers for their own trade. Their hogs were above the weights wanted by the relief corporation.

There was practically no spread between the light and heavy hogs. The weights getting the support of the government sold yesterday at $3.40 and $3.45, while the 225 to 300 pound butchers were listed at $3.35 to $3.45. The latter are steady to 10 cents higher than at the close of last week, while top light show losses of 15 to 30 cents for the week.

Lambs Sell Up to $8.00.

Sellers drove the top lambs up to the $8.00 line yesterday. This is the first time this quotation has been used in the lamb trade since the middle of August. Advances of 25 cents were general yesterday in wooled stock.

Aged sheep advanced 15 to 25 cents to the highest point of the year. Lamb prices are $2.00 higher than at the close of 1932 and $1.65 higher than on the last day of 1931.

Trading in most departments of the cattle market dragged yesterday when supplies slightly exceeded the usual Friday quota. Some sellers locked up their cattle on lower bids, intending to bring them out on the market on Monday, Jan. 1, when the trade will be open as usual. The best cattle available yesterday sold at $6.10, averaging 979 pounds. The bulk brought $4.25 to $5.50, with quality plain.
